MURDER AROUSES DECISION PENDING MARYLAND TOWN ON CLUB BUILDING

Posse Searching for Persons Who Killed Mother and Son.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 23.—Aided by bloodhounds, a posse is today searching the countryside for the persons believed to have murdered Mrs. Edward Reid and her son, Croker, and then burned the bodies in the fire that destroyed the Reid home, near Medley.

Neighbors, attracted by the flames, rushed to the scene, only to find portions of the two charred bodies when the fire had been extinguished. The son's bloodstained hat was found in the barn, and it is believed he was attacked there and his body carried into the house. A hammer was found on the floor near one of the bodies.

The board of governors of the Washington Country Club will not decide until Monday night which of the four designs submitted for a clubhouse to cost $50,000 it wants.

No decision was reached at the meeting of the board Monday afternoon. J. M. Stoddard, of the building committee, said this morning that the definite recommendation of that committee regarding the adoption of one of the designs would be accepted or rejected by the board Monday night.

AERO CLUB HEAD SCORES WRIGHTS

than he has expected once before. The spectators thought that he was up about 150 feet. While on this voyage Mr. Wright made one remarkably small circle, which his passenger thought was just about as sharp as could be made.

The fourth flight began at 5:25. Lieutenant Lamm going up for the second time.

Mr. Wright performed no noteworthy stunt on this trip, but stayed up even and a half minutes. The next flight, which the professor made alone, began at 5:25, and lasted twelve and a half minutes. It was on this flight that Mr. Wright cut some surprising figures and took a shot at their rival, the Curtiss course.

With the exception of one or two occasions at Fort Myer, the Wrights have operated their machines in this country in the directions of the hands of the clock, turning always to the left. Before the Fort Myer Orville cut one or two figure eights, but after that accident he went back to the old straight-away clock-wise flying. With this morning showed that he, too, can do some annual stunts when he turned the biplane to the right and made it fly counterclockwise. Apparently it is just as easy one way as the other.

Mr. Wright and Lieutenants Lamm, Fougler and Humphreys were the guests this afternoon at a reception and luncheon given by the president and trustees of the Maryland Agricultural College, which is about a mile from the aviation field.

Spectators Take Warning. The few spectators, who were on the field today, evidently have taken to heart the warning that they must not cross in front of the flying machine.

During some of the evening flights the spectators have insisted upon crossing the field while Mr. Wright was flying. Last night in particular several visitors walked across while the machine was in the air. There were not enough soldiers detailed at the field to police it effectually, so that the officers have made an order that hereafter no one may cross while the biplane is in motion. Hereafter spectators will have to remain along the borders of the field or if they do cross to the shed they will have to stay there until Mr. Wright comes down.

One of Mr. Wright's callers this morning was A. Lawrence Roth, professor of meteorology at Fair Harbor, who is interested in the scientific investigation of the atmosphere. Prof. Roth had seen flights in Europe, but had not witnessed the deft performances of Prof. Wright.

TIMES WANT ADS BRING RESULTS

BOYS WILL SHOOT FOR TIMES TROPHY Rivalry Among School Marksmen Is Already Being Shown.

The desire of the schools to secure The Times Trophy, which is being offered to the school winning the junior marksmen's tournament, November 6, promises to bring out every available marksman enrolled in the public schools. It is the first outdoor tournament ever planned in this country for its school boys and the offer of beautiful trophies and substantial badges for the winners has added to the interest immensely.

Every high school in the District, and many of the other schools, will send delegations to the match, with instructions to bring back The Times Trophy. The Times had planned to give medals to the winners in the contest, but this plan was changed, and the trophy substituted, for the reason that the winners will receive medals from the national board.

The Times Cup will be a handsome addition to the trophies of any school in the District. To be retained permanently it must be won three times by a marksman from the same school, not necessarily in succession.

In order to make the interest of the school authorities felt in the match November 6, Assistant Superintendent M. H. Hays has ordered the principal of each school represented to be present at the match on that day or send one of his teachers.

The tournament has been made possible through the courtesy of the United States Marine Corps which has agreed to furnish about $200 worth of ammunition along with the guns that are to be used in the match.

Junior marksmen's medals will be given by the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice to all boys between the ages of nine and eighteen who make the necessary scores. Every boy in the District between those ages will be permitted to enter the contest November 6. Besides the medals there is a gold medal which is to go to the boy making the highest score, while he will carry with him for his school the handsome trophy of The Washington Times.
