

10. GREGG'S GIBBS' ELEPHANT

Frelate in Charge of Ceremonies Which Make Father Mackin Monsignor.

Turning to the vast congregation that filled the church, Cardinal Gibbins reviewed his associations with Father Mackin. "He is now Monsignor Mackin," said the cardinal, "and that title will always reflect the great trust that the Holy Father put in him when he made him member of his household."

All Knew Him Well. "You know him well, and there is little need for me to impress these things upon you. You all know his loving heart and his ready hands. How many ways held out to you, and in this beautiful big edifice were twice, nay three times, as large as it is, it would not even then be adequate to accommodate all who wish him well today and always. I pray that he may be spared to you many years more."

Day of Thanks Observed By All Churches in City

Thanksgiving services were participated in today by practically every religious congregation in the city. Some of the smaller churches united their congregations for the large attendance in all made the observance of the day more general than in other years.

A general service was held by the congregations of the Marvin and Ryland Methodist Episcopal Churches, and of the Wesleyan Methodist Episcopal Church, all attending service at the Sixth Presbyterian Church. The sermon was preached by Rev. S. K. Cockrell, of Marvin Church.

Four other churches in Capitol Hill united in service at the Eastern Presbyterian Church. The Rev. W. T. Russell, of Keller Memorial Lutheran Church, preaching the special Thanksgiving sermon. It was a very impressive service.

Other union services were those of the United Methodist Episcopal Church at All Souls' Unitarian Church; the Southern Methodist churches of the city at Mt. Vernon Place Church, where the pastor, the Rev. W. V. P. Russell, preached; at the Central Union Mission, where services for the homeless were held after the Roman Catholic churches there were special musical programs and Thanksgiving sermons by the pastors.

At St. Joseph's Church the prayer for the President and the country was composed by the late Archbishop Hughes, of New York, was said by Father Fealy, who celebrated mass. Elaborate musical services were held at the St. Aloysius Church, where Father Eugene McDermott, of Gonzaga College, sang the mass. Full choir gave the program of special Thanksgiving music.

A Dominican father celebrated mass, and preached to the old soldiers at 3 o'clock this morning at the Old Soldiers chapel. Reports in the Church of the Immaculate Conception prevented elaborate services, and low mass was said there. German Lutheran held special services at St. Mary's. The church was beautifully decorated, and special music was presented by the organ and choir.

Baptist Churches Unite In Thanksgiving Service

Representatives from practically every Baptist congregation in the District gathered this morning at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H streets northwest, for the union Thanksgiving service of that denomination. On the platform were ministers representing nearly all the Baptist churches in this city.

The Rev. E. H. Swem, of Second Baptist Church, preached the Thanksgiving Day sermon, as he has done in the past. "The Things of God Knoweth No Man, But the Spirit of God," 1 Corinthians, 13:1.

"No gratitude is true," said the Rev. Swem, "without some outward expression of the joy for blessings received that must pour forth from the heart of every one of you this morning. It is not to be expected that every one will be thankful after a Presidential election. But thank God, for the long list of blessings, and the wide field for future activity. If you can't wield the Big Stick in America, you can use a gun in Africa."

Merciful and Just. "Remember His mercy to the just and unjust alike. Let us give praise for His love. May all that is within us praise Him—praise Him with our bodies and with our minds. The more reverently we use our minds, the more we will realize the patience, mercy, and love of God."

Thanksgiving is the remembrance of great benefit. If we forget God's benefits to us, we are guilty of great ingratitude to Him. The whole book of Deuteronomy is a warning not to forget "when ye have eaten and are full forget not to give thanks."

Parish Newly Honored. "We think of many benefits today, but I think that we especially think of the honor that has come to the parish of St. Paul's through the election of your rector to the bishopric of the diocese of Washington. Although I feel only the great responsibility, yet I am truly glad the honor has come to this parish, where you have worked so hard and faithfully."

No Wedding Bells Today For This Colored Man

"Ah never did know just what her real name is," Burrell Burrell told Judge Mulvey, in speaking of his lady love, who he was to wed on Thanksgiving Day.

"Ah been keeping company now wid her fur near five weeks, now, and Ah'm well acquainted wid her, Judge." But the wedding did not come off today, for Burrell went "down" to make time for working a game of billiards. He needs some money to make the final payment on his wedding suit, and his method of getting the money was not approved by the court.

ROOSEVELT IS ORATOR A COLORED FUNCTION

The ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone of the Colored Young Men's Christian Association building this afternoon will be an event of great importance in the history of the race in this community. With President Roosevelt as the principal orator of the occasion; with Cabinet members, Congressmen, and Senators present, the occasion will be made notable by the gathering of a great number of representative citizens of both races.

Dinner will be served at 6 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. for girls who are away from their homes. The annual donation party and ball for St. Joseph's Orphan Asylum will be held tonight in Convention Hall.

SUNDAY SCHOOL IS ADDRESSED BY BISHOP

The Rt. Rev. Alfred Harding, LL. D., bishop-elect of the diocese of Washington, addressed the children of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, at a special Thanksgiving service yesterday afternoon. This was the first annual visit of the new bishop to the Church of the Ascension.

Everything connected with the children's services was typical of the Thanksgiving season. The cleaned and altar was decorated with autumn leaves, fruits and flowers, and the chancel posts were adorned with large cornucopias filled with various kinds of domestic and foreign fruits, pumpkins, corn, and other field products were scattered about the chancel.

The services began with a procession of the children, led by the Rev. E. Kramer. Each child carried some offering in the way of groceries, such as turkey, cranberry sauce, and bread. The offering was placed in a basket, and when the offering was placed in the basket, the children were given a special Thanksgiving prayer.

Fog Keeps Many Americans Away From Their Turkey

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—More than 2,000 American citizens, who confidently expected to eat their Thanksgiving dinners at their homes on American soil, were grievously disappointed today because of the continuation of the worst fog that has visited New York in twelve years.

These 2,000 were first-class passengers on ten ocean liners held outside Sandy Hook. Besides the 2,000 first-class passengers there were about 3,000 third-class passengers, most of whom had heard of the great American holiday.

Board of Education Has Much to Be Thankful For

Thanksgiving was anticipated by the Board of Education, at its meeting yesterday afternoon, through a minute recital of the things for which the board ought to be grateful, made by President James F. Oyster.

He said he was thankful for the good health of the board members; for the present good conditions; the faithful improvement of the teachers; the gradual improvement in our equipment; that we finally had twenty-five years accumulation of refuse removed in 100 wagons after eighteen months of effort, and as tomorrow is Thanksgiving, I think we ought to express those sentiments.

The board endorsed Captain Oyster's sentiments. A. T. Stuart was instructed to investigate the demolition of Samuel E. Keyes after Mrs. Church Terrell presented his appeal to the board for a hearing, covering that he had not been heard in the matter.

Falling plaster in one of the rooms in the school building, after a letter from the principal. One boy was struck by the plaster. The repairs have been made. One teacher, Wood, who was graduated last year with the rank of "fair," was ordered recorded in the "good" group. Assistant Superintendent H. A. Wood reported that her grade was twenty-three, and that a careless principal was responsible for the mistake.

A prize of $25 for the best essay on some "Hero of the civil war" by a public school pupil, was offered by the United Daughters of the Confederacy and was accepted by the board. Red Cross stamps were ordered put on sale to express school wherever the principals cared to handle them. A gift of $25 was accepted to buy Christmas trees for the school.

A change in the date of meetings was ordered by the board in order to have the payrolls approved for the auditor at 10 o'clock on the 26th. After January 1, 1909, the board will meet on the first and third Wednesdays of the month, except on the second and fourth, as now.

The address of President Roosevelt has been delayed until near the conclusion of the exercises, and the large audience will of course wait the words of the Executive. Commissioner Marland will introduce Mr. Roosevelt. The new Y. M. C. A. building, when completed will be 63x135 feet, and will be largely fireproof, being reinforced with concrete and the floors throughout, and will contain bowling and billiard rooms, athletic appliances, shower Turkish, and plunge baths, etc. It will be a religious and social features that mark the Y. M. C. A. The work of raising the needed funds for the construction of this building has been going on for five years, receiving its impetus in the fall of 1906, by a gift from John D. Rockefeller of $25,000 on condition that the Y. M. C. A. be organized, paying in like amount by payments, as far as similar payments are reported collected. Ten thousand dollars of his subscription has been paid.
