

SULTAN'S SOLDIERS MAY BE MOBILIZED

Paris Hears That Turkish Troops Are Being Put on Bulgaria's Frontier.

CONFERENCE STILL IS HANGING FIRE

Negotiators Seem to Be Making Little Progress—Isvolsky Denies Giving Out Plans of Nations.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—War clouds once more are gathering over the Balkans. Today's dispatches from Paris declare that the French government has received official advices of the mobilization of Turkey's Anatolian army corps, a move which would render war practically inevitable, as Bulgaria might naturally be expected to rush troops across the Turkish frontier in order to forestall a general mobilization by Turkey.

Direct reports from Constantinople received up to this hour fail to confirm the Paris report, however, but it is known that Turkey had warned Bulgaria that she must abandon her warlike preparations or retaliatory and protective measures would be resorted to.

The text of Turkey's circular to the powers, complaining of Bulgaria's military activities, which was prepared before the proposed program of the conference was published, contains the following:

"Not to give occasion for acts contrary to humanity, the sublime Porte, while awaiting an equitable decision by the conference, declares that it will abstain from placing the imperial armies on a war footing."

Makes Report Doubtful. In view of this declaration, there is a good deal of doubt expressed as to the truth of the Paris report.

The proposed conference of the powers on the question of the revision of the treaty of Berlin is still hanging fire, but the negotiators seem to make little progress.

In diplomatic circles it is not believed that the visit to Paris of M. Isvolsky, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, will have an important bearing upon the solution of the present Balkan tangle.

The Russian minister conferred with President Fallieres today. It was brought out during M. Isvolsky's visit to the president of France that it is Russia's wish to prepare for possible future contingencies, and to safeguard Boy Enters Rooms of Mrs. Kate L. Reed in Sheridan in Owner's Absence, Scatters Contents and Gets Away With Loot.

The twelve-year-old colored boy who amused himself about a month ago by destroying several hundred dollars' worth of wearing apparel and furniture in different apartment houses in the northwest section of the city, got busy again yesterday afternoon.

When Mrs. Kate L. Reed returned to her apartment in the Sheridan, 1523 Twenty-second street northwest, about 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the rooms looked as if a Kansas cyclone had struck them. Contents of bureau drawers were scattered on the floor, furniture had been turned over, and everything was topsy-turvy.

Wearing apparel, bed clothing, and pillows were saturated with kerosene, and the contents of several jars of jam were smeared on various articles. Flour, breakfast food, and other provisions were thrown on the floor, and many pieces of furniture were broken.

Mrs. Reed telephoned the police of the Third precinct, and several blue-coats were sent around to the apartment. The police learned that the key to Mrs. Reed's apartment had been taken from a letter box in the vestibule during her absence. A colored boy answering the description of the one for whom the police have been her interests should the partition of the near East become a fact.

Denies Telling Program. M. Isvolsky denied today that he had given out the program for the conference of the powers. Nevertheless, it has been confirmed in London that he did impart the information that was to be kept secret until the calling of the conference.

France will, it is expected, use all her influence to prevent Bulgaria going to war with Turkey. When the Turkish circular calling the attention of the powers to Bulgaria's hasty preparations for war was received by the French foreign minister, M. Pichon, a telegram was immediately sent to the French minister at Sofia instructing him to renew his efforts to maintain peace between Turkey and Bulgaria.

GORKY MARRIED.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 17.—If Maxim Gorky again visits New York he will bring with him his "sure enough" wife. The marriage was a secret one, and it was several weeks before the fact leaked out that Gorky was married to Mme. Andreff, the former wife of the noted author, Leonidas Andreff.

country such a multitude streamed in as eclipsed all previous demonstrations. In jinkishas, in carriages and on foot, the nobility and the peasantry came in hordes to see the visible power of the nation which had first unsealed their country and given it the start toward becoming a member in the family of nations. Along every street of the city the crowds pressed to the harbor between almost solid walls of American and Japanese flags intertwined. There were literally miles of banners and about the harbor the buildings were in many cases almost hidden with the profusion of the Stars and Stripes and the Rising Sun of Nippon.

But an even greater scene of movement and color was the bay itself. Literally thousands of craft of all sorts, each and every one gaily bedecked, crowded the wharves, and no sooner were the big American fighters perceived than a general rush of boats was made for the anchorage.

Roar of Welcome.

When the thirty-two warships finally cast anchor in four lines of eight vessels each, their chains rattled out to such a roar of guns, such a bursting of fireworks, such a screaming of sirens and such a storm of shrill bangs as to almost deafen the participants in the welcome as well as the bluecoated jacks in whose honor it was given.

THE CHILDLLOW INSTITUTE OF MILLING AND BAKING TECHNOLOGY.

David Childlow, Director, Ogden Building, 34 Clark Street, Chicago, July 6, 1899.

Messrs. Corby Bros., Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen—In accordance with your instructions to examine and report upon the bread produced at your bakery, and the process employed in its manufacture, I have the honor to report that I visited your bakery at Brightwood Avenue and spent the major portion of three days there, carefully examining and testing the flours, yeasts, and doughs, and critically examining the baked bread. I have no hesitation in declaring that the substances used for the bread are entirely pure and of the finest quality; and the process by which the doughs are prepared are absolutely the most perfect in the world. This arises from the use of special machinery of which you are the inventors and proprietors, which, by making dough insures a baked loaf of ideal texture and grain, readily melting on the tongue, and free from taint and acidity. Some bread was sent to the institute for analysis, which was made by Prof. G. L. Teller, who has charge of the chemical division, and who reports the following: (See opposite side of cut.)

Corby's Mother's Bread:

	Bread.	Calculated to Dry Matter.
Moisture	36.78
Mineral Salts	1.50	2.37
Proteids	7.38	11.68
Fat	2.90	4.59
Carbohydrates (by difference)	51.44	81.36

From a consideration of the above facts, I conclude that the bread is the more readily digested because of its accessibility to the digestive juices. The flavor is also increased by retarding the souring agents of fermentation by the very full oxygenation to which the dough is subjected. As the moisture was determined four days after the bread was baked, it proved the bread retains its moisture for a much longer period than is usual.

Respectfully yours, DAVID CHILDLLOW,
Director of the Childlow Institute of Milling and Baking Technology, Chicago.
