

READER'S WIFE PAYS THE BILLS, HE TELLS COURT

Woman Financier's Husband Up in Supplementary Proceedings.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Athole B. Reader, promoter of schemes in which he talks of millions with less awe than the ordinary citizen mentions a dollar, has not a penny to call his own, according to his testimony in a supplementary proceedings examination, conducted by Attorney Bernard H. Arnold, of 333 Broadway, to find why he was unable to pay a judgment of $700 for rent.

Reader's assets at present are expectations, he says, in the shape of a 50,000-acre rubber plantation and a like acreage in coffee land in Peru, which he secured as concessions from the Peruvian government.

"It is wonderful land," testified the witness. "All it needs is money for cultivation."

"How do you manage to live in an expensive home on Riverside Drive when you have no money?" he was asked.

"My wife pays all the expenses."

On May 17 he testified he transferred to his wife, Ella Rawls Reader, the woman financier, his causes of action against James E. Haggin and Centro Del Pasco Mining Company, amounting to $35,000 in claims for commissions for the purchase of mining property.

These are considered of great doubtful value by Lawyer Arnold and others, one of the cases having been thrown out of court on Reader's own testimony. An order has been issued enjoining Reader from disposing of any of his assets.

A receiver has also been appointed for Reader's property.

The debt in question was for the non-payment of rent for a $1200 apartment in the Buckingham Court, at 210 West Ninety-ninth street, owned by Sonn Brothers.

U. S. Agricultural Books Known Over Whole World

—C. P. LOUNSBURY, Cape of Good Hope Entomologist

South African Official Calls on Secretary Wilson to Benefit by Our Recent Expert Investigations.

Charles P. Lounsbury, government entomologist of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, was a caller upon Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, recently. Mr. Lounsbury is a native of Massachusetts, and a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, but is now serving the government of the new British colony.

To a Times reporter Mr. Lounsbury talked interestingly of his work in South Africa and of the political conditions in that distant country.

"In Cape Town," he said, "which is the capital of the colony of the Cape of Good Hope, we have an excellent department of agriculture, although the whole colony in point of inhabitants is smaller than one of our smaller States, having only about 300,000 population. The department is doing much good work for the colony, whose resources, outside of its diamond mines, are almost entirely agricultural. Two of our leading products are ostrich feathers and mohair, the wool of the Angora goat."

"I have come to Washington to benefit by some of the investigations that have been recently made by the experts of the Agricultural Department. No government in the world has so great or so valuable an organization for the benefit of its agricultural interests as this. It is doing a work not only for the farmer of the United States, but for every farmer in the world, for the publications of the American Department of Agriculture are known everywhere. I speak too highly of the broad-minded policy of the department."

"It is wonderful land," testified the witness. "All it needs is money for cultivation."

"How do you manage to live in an expensive home on Riverside Drive when you have no money?" he was asked.

"My wife pays all the expenses."

partment in the matter of dissemination of information. We in South Africa are directly benefiting by it. Secretary Wilson and his able assistants are extending to me every courtesy and assistance in enabling me to obtain the information that I need for my work. It is possible for us to apply the results of many of the researches of the department, for in many instances we have similar problems to face.

"The country has entirely settled down since the Boer war, and people are busy and growing prosperous. The Dutch farmer of the better class is an exceptionally hard worker and good citizen, and it is he that is in control of the government. Although the colony is a British one and there are many English people in it, the parliament is overwhelmingly made up of Dutchmen. The Englishmen has every confidence in his wisdom and intelligence, however, and trusts the reins of government to him without complaint. The parliament is practically the government, for while Great Britain sends a governor to the colony, his functions are hardly more extensive than that of an official reporter of local conditions to the mother country. He has the power of veto, but this is exercised only on very rare occasions."

APPEAL OF INDIANS AGAINST LEUPP ET AL.

Arguments before the District Court of Appeals in the case of Reuben Quick Bear, Ralph Eagle Feather, and Charles Talket, and other members of the Sioux tribe of Indians of the Rosebud Reservation Agency against Indian Commissioner Leupp, Secretary Garfield, United States Treasurer Treat, and Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell were begun yesterday.

The case comes up on an appeal from a decision of Justice Gould in the District Supreme Court, who held that the officials of the Government had the right to use the "trust funds" of the tribe to pay sectarian schools for educating the Indians.

The Indians sought to have the officials enjoined from paying out the trust funds to sectarian schools, but Justice Gould decided against them, hence the appeal.
