

McCARREN OUSTED BY MURPHYITES

"Harmonious" Meeting in New York Throws Senator Pat Out of Boss-ship.

Brooklynite Makes Dire Threats, and Murphy Continues to Smile.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Patrick H. McCarran, the loser of Brooklyn...

Read out of the organization by a vote of 25 to 8, McCarran split the Democratic party open from New York to Buffalo...

Mr. Carnegie wrote that he had made plans to sail for Europe before the date set, but would postpone the trip. Mr. Hill also accepted promptly...

Mr. Bryan's acceptance came with little delay. It is understood that he did not say anything about making a speech, but the White House declines to indicate whether this is attributed to the recent embarrassment which Mr. Bryan experienced by reason of accepting an invitation to dine, and mentioning the subject on which he would talk...

Mr. Cleveland's acceptance is conditioned on the chance that he may have recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to make it advisable for him to make the trip to Washington. He is anxious, however, to come and will if able. It is stated that this will be the first time he has visited the White House since he was President.

President Roosevelt will have some early see a Democratic mayor again. Early today after a tumultuous session of hours the uproar in the convention became almost a riot.

Delegates in Riot. All night there had been more or less uproar, but when Chairman Carmody read off the list of new State delegates in the hall jumped to their feet, yelling at the top of their lungs.

Thirty or forty angry men in the middle aisles bolted down through the surging jam for the stage. Sergeant-at-Arms Watson tried to stem the tide and push them back, but one delegate caught him by the shoulder with one hand and Watson fell off the stage on top of the overturned desk in the pit below.

The riot lasted half an hour. The angry protesters declared that the list of State committeemen read off by Carmody contained the names of men who had been defeated by the delegations.

At the height of the tumult, Chairman Carmody shouted out that there had been a resolution passed giving the convention power to select the State committeemen by general vote. A dozen men cried out: "Liar!" and were rushing again for the stage when police reserves intervened and dragged them back to their seats.

Murphy Still Smiling. Without any semblance of order and without any notion to adjourn, the convention came to an end, with Murphy still smiling, the new Brooklyn delegates whooping it up for Tammany and the up-State men still uttering dire threats as to what they were going to do when they got home.

Under the primary election law the faction securing recognition from the State committee has undisputed control of all the election machinery, and McCarran is thus left helpless.

Immediately after Chairman Bluger had presented the list, Senator McCarran ascended the rostrum to present the report of the minority.

"I want to congratulate the minority of the committee for the labor expended in an effort to arrive at the truth," was McCarran's first shot. "At this time I beg to submit a brief statement of fact."

"I want to say also to the Democrats of New York county that the undertakers in charge of the Democratic party in the State today who are about to enshroud the corpse had better prepare the coffin for the funeral which will follow almost immediately.

McCarran's Threat. "If this is the way you are beginning a majority campaign, you had better prepare for defeat, for there is not a single one of you who ever will see a Democrat elected to that place. I never voted a Republican ticket in my life."

"What about Hughes?" roared a delegate and in an instant the convention was thrown into wild disorder.

While delegates after delegation voted Murphy's name, the serene and confident State Chairman Conners smiled.

Five Foremost Citizens Accept Roosevelt's Dinner Invitation

President Roosevelt's five foremost private citizens are all going to accept his invitation to the hospitality of the White House next month.

The list, which has attracted such wide attention, is composed of Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, James J. Hill, and John Mitchell. All Democrats.

Four of them have sent unqualified acceptances. Mr. Mitchell came to Washington and told the President in person that he would attend the gathering of governors of all the States. The gathering, the first of its kind ever held, will meet May 12 and continue three days.

Mr. Carnegie wrote that he had made plans to sail for Europe before the date set, but would postpone the trip. Mr. Hill also accepted promptly, and will deliver an address.

Mr. Bryan's acceptance came with little delay. It is understood that he did not say anything about making a speech, but the White House declines to indicate whether this is attributed to the recent embarrassment which Mr. Bryan experienced by reason of accepting an invitation to dine, and mentioning the subject on which he would talk, and not to talk.

While delegates after delegation voted Murphy's name, the serene and confident State Chairman Conners smiled.

A solid vote majority report was the result. McCarran arose, his hat on, his overcoat over his arm. Suddenly every man of the ten ousted delegates rose with him and turned their faces toward the door.

The threat to force a fight for a Bryan endorsement by the convention was withdrawn by Norman Mack, national committeeman and Bryan supporter, after the resolution to endorse Bryan was turned down by the committee on resolutions.

Delegates-at-Large. The delegates at large who were named are Lewis Nixon, Charles F. Murphy, Charles Froeb, Alton B. Parker.

Alternates: George H. Thacher, Francis K. Pendleton, Jos. E. Schwartz, William F. Rafferty. Electors at large: Nathan Straus, Wm. H. Fitzpatrick.

EVEN HERE? "What's the man doing at the Congress of Mothers?" "I think he's lobbying for a safety-pin concern."—Exchange.

BRYAN IS NOT ENDORSED, THOUGH HE IS PRESENT

LANSING, Mich., April 16.—William J. Bryan was in town and delivered two speeches, and yet the Democratic State committee, which met here, declined to endorse him as the candidate for President. The committee, by a vote of twelve to eleven, decided that the question of preference should be left to the State convention, which is to be held here on May 28.

The committeemen who opposed his endorsement declared that they were not opposing Bryan's candidacy, but they thought it was in accordance with the principles of the party to leave that question to the State convention. Bryan made a brief address before the students of the Michigan Agricultural College, and then spoke before a large gathering in Baird's Opera House.

Probably, of the thirteen original colonies, the governors will be given precedence in the order in which the States ratified the Constitution; and of the rest of the States, the arrangement as to precedence will be in order of admittance to the Union.

This gathering is expected to be the greatest talkfest in the history of the country. That its business will be completed in the time assigned for it is not suspected by anybody. An adjournment to some later date, with probably some arrangement for the formation of an organization of permanent character, are already contemplated.

Whether to try to steer the gathering, whether it is desirable to prepare a program in advance and expect that it should be followed, was one of the difficult questions. It was compromised by making an outline of a program, but conceding that a good many things would be sure to inject themselves into the proceedings that were not expected, and that these would likely be the most important ones.
