

STATUE UNVEILED IN HALL OF FAME

Memory of Gen. Lew Wallace Honored by Many Notables.

The same time give some suggestion of the services rendered the country. At the conclusion of Mr. Woods' address Lew Wallace, Jr., a bright little chap of two or three years, stepped to the base of the marble and with a quick jerk loosened the ribbons which bound a huge American flag about the statue, and the figure of General Wallace, modelled on heroic lines, was revealed.

The Statue.

The figure represents Wallace standing tense and alert. He is clothed in the uniform of a major general in the United States Army, the coat open at the throat, the body thrown forward on the right foot, head erect, and eyes seeming to flash—an attitude that was frequently assumed by General Wallace in public addresses, and which was regarded as typical of his whole character. The statue is seven feet in height and stands on a base of Indiana limestone that is four feet high.

Gov. Thomas N. Marshall accepted the statue on behalf of the people of his State. He briefly reviewed the services of General Wallace to the State of Indiana, and the reasons why he should stand with Governor Morton as the representative of Indiana in the grouping of the nation's heroes. The governor's address furnished the theme for the poem recited by James Whitcomb Riley, the poet laureate of Hoosierdom, for many years an intimate friend of General Wallace and his companion in travel.

The debt the world owes Wallace furnished the theme of the address of Senator Beveridge.

A. Rustem Bey, charge d'affaires of the Turkish embassy, made a brief speech in which he said he had been commanded by his imperial master to attend the ceremonies today and bear witness to the love and reverence felt for the name of Wallace in the Ottoman Empire. William H. Andrews, Delegate in Congress from New Mexico, made the closing address, paying tribute to Wallace as a leader of men. The exercises were brought to a close with a benediction by the Rev. Lloyd Douglas, pastor of the Luther Memorial Church.

Senate Acceptance.

The Senate at tomorrow's session will formally accept the statue on behalf of the United States, and a number of commemorative addresses will be delivered. Governor Marshall and other distinguished Indians who attended the Senate session.

Until this morning Indiana had but one representative in Statuary Hall—the war governor of Indiana, Oliver P. Morton. It was deemed fitting by the people of Indiana, speaking through its Legislature, that General Wallace should be the other representative from that State and share the immortality with the war governor and distinguished Senator. In 1898 the sum of $3,000 was appropriated by the Legislature for a statue of General Wallace, after a spirited contest, in which ex-President Benjamin Harrison and ex-Governor and former Senator Thomas A. Hendricks were the names considered along with that of General Wallace.

Governor Hanley, acting under the act of the Legislature of the State, appointed a commission to select the artist to make the statue and to decide the details of the work.

The commission selected the design prepared by Andrew O'Connor, an American sculptor living in Paris. The statue was delivered to Captain McGrew and set up in the Capitol December 27.

Reception This Evening.

Governor Marshall and the members of his official party, together with Poel Riley and the members of the Indiana delegation in Congress, will be the guests of the Indiana Society of the District at a reception to be given this evening at the Arlington Hotel. During the course of the evening Richard Pinner, the Indiana man now playing the part of "Ben-Hur," in the play of that name at the National Theater, will appear in costume and recite the "Chariot Race."

Last night the distinguished Hoosiers were the guests of the local Indians at a theater party. Governor Marshall and the members of the Wallace family occupied a box with Mr. Riley, and there were two hundred members of the society in the party.

MADRIZ MANEUVERS AROUSE SUSPICION

Wily Scheme to Save Zelaya Thought to Underlie Protestations.

The adroit maneuverings of President Madriz to please the United States by punishing somebody for the execution of the Americans, Groce and Cannon, and at the same time to clear Zelaya from any responsibility in the outrage, leads to the conclusion that the successor to the dictator is playing a wily game to save the scalp of Zelaya.

So far he has not met with success in securing recognition from Secretary Knox, and there is no probability that he will, as his former political career is such as to cast suspicion on the sincerity of all his actions.

The truth of the matter is that Zelaya is making a desperate attempt to save his neck, as is shown by the light of present events. It is inevitable that the United States will demand of the Nicaraguan government, as soon as one is established, the punishment of those who were guilty of the murder of the two Americans. If Zelaya is guilty Secretary Knox can not be likely to mince words in his demand.

The Nicaraguan constitution provides for the trial of the President for his crimes. It is not unlikely that not only this, but many others, numerous enough to make the records of the ancient barbaric kings pale by comparison, can be laid at his door. It is believed that no nation of the world would hesitate to deliver Zelaya over to his country for trial and punishment for these enormities.

President Madriz, therefore, will probably not succeed in placating Secretary Knox and saving his former chief. Zelaya may go where he will for the present, but ultimately he will be brought back to pay the penalty for his reign of terror.

Awakened by an unusual noise in her bedroom shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, Mrs. L. M. McCoy, of 254 Thirteenth street northwest, discovered a negro ransacking the closet. Mrs. McCoy screamed, and the negro, who was in his stocking feet, ran downstairs and escaped.

The thief carried away a hand bag in which there was about $3 in bills and change and three checks drawn by L. M. McCoy. The handbag was one in which but for some reason she put her jewelry in a bureau drawer last night.

GREEK SITUATION REACHING CRISIS

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.—Several members of the royal family of Greece, fearful of the political unrest now prevalent in Greece, have arrived in St. Petersburg, and are now the guests of Russian notables. It has not yet been learned just who compose the party.

The flight of members of his family is believed here to indicate the early abdication of King George, which has been forecast for months. The strife between the King and the Military League, which is virtually running the affairs of Greece, is becoming daily more acute, and is said to be responsible for members of the royal household seeking an asylum in Russia.

BURKETT IS SCORED BY STATE LEADERS

Number of Nebraska Republicans Indorse Insurgents in Call for Meeting.

LINCOLN, Neb., Jan. 11.—Indorsing the insurgents in Congress, and characterizing Senator Burkett as a man "whose policy in the United States Senate ought to be condemned by the people," thirty Republicans, most of them local leaders, have issued a call for a State meeting next week to form a permanent organization.

Burkett was denounced as 51 per cent standpat and 49 per cent progressive, and it was predicted that if he were left unopposed, Bryan or some other Democrat would be elected next fall.

SPARTAN FATHER PROSECUTES SONS

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 11.—The conduct of Policeman G. T. Reese in appearing as prosecuting witness against his two sons, charged with burglary, is the topic of general conversation in Atlanta this morning.

"The policeman arrested the boys himself" and brought them into court. He told the judge he had tried to raise them right and that it almost broke his heart when he found them trying to burglarize a store last Friday evening. He felt it his duty to the State to prosecute them. In passing sentence Judge Ross took occasion to commend the officer and compare him to the old Roman judge who convicted his own son.

E-M-F "30" Flanders "20"

These cars which have been the chief topic of discussion in motoring circles of late and the wonder of the automobile industry since their inception, are this week the sensation of the Madison Square Garden Automobile Show, New York.

They are exhibited on the main floor just at your right as you enter the main garden. Being the largest individual manufacturers in the licensed association we had our choice of position and chose the space just beyond the stairs on right.

E-M-F "30" is shown in five passenger touring car and stripped chassis.

Flanders "20" is shown in runabout, suburban and racy roadster models, also stripped chassis. The racy roadster which sells for $790 was a surprise reserved for the show.

Various parts such as crank-shafts, cylinders, gears, clutches and axles are exhibited to show quality of materials and workmanship. These will be a revelation to you if you have thought a cheap car must be cheaply made. This is the first appearance of Flanders "20" at any show. Look it over carefully—then you will realize why this car is first choice of buyers and the despair of competitors.

Those thousands of agents and dealers who have written us about this line during the last four weeks can here see these cars. You owe it to yourself to see them. You can also learn here whether your territory is still open.
