

PRIZES AWARDED IN BABY CONTEST

Judges Have Hard Task Picking Winners at the Luna Park Show.

TWINS A FEATURE OF COMPETITIONS

Six Weeks' Old Daughters of Mr. and Mrs. I. Hanlon Surrounded by Admiring Crowds.

Three hundred chubby baby faces, some wreathed in smiles, some-frowned by frowns, and some supine in indifference, were held up by 300 content mothers to the anxious and admiring gaze of five perspiring judges, and the much anticipated baby show at Luna Park was under way.

By noon yesterday mothers with their precious burdens began to enter the turnstile, determined to be ahead of the appointed hour, 2:30 o'clock. After the show was over and the photographs of the winners were taken about 5 o'clock, a few belated mothers were still arriving, bemoaning the fact that the judges had all gone home.

Show Success. The show was a decided success. Of course, there were disappointments, for as one judge remarked after it was all over, President Roosevelt and his Cabinet had not distributed the seven honors in a way to satisfy 300 mothers and it would have done the heart of the population-loving Executive good, by the way, to have cast his eye over the pavilion at the park yesterday.

Babies everywhere, babies of all ages, sizes, dispositions, and inclinations. A phonographic record of the things that were said and the noises that were turned loose during the three hours the babies were under inspection would have the Caruso and Melba records dumped into the ocean and yelling for the melting pot.

All-day suckers, Teddy bears, fairy tales and bottles were used to keep the little fellows quiet. Sometimes they succeeded, sometimes not. Several of the contestants seemed intent upon disqualifying themselves, being "scratched" from the running, by refusing to stay awake. The coming of the judges probably brought but a sleepy look from one little eye and back to nodland the tot would go again, oblivious to the palpating heart and frantic plea of the mother above him.

Entries Placed in Rows. The babies and their mothers were arranged in two long rows about the sides of the pavilion inclosure, each baby hearing a tag. The judges anticipated making a separate round for each prize, but this plan was soon killed by the anxiety of the mothers themselves.

As soon as the judges would pass by the aspirants, some mother feeling that her baby had not been given a long enough inspection, would leave her seat and follow the luckless arbiters on down the line. By the time the end of the first row was reached the judges were surrounded by a crowd of excited mothers, each holding aloft a little dear which shoved into the face of a fleeing judge would coo delightfully or sputter vindictively. Soon the scene became a perfect sea of miscellaneous babies and it was with difficulty that the management persuaded the mothers to take seats again.

Final Inspection. Fifty of the most promising babies were assembled in the center of the pavilion and the final inspection made for the seven prize winners.

An interested group waited at all times around the mother of twins who had certainly take first honor for being the youngest twins, perhaps ever exhibited at a baby show. These cute little ones, Margaret and Mildred Hanlon, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. I. Hanlon, of 1469 1/2 Twenty-fifth street northwest, were born six weeks old, and really seemed to care so little about the contest that they refused to stay awake for the judges. They slept in while an admiring crowd commented upon their age and beauty.

Judges' Hard Task. Like warriors going to battle did the judges face their task. Men and women who would handle a business deal or a household duty with precision and dispatch, they approached the waiting line of babies with pitiful trepidation. Their nervousness increased apace for every time the judges would halt a moment in front of some "cuddly" baby, its parents' heart would jump immediately to her throat, and she would enter into the life's history of, to her, the prettiest and dearest thing on the grounds.

Pleased With Contest. "We are pleased with the success of the contest, and the interest aroused," said Manager Goodfellow and Baby Show Manager Solan, after it was all over. "The judges selected did their duty, as they saw it, and while all cannot be satisfied the awards seem to meet with general favor."

Those who presided over the destinies of the aspirants were Patrick J. Hallinan, editor News-Herald; Edward P. Schwartz, real estate man; Mrs. James L. Peeney, Mrs. Edward McCormick, and Miss Teller.

TAILORS' EXCHANGE GOING ON PICNIC

An all-day holiday and picnic at a resort near Baltimore, enlivened by a ball game in the afternoon, has been arranged by the Merchant Tailors' Exchange of Washington for July 11. The party will leave Washington on a special car over the electric line and on arriving at Baltimore will be met by a similar organization of the Maryland city and escorted to the picnic grounds. In the afternoon the Washington tailors' ball team will endeavor to regain the pennant won last year by Baltimore.

C. E. Ryder, John J. Costinetti, and J. C. Wineman compose the picnic committee. R. Cranston, formerly a Georgetown college star, George E. Hebbard, and Joseph R. Costinetti are on the baseball team committee.

ALBERT GALLAHER DEAD. CHICAGO, July 1.—Albert Gallaher, the Secret Service man who wrestled the discharged revolver from the hand of McKinley's assassin, Czolgosz, when McKinley was shot, died here yesterday from cancer of the liver. His illness is believed to have been caused by the fact that the crowd present when the President was shot mistook him for the assassin and handled him roughly. He became ill and unfit for duty last October.

SHOOTS FIANCE OF HIS DAUGHTER

Father Kills Young Man at Church Door, Then Surrenders to Sheriff.

COVINGTON, La., July 1.—Emile Sharp, a prominent farmer of the Fifth ward of this parish, went to Jerusalem Baptist Church, about fifteen miles northeast of here, last Sunday, armed with a shotgun. He called Arthur Sharp, a young man, from the crowd, and informed him that he was going to kill him which he did immediately. Sharp died instantly. The slayer claimed that young Sharp had been meddling with his children, and that he had just cause to commit the crime. It has since developed that young Sharp was to have been married to the daughter of the slayer, but the real reason for the killing is not known. Much excitement was created by the tragedy, but no violence was shown to the slayer. He returned to Covington yesterday and surrendered to Sheriff T. E. Brewster. He was placed in jail.

PLANS NEW STAMP FOR SPECIAL MAIL

Postmaster General Wants Public to Use Regulation Postage Except in Emergency Cases.

Postmaster General Meyer is preparing to bring out a special delivery stamp of a new and attractive design, with a view of encouraging the public to make use of the regulation special delivery stamp instead of taking advantage of the rule permitting the use of stamps of other denominations for this purpose. It is said that since the rule was issued granting the privilege to the public in cases of emergency to make use of the ordinary postage stamp to the value of 10 cents as a substitute for the latter are used, which is contrary to what the department desires. A double entry system of bookkeeping was instituted at the Postoffice Department today, in charge of the new accounting section, Bureau of the Third Assistant, and will cover the operations of the postal service as a whole from the standpoint of the department rather than that of the auditor for the Postoffice Department. One purpose of the new division is to evolve a practicable system of analytical bookkeeping to secure statistics covering the various features of the postal service.

WASHINGTON STATUE IS NOW BEING CAST

Bronze Will Show General Sheridan on Horseback—To Be Unveiled in November.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, at his studio, 166 East Thirty-eighth street, has finished the model of the equestrian statue of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan, for which Congress made an appropriation of $50,000. The casting in bronze was begun yesterday and will be finished in about three months. The statue will be unveiled in Washington November 25. This heroic statue is about one and three-quarters larger than life size. It depicts Sheridan at the age when he made his reputation in the civil war. It will be recalled that he was only about thirty-five at the surrender at Appomattox. The moment chosen by the sculptor is when General Sheridan is returning to the field at the Battle of Cedar Creek. He had been defeated that morning by General Early, and as he reins in his horse he turns to his men and shouts to them to go back, which they did. The original equipment used by General Sheridan was lent to Mr. Borglum by the Sheridan family. The statue will be erected in Sheridan circle, in Massachusetts avenue, Washington.

MAYORALTY COUNT PLEASES HEARST

LONDON, July 1.—William Randolph Hearst, speaking of the decision rendered in New York yesterday in the mayoralty recount case, made the following statement: "The result is more than satisfactory to me, and I hope it will sufficiently satisfy the citizens for whom this long and arduous struggle has been carried on. I have said from the beginning that the fight was not to make me mayor, but to secure an honest count of the votes cast by the citizens. "In the face of the enormous and unnecessary difficulties, that count has been secured, and hereafter it will not be possible for election thieves to commit frauds in secrecy and security, behind the barrier of the law."
