

RAYNER, FOR PEOPLE, HITS ALDRICH BILL

Maryland Senator Declares Tariff Measure as Planned Is Not Legal.

ADVISES MINORITY TO ACT UNWAIVED

Insists Democrats Have Nothing to Gain by Acting With Insurgent Republicans.

"I stand for the unprotected people against protected monopoly. Not protection for American industries, but protection to the American consumer; that is the catchword that I would confide with."

Such is the position of Senator Rayner of Maryland as stated by himself in a speech today in the Senate. He opposed the alliance between the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans suggested by Senator Newlands, and declared that in his judgment the Democrats had better "go it alone."

"So far as I am concerned," he said, "in voting with the insurgents all the time, and they are all men of unflinching courage, but there is no doubt about the fact that, with the single exception of the Senator from Wisconsin, we have not heard a positive statement as to the willingness of any one of them to vote against the bill when it is finally perfected. Every time we vote with them we are defeated, and then after we vote upon the last item, they expect to support the whole bill with all of their amendments voted down, while I intend to vote against the bill when it is amended, and the amendments have been adopted. My own judgment, therefore, is that we had better go it alone."

Any Such Bill Wrong.

Senator Rayner contended that any bill purporting to raise revenues, which imposed duties intended to be prohibitive, was unconstitutional. He would never believe, he said, that Congress had the power to levy prohibitive duties, but the insurgent Republicans believed that it had that power. If the pending tariff bill were to declare upon its face that any of the duties which it imposed were prohibitive and that they were levied with that intent, the act would be unconstitutional pro tanto. He did not hold that a protective duty levied upon a revenue basis was unconstitutional.

Doctrine Not Obsolete.

"Do not tell me that I am reviving an obsolete doctrine, because I tell you that the point that I am now making has never yet been presented to the courts. The courts have always avoided deciding it, because the legislation before them has always concealed the intent of the law-making power. The courts have always said they could not tell whether or not the act will raise revenue, because upon its face it does not say so."

Perpetrating Fraud.

"Why not?" "Simply because we are perpetrating a fraud upon Congress, upon the Constitution, and upon the Supreme Court of the United States in concealing the legislative motive from the legislative measure. This bill, under the guise of collecting revenue places a prohibitive duty upon hundreds of articles of importation, and if it expressed this purpose upon its face, it would be unconstitutional. I have sent to the desk to be read, it would be unquestionably prohibited. It is for this reason, Mr. President, that I am against the entire bill, and against any bill that levies prohibitive duties."

Earlier in his speech, referring to Senator Aldrich's statement that an attack upon the woolen and cotton schedules of the bill would be the very citadel of protection, Mr. Rayner poked a lot of fun at the Republicans and the divisions existing among them.

Never," said he, "was a citadel in such a state of tumult and commotion, as the pictured Senator Aldrich, with his warriors, upon the upper floor while the din and clatter were on the floors beneath, where the insurgents and were trying to undermine the foundations of the structure."

Gives Names To Each.

He described Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, who is a doctor, as the "surgeon of the post," and Senator Smart of Utah, who is an apostle of the Mormon Church, as "the chaplain of the garrison, holding daily his morning, midday, and afternoon revivals."

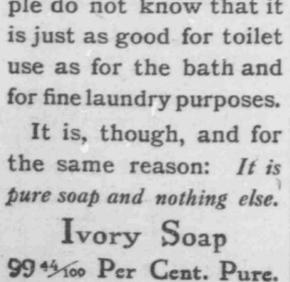

He ridiculed Senator Root for his attempt to absolve Aldrich from any responsibility for any paragraph of the

BISCHOFF FUNERAL WILL BE TOMORROW

Services Over Body of Noted Composer Will Be Held in Church.

DETAILS NOT YET READY TO ANNOUNCE

"Blind Organist of Washington" Will Be Missed by Hundreds of Friends and Pupils.

In the church at whose organ he had presided for more than a third of a century and where thousands have been charmed by his music, the funeral of Dr. John W. Bischoff, "the blind organist of Washington," will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Rev. Samuel H. Woodrow, pastor of the church, will officiate, and there will be in attendance scores of the pupils of the noted composer and hundreds who have loved him for his affliction, his sweet character, and his music since he cast his lot in the Capital.

The funeral arrangements, other than the decision that the last rites will be held in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets, have not been perfected.

The end came to the blind musician at eight o'clock yesterday morning and was as peaceful and as tranquil as his life had been. As expressed, in substance, by one who pays him tribute in the Times today, his sightless eyes merely closed to open on a world where darkness is unknown and his soul fled into the beyond as tranquilly as if he had died in the distance the last lingering notes of one of his heart-felt compositions.

Dr. Bischoff, who was a noted singer as well as a composer and organist, has published more than one hundred and fifty pieces. Among his best known songs, all typical of the deep, sincere nature of the man and breathing something of the life of a shut-in that he was, are "Good Night, Sweet Dreams," "Unanswered," and "Bob O'Link." Two of his best compositions, typical of the bill which had been left unchanged from the way in which the House had passed it. Referring to Root as being consistently writing and firing, Dr. Bischoff said that Beveridge of Indiana was always doing the same thing, although, he confessed, that he did not know what it was all about.

"I do not know," said Rayner, "whether he is in the citadel trying to get out, or whether he is outside of the citadel trying to get in. He seems to be on the friendliest economical footing with the House, and he is outside of the citadel because whenever a schedule is reached the two Senators seem to be embracing each other; and then, a moment afterwards, the Senator from Indiana comes to shake his gory locks at the Senator from Rhode Island."

Is Not a Seance.

"I will not call this a seance, because I want to be polite. But what is it? Is it a comedy or tragedy, for we know the world is a stage and all of its people actors?"

Rayner referred to Dolliver's speech on the woolen schedule as being the greatest act performed either inside or outside the citadel.

"I have seen," he said, "the Senate and the House held for hours upon great constitutional and governmental questions by men of eloquence and power, but any man who can throw his position in the woolen schedule and schedules and captivate the Senate for two days by the charms of his oratory and the sparkling humor of his remarks deserves the admiration of posterity. It was a great and dazzling feat that the Senator from Iowa undertook. It was an intellectual athletic achievement that has hardly ever been equaled upon the floor of this chamber."

In conclusion Rayner held out the hope to the Democrats that if they would but stand by their convictions, the citadel of protection would yet fall and the partnership between the protected interests and the Government of the United States be forever dissolved.

AUTO JUMPS ROAD; SIX ARE INJURED

Accident in Motor Contest May Prove Fatal to One Victim.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 31.—During the running of the short hill climb contest held at Easton, Conn., today, an Isotta car, owned by J. H. Tyson, of Stamford, Conn., and driven by C. C. Ethridge, left the road and crashed into a crowd of spectators, injuring one man fatally and five others seriously.

The accident was caused by the Isotta car hitting a rock in the roadway at the "S" turning, the automobile swerved, and before Ethridge could regain control, plunged through the crowd.

Herbert Potter, a Bridgeport business man, was pinned against a stone wall by the machine. His skull was fractured, and left leg broken. Joseph Gorman, both legs broken; Joseph Spittler, secretary of the Hartman Brewing Company, both legs broken; William Reiling, left leg broken; Herbert Loomis, treasurer Hartman Brewing Company, back and shoulders hurt.

spirit of the end that was so rapidly approaching, had just come from the publisher. They were "The Journey's End" and "At Evening."

Dr. Bischoff had been totally blind since the age of two years and was sixty at the time of his death.

He had been twice married, his second wife, who survives him, being Mrs. E. Bond Bischoff, formerly Miss Elsie Bohl, a pupil of the composer. He leaves two children, in addition to Chester, of New York, and John Bischoff, of Denver, both of whom have arrived in the city.

Dr. Bischoff studied at the Wisconsin Institute for the Blind and finished his education abroad. Of late years he taught voice and music at a Normal Seminary in this city, in addition to his duties at the First Congregational Church.

ARSHIP HIGTREE, EDSS ZEPPELIN TRIP

German Aviator's Balloon Sets New Record by Forty-Hour Flight.

While asked his opinion of the ultimate success of the dirigible type of airship, Mr. Wright said: "I have made little study of the dirigible and have no opinion to give. We are busy with our own machine and realize that our success lies in what we accomplish with it and not in giving our attention to the work of other aeronauts. Anyhow, my opinion on Count Zeppelin's work is worth nothing. It is doing things that count, not making theories about it, and ahead with our work and let the facts show for themselves."

Average Speed Good. It is estimated that the airship averaged twenty-two and one half miles an hour, and as it was in the air forty hours and fifteen minutes, this would make the distance traveled a little over 900 miles.

Zeppelin's previous record for continuous flight was thirteen hours and twenty minutes, and for distance traveled 160 miles. The Gross airship, with which the government is also experimenting in a military way, had stayed aloft thirteen hours and two minutes.

The local telegraph office is swamped with messages that have poured in from all over Europe, making inquiries about the flight and as to whether the count was injured. The Kaiser was among those who telegraphed congratulations. Neither Zeppelin nor any of those who were with him were injured in the least.

After the accident Zeppelin made the following statement: "The mishap proves nothing as to the feasibility of aerial navigation. Science Still Young. The science is still in its infancy, and each breakdown teaches us lessons from which we will profit in the future. It was the same way when railways came into use. Look how many centuries passed before sailing vessels developed into steamships. Aeronautics is undergoing a similar development, though I am certain the development will be more rapid. Such trivial accidents as that today cannot discourage us."

It is not known just what objective Zeppelin had in mind when he began his memorable flight. He was expected to attain a flight to Berlin and the greater part of the population of the capital, including the Kaiser and many of the nobility, remained up to welcome him. For some cause not explained, the airship, however, did not reach when he reached Bitterfeld, some 65 miles southwest of Berlin, and began the return trip.

He said the trolleyman put the white man off at St. Elmo, but he did not remember seeing the negro. Mr. Smith was then excused, and Mr. Boothe said that at twenty minutes past one he went to court that Gardner had also been on the train that night. He said Mr. Boothe had been sent for. The court declared a recess until Mr. Boothe should arrive.

Mr. Brent declared Mr. Boothe had seen both the white man and the negro, and he would settle the question as to whether or not they were Schultz and Henry Smith.

In the meantime Mr. Machen said he had no objection to the jury trying to reach a verdict, and they fled from the courtroom, while Mr. Machen hurried out to the witnesses to offset the damaging testimony of today.

Damaging to Defense.

The most damaging evidence to the defense was offered by Hillman Bayless, of Fairfax county, who had been summoned to the court house by Judge Barley at the request of the jury. Mr. Bayless said that at twenty minutes after 4 o'clock of May 8 he saw Schultz near Masonic Temple in Alexandria. He identified a newspaper photograph of Schultz as that of the man who had been on the train that night in the direction to Masonic Temple and that the artist took a snapshot of the building. The jury then went out to deliberate.

ALEXANDER CALVERT, With Columbia Players.

The part of Fritz in "Prince Chap," which opens at the Columbia this evening, will be played by Alexander Calvert. Mr. Calvert's work with the Columbia Players has already stamped him as a capable actor. "Prince Chap" is a refreshing comedy, and should add to the laurels of the Columbia Players, for few plays of recent years is better endowed with the elements to make it popular than is this beautiful production, which held the attention of the New Yorkers for an entire year, and then took to the road for two more. The management announces that the selection of the play was made primarily for the reason that it will afford exceptional opportunities for Orme Caldara and the Columbia patrons. Mr. Caldara's role in "Prince Chap" is a star part of the first magnitude. It runs the gamut of expression. A good stage lover is always a favorite, and Mr. Caldara is heralded as pre-eminent in this line of work.

exercises were held under the direction of John A. Logan Post, G. A. R., assisted by Lincoln Camp, Sons of Veterans. The exercises were held at 10 o'clock this morning. The music at part of the program was contributed by the band of St. Elizabeth's, and the song-choirs of St. Elizabeth's and the Anacostia M. E. Church. Commander A. B. Friedman of Logan Post, presided, and Dr. William A. White made an address welcoming the veterans to the reservation. James H. Dony read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and the Rev. N. H. Miller pronounced the benediction. The graves of the soldiers buried at St. Elizabeth were decorated by a committee, of which Mrs. Ida Ferguson was the head.

The G. A. R., Spanish War Veterans, and Sons of Veterans combined in the exercises at Glenwood and Mt. Oliver. Delegations from George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R.; Richard Harding Camp, U. S. W. V., and "Lions" Camp, I. O. O. F., were in attendance, and services were under the charge of Senior Vice Commander L. B. Thatcher, of George H. Thomas Post. The delegations formed a procession at the Northeast Temple at 7 o'clock this morning, and marched to Mt. Oliver, where the graves were decorated. Brief exercises were held, and the veterans moved to Glenwood, where the reading of "assembly" 9-30 brought a large audience to the Cemetery Chapel. Department Commander Joseph Langham presided, and the Gettysburg address was read by Edward A. Keeler. Former Senator John M. Thurston of Nebraska was orator of the day, and made an appeal for a more general observance of Memorial Day as the day of national retrospection. The decoration of the graves was under the charge of a committee of ladies, headed by Miss Mary Honn.

Oak Hill Exercises. The tall shaft erected in memory of John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home," formed the background of the natural amphitheater in which the exercises at Oak Hill cemetery were held this morning at 10:30 o'clock. The committee in charge included representatives of George L. Morris Post, No. 19, G. A. R., and George W. Dewey Camp, No. 7, U. S. W. V., Commander R. E. Duvall of Morris Post presided and the exercises burg address was read by R. L. Haycock. A pretty feature of the exercises was the attendance of the boys from the Industrial Home School with their excellent band, which furnished the music for the day's program.

The same organizations that attended the exercises at Oak Hill Cemetery were in charge at Holy Road, which were held an hour earlier than those at Oak Hill. The colored organizations were in charge of the ceremonies at Harmony Cemetery, of a most elaborate character. Representatives of the G. A. R., U. S. W. V., S. of V., and W. R. C. were in attendance. The procession started from True Reformers' Hall at 9:30 o'clock this morning and included the First Separate Battalion, D. C. N. 4, headed by the National Guard band, and the members of the G. A. R. and other organizations that cared to march. The procession started at Harmony address and the orator of the day was the Rev. B. F. Watson, secretary of the A. M. E. church.

At Battleground Cemetery.

Services at the graves of the soldiers at the Battleground Cemetery, Georgia avenue, will be held this afternoon at 2:30 p. m., and will be of an elaborate character. The "Soldiers' Home" band will furnish the music and Capt. Newton M. Brooks, past department commander G. A. R., will be in charge of the exercises.

William Wallace Brown, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, will be the orator of the day, and addresses will also be made by W. V. Cox, Edgar C. Snyder, Louis P. Shumaker, Barry Bulkie, and Judge James H. Blount. A feature of the exercises will be the singing by a chorus made up of school children from the Parkworth, Takoma, Brightwood, and Brightwood Park schools, under the direction of the National Guard band. A salute will be fired at the beginning of the exercises by a detachment from the Third Regiment of Field Artillery, stationed at Fort Myer.
