

CALL TO AMBUSH IS SOUNDED AGAIN IN KENTUCKY WILDS

Breathitt Feudists Take Winchester From Unaccustomed Resting Places.

SHOT AT CALLAHAN STIRS BATTLE FIRE

His Recovery Expected to Reopen Bloody Feud About "City of Sudden Death."

By THEODORE H. TILLER.
An eagle-eyed Kentucky mountaineer, a rifle across his lap, sat in the early dawn behind a convenient crag 500 feet up the mountain side—his gaze intent upon the valley home of Ed Callahan below.

Behind him, his Winchester nestling in the fork of a sycamore tree, stood another resolute native of the hills. In front of each, with cold-hearted deliberateness, a few interfering bushes had been cut away that, through the narrow aperture, an unobstructed focus on their intended victim's store door might be had.

They were waiting, waiting, these two feudists, for the usual before-sunrise appearance in his doorway of Callahan, one of the greatest feud leaders of them all, and the head of the hated opposing clan.

"He's a little late gittin' out this mornin'," drawled the one, fingering his rifle half nervously. "He'll be a comin' out soon, then we'll git him," responded the other. And then, in silence, they resumed their watch.

Victim Appears In the Door.

Before the sun was up to catch the glint of the rifles, Ed Callahan stepped to the store door, half opened it, and began to sweep the steps. A shot, two, three, four, five rang out. At the first report Callahan staggered back into his store. His wife, broom in hand also, rushed out the doorway and shaking her fist hysterically at the unseen assassins, cried:

"What have you got against me that you'd try to kill me, too?"

Then she ran into the house and brought her husband's rifle, and Callahan, with a bullet hole three inches below the heart, sat on a barrel and waited for the expected second attack.

A half hour later a mountain doctor came and found him there.

The episode marked the reopening of the feuds that for a decade past have given Breathitt county, Ky., the name of "The Dark and Bloody Ground," and Jackson, its county seat, the name of "The City of Sudden Death."

Pierced By Bullet Callahan Will Recover.
For Callahan is going to recover, even though a .38 caliber steel Winchester bullet passed entirely through his body, and Callahan's recovery, so he admitted to me, means that he still must continue to be a marked man. Members of the Smith-Deaton clan say they "guess they are marked now, too."

Just yesterday the special jury summoned to investigate the ambushing of the former "high sheriff" of Breathitt county and staunch ally of the late "Geddy" Jim Hargis, of feud fame, failed to return an indictment against Levi Johnson and "Lish" Smith, of the Smith-Deaton faction. This special jury recommended that the regular jury continue the investigations in the fall, be-

H. M. MILLER WINS BIG SOCIABILITY RUN

In Thomas Taxi, Goes It in 54:13 4-5, Against 54:07 Set by Vice President.

ELECTRIC MACHINES SHOW THEIR METTLE

John Bartrem, Second; R. P. Andrews, Third—Event Free From Serious Mishap.

By HARRY WARD.

The official secret time selected by Vice President Sherman for The Times Sociability Run to Great Falls was fifty-four minutes and seven seconds.

The winner was H. M. Miller, who drove a Thomas taxicab over the 16.3-mile course in 54:13 4-5, just six-and-four-fifths seconds ahead of Mr. Sherman's time.

Miller drove his car with consummate skill and when it was announced that he was the winner there was a rousing cheer from the hundreds of motorists who had congregated in front of the Munsey Building to hear the returns.

Mr. Miller not only won the handsome silver loving cup offered by The Times, but also the imported Bangkok lid given by Parker, Bridget & Co., as a special prize to the contestant who nearest approached the time named by the Vice President.

Miller is the envy of all his associates and had he been a millionaire owner of a costly-touring car, the congratulations he received could not have been more hearty.

Second honors went to John Bartrem, who piloted a Baker electric over the course in 54:24 2-5 or seventeen-and-two-fifths seconds ahead of the official time.

Bartrem's achievement was a notable

LONGWORTH'S WIFE IS AGAIN AN AUNT

CINCINNATI, June 20.—Alice Roosevelt Longworth will be told today that she is again an aunt. She will learn of this when a message from Cincinnati reaches her telling that a son was born this morning to Mrs. B. C. Wallingford, a sister of Congressman Nick Longworth, the message reads:
"Alice's godson, Nick, was born last night. Mother and babe doing nicely."

It was stated at the Wallingford home, in the exclusive Grandin road section of this city this morning, that the baby's name will be Nicholas Longworth Wallingford, and that he weighed ten pounds at birth.

GIRL LED TO ALTAR, FATHER IS IN CELL

Arrest of Cashier Moore Does Not Halt Daughter's Wedding.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 20.—While her father, Steven A. Moore, cashier of the People's Bank at Benbow City, Ill., was held in his cell here today, pending charges of fraudulent banking, his daughter, Miss Laurette Moore, was led to the altar and became the bride of Harry Hall, a contractor.

The wedding was set for this noon and Mr. Moore was to have given his daughter away. Yesterday he was arrested in the investigation of the People's Bank and he did not witness his daughter's marriage. The ceremony, however, was not delayed. The father's part was omitted and in the presence of those gathered in the church, Father Shields, of St. Matthew's Church, performed the ceremony.

Moore was cashier of the bank and as it was about to fail told a story of being held up and robbed by masked men. The robbery took place in the daytime. Only four dollars was left in the bank.

He confessed, when arrested, that the bank was not robbed and said others directed him to put up this story to cover frauds which he detailed.

LOSS IS $100,000 IN CINCINNATI FIRE

Power Plant and Box Factory of Glass Company Burned to Ground.

CINCINNATI, June 20.—Fire starting this morning destroyed the power plant and box factory of the Charles Boldt Glass Company in the eastern part of the city.

The loss is estimated at $100,000, fully covered with insurance.

MRS. MYRTLE PLATT TO WED IS RUMOR

DETROIT, June 20.—Mrs. Myrtle Platt, of Chicago, mentioned in the divorce suit brought against Col. William F. Tucker, is in this city at the home of the Rev. William S. Sayres, 133 Willis avenue west. It is rumored that she is about to marry a Detroit man, and this is not denied.

Mrs. Tucker charged that her husband did not support her although, she alleged, he traveled about the country for his health with Mrs. Platt as a nurse. The bill declared that the army man met the nurse in the Philippines, where she was teaching, and took her with him to Mt. Clemens, Chicago, and throughout the West.

CROWDS AWAIT WORD FROM BALLOON TOUR

No Message From Couple Who Are Taking Aerial Honeymoon—Trip Arranged by Charles J. Glidden and Excites Wide Attention.

PITTSFIELD, MASS., June 20.—Hundreds of people are gathered at the Aero Club this morning waiting for some word or message from Roger Noble Burnham and his young wife, who started their matrimonial life by a honeymoon in a balloon.

Floating through cloudland in the balloon Pittsfield at 12:40 o'clock this morning, Roger Noble Burnham and his bride, who was Eleanor Howard Waring, the author, both of Brookline, Mass., began an aerial honeymoon, an incident unique even in aeronautical history, while fully 5,000 persons sent up their shouts of good will and happiness into the dark night.

No word has yet been heard from the young couple or from Pilot Van Sleet, who had charge of the balloon. The occupants promised as soon as they landed that they would telephone to the Aero Club, and a large

HOME OF A PRIEST WRECKED BY BOMB

Attack on House and Sunday School Follows Black Hand Trouble.

NEWARK, N. J., June 20.—A dynamite bomb which was placed at the door of St. Rocco's Sunday School early this morning practically destroyed the building.

This followed Black Hand letters that have been received by the pastor, the Rev. Father James Zuccarelli, and it is thought the bomb was exploded in an effort to assassinate him, as he was shot at recently in the street.

The Sunday School adjoins St. Rocco's Church. It is a two-story brick building, the upper floor being occupied as a rectory. Until a few days ago Father Zuccarelli slept in a room on the upper floor facing the street, but with the advent of the warm weather he moved to a room in the rear.

At 3 o'clock this morning he was hurled from his bed by a crash that rocked the building. He hastened down stairs and found the front wall torn out and nearly every window in the place broken. When the police arrived they discovered that two bombs had been placed at the door, but that only one had exploded. The fuse of the other had gone out. It was found to be made of dynamite placed in a tin can. No arrests have yet been made.

Had Much Trouble.
Father Zuccarelli has been having trouble with his brother-in-law, Salvatore Musumese, for some time. Recently Musumese fired three shots at the priest in the street, but his aim was bad and he missed. He was arrested and found guilty and is now waiting sentence.

Musumese is an undertaker and lived adjoining the church on the opposite side from the Sunday school. He did not get along with the priest, and when he was arrested in connection with some Black Hand outrages in the vicinity of the church, Father Zuccarelli was called as a witness.

While the priest was on the stand Musumese cried, "He is an assassin." Father Zuccarelli began suit for slander and the following day Musumese saw him on the street near the church, whipped out a revolver and shot three times without effect.

TIMES DISCOVERS IMPORTANT CLUE IN SIGEL MYSTERY

Letter to Missing Chinaman Found at National Hotel.

MAY GIVE NEW TRACE OF ALLEGED SLAYER

Envelope Bears Name on Back of Sam Wing, New York, as Apparent Sender.

One of the most important clues that has been placed in the hands of the Washington police in their efforts to trace the actions in this city of Leung Ling, alias William L. Leon, the Chinaman accused of the murder of Elsie Sigel, of New York city, was furnished Inspector Boardman, chief of detectives, early this morning by The Times through the discovery at the National Hotel of a special delivery letter addressed to the missing Chinaman, from Sam Wing, of New York city.

The letter was mailed at 6 p. m. June 11, and reached the National Hotel the same evening.

Address on Letter.
"Mr. William Lone, care of G. F. Schutt, National Hotel, Washington, D. C." is the address on this important letter, while the name of the apparent sender is written on the back as "Mr. Sam Wing, 85 Bayard street, New York city."

A number of Chinese characters preceded the name of Wing.

The day clerk of the hotel refused to give up the letter.

It was called for by the postoffice authorities after application had been made by the police.

Other Developments.

Other important developments in the murder mystery unearthed today by reporters for The Times follow:

Leon and a Chinese companion telephoned to New York city late last Wednesday night from the Fritz Reuter Hotel, near Chinatown district.

An unknown Chinaman telephoned to New York from the National Hotel Thursday night.

Leon and a girl took an automobile ride for two hours with Joe Torrillo, a National Hotel chauffeur, June 9, and went to the depot with the same chauffeur June 12.

The accused Chinaman, with a white girl hanging on his arm, were seen near the Capitol about a week ago.

No direct evidence as to whether Ling stopped at the National Hotel has been disclosed.

Leon told Joe Torrillo, the chauffeur who drove him to the Union Station when he left the city, that he had already sent his trunk to the train.

Wore Different Clothes.

The chauffeur who took the couple riding declares the Chinaman wore a light suit of clothes; the telegraph operator who saw him the same evening declares he wore a black suit.

Leung told the chauffeur at the depot that he had sent his trunk to the station. The hotel authorities do not know of any trunk being received for the Chinaman or sent out at his order.

The evidence of the men who took notice of the presence of the Chinaman and the woman in Washington is somewhat conflicting. Time has passed since they saw the couple and none of them can positively identify the pictures of the accused man which have been shown them. Particular notice of the couple was taken only because of curiosity at the unusual sight of a pretty white girl accompanying a Chinaman and acting as though she were attached to him.

Joe Torrillo, the chauffeur who holds forth at the National Hotel, had as good an opportunity of seeing them and remembering them as any one in the city, but he declared this morning that he could not swear that the man who rode with him was the man in the picture.

"Looks Like Him."

"It looks like him all right," said Joe. "He wore a light suit of clothes and talked good English. While they were riding with me for two hours and a half, I did not hear much that was said. They appeared to be spooning some in the back of the automobile, but that is so common on such 'joy rides' that I paid little attention to it."

"When I took them to the train two days later, the Chinaman told me he had already sent his trunk down. He did not say from what hotel he had sent it."

The conflict of the stories at the Na-
