

PAULHAN RECEIVES CHECK FOR $50,000

Acclaimed Hero at Luncheon of English Scientists and Sportsmen.

LORD NORTHCLIFFE OFFERS NEW PRIZE

French Victor in Aerial Race With Englishman White Pledges Money for Aviation.

LONDON, April 29.—Louis Paulhan today received the reward of his marvelous flight of 186 miles from London to Manchester.

At a gala luncheon at the Hotel Savoy, attended by many scientists as well as the foremost sportsmen of Great Britain, the $50,000 donated by Lord Northcliffe, was presented to him in a gold check.

Lord Northcliffe, unable to attend the luncheon, announced through a representative that he offers another prize of $50,000 to aviators.

"It is not that," laughed Paulhan, smiling at White.

But Paulhan had not the center of the stage to himself, nor did he attempt to pre-empt it. Graham White, the English victor in flying, who bravely attempted to wrest supremacy from the Frenchman, is dear to the hearts of England, it is plain, in spite of his defeat. White was as much the lion of the occasion as Paulhan, and each aviator lauded the other as much as the guests praised both.

Reward for White.

The Aero Club's public subscription for a testimonial to White bids fair to produce a prize well worth the winning, besides the hundred guinea cup given as a consolation prize by Lord Northcliffe.

Mrs. Paulhan, the pretty wife of the man who but a few years ago was a circus clown, received the guests prior to the luncheon. Her vivacity and beauty won the guests completely.

For all the former sportsman, the luncheon was an affair of jollity and enthusiasm. When Paulhan received the fortune that is his reward for a flight of 186 miles, a din of deafening applause burst out.

The Frenchman declared that he would put the money to use in developing the science of aviation. In his speech of acceptance he was repeatedly interrupted by the din of cheering.

After declaring that the generosity of the English, and particularly the donor of the $50,000 prize, had done much to further the cause of aviation, Paulhan burst into praise of the sporting qualities of England.

Praises Sportsmanship.

"You are a nation of sportsmen," he cried. "Though I was a foreigner, competing with a man of your own nation for the most important prize yet offered, I met with such treatment at every turn that my heart went out to your country. Had the Paulhans come from France with William the Conqueror instead of by the Dover packet, I could not have received more kindnesses."

When Paulhan formally made his announcement that the $50,000 would be put to the furtherance of progress in aviation, he was greeted with a storm of applause, and the cheering continued.

"Every pound of it," he said, waving the check, "will contribute to advancement."

The Duke of Argyll presided. The gold box containing the check was presented by M. Cambon, the French ambassador, in the absence of Lord Northcliffe, who was unable to attend because of illness. In behalf of Lord Northcliffe, Editor Marlow of the Daily Mail, which Northcliffe owns, then offered the second prize of $50,000.

White's Future Plans.

White took the occasion to announce his future plans. "I will make another try at the London to Manchester flight," he said, "within a short time. I intend to cover the distance without a single stop."

He announced that the funds he will receive from the public testimonial subscription would be used to organize a London to Paris flight. This distance is 200 miles. Paulhan has already intimated that he would essay a trip from Paris to London with but one stop.

Paulhan, in French, said, "I wish you success."

AERO CLUB PLANS AVIATION CIRCUIT

National Convention May Arrange Series of Meets Throughout America.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Plans are being completed today for the meeting here May 23 of delegates to the national aviation convention, at which the time and place for holding the international aviation meet will be determined.

To stimulate interest in the international meeting, it is probable that a grand circuit of aviation meetings will be held for two months prior to the big event, which will probably begin October 22.

The board of governors of the Aero Club of America, has decided to leave the matter to the delegates from all the affiliated aero clubs. Among these are the Aero Club of America, which is the recognized American representative of the International Aeronautic Federation; and those of California, New England, Canton, Ohio; Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Indiana, Colorado, Buffalo, Pittsfield, Dayton, Kansas City, Harvard University, Peoria, Ill.; Michigan, Milwaukee, Utah, and Argentina, South America.

The grand circuit proposed will probably cover the entire country for two months, taking in the Eastern and Western States as well as the East.

The place for holding the international meeting will be fixed when it is learned what facilities various cities have to offer and the amount of money that will be guaranteed for prizes.

GEORGETOWN HAS TWO SMALL FIRES

Furnace Starts One and Burning Rubbish Causes the Other.

WASHINGTON TIMES BUREAU, GEORGETOWN, D. C., APRIL 29.

The fire department responded to two local alarms yesterday, and in neither case did the damage amount to much. No. 5 responded to a local alarm in the barber shop of George Harper, at 3208 M street, the blaze being caused by burning paper in the yard. Later No. 11 responded to a call for a blaze at 26 J Garfield street, owned and occupied by A. R. Townsend. The fire originated from a hot furnace fire, which ignited a pile of wood packed near the heater. The damage was trivial.

The Holy Name Society, of St. Stephen's church, will attend the 6 o'clock mass tomorrow morning, which will be read for the organization. The regular monthly meeting will be held in the evening, after the regular service in the church.

At Our Lady of Victory Church, New Cut and Conduit roads, the beautiful service of the forty hours were commenced at 11 o'clock, with a solemn high mass.

The annual election for mayor and councilmen in the little village of Glen Cove will be held Monday evening, from 5 to 7 o'clock. The list of candidates for the office has not been completed, as candidates can announce themselves up to Monday morning, when the ballots will be printed.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel O'Connor have returned to the city and taken up their residence at 332 Prospect avenue. The couple left town Wednesday morning, and were married at St. Peter's church, Jersey City, N. J., by the Rev. James J. O'Connor, S. J., a brother of the groom. Mrs. O'Connor was formerly Miss Mary E. Southey, of 13 Thirty-fifth street. The marriage was a surprise to the friends of the couple.

William Hutchins, formerly postmaster at Georgetown, who has been quite ill, is at Norfolk, Va., visiting friends and relatives, and he expects to remain for several weeks or longer.

Oscar Thorne, of Prospect avenue, who, with another companion, was arrested for stealing a quantity of plates from the Mackall residence, on Twenty-ninth street, was yesterday sentenced to the reform school during his minority by Judge Delaney.

BATTALIONS OF HEROES FOR CHICAGO MIDWAY

Lorado Taft's Avenue of Fame to Be Lined With Bronze Busts of Famous Men of All Nations and Ages—Except Americans.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Shades of Brunelleschi, Thucydides, and Pindar! Chicago is to have culture at any cost of local prejudice and provincial hero worship. Recommendations have been made for ninety statues to line Lorado Taft's great avenue of fame along the Midway, and in deference to patriotic sentiments, the American flag and other considerations, three Americans are included in the list—a concession which should satisfy the most determinedly popular taste, its proposers believe.

The mile-long pleasure, of which Mr. Taft has dreamed, will be lined with companies and battalions of bronze heroes of all ages and a score of races if Mr. Taft accepts the proposal. There will be sixteen great men of classical Greece in the company, which is intended as an allegorical representation of the big university through whose campus the avenue runs. Rath-er, it is intended as a reproach that an educational institution so great as the University of Chicago should pay so little attention to classical culture.

David is to lead the battalion of poets picked along the avenue of fame, according to the recommendations made, and Archimedes will bear the banner of the company of discoverers. Sophocles will head the playwrights, and Boccaccio will be in the van of the writers of fiction. Socrates will head the battalion of philosophers, and the prophets will be led by Moses. A separate company will be made up of miscellaneous famous Greeks, while painters, architects, and musical composers will complete the ranks of the famous that are to gaze at each across the proposed canal.

As to Lincoln, Washington, Daniel Webster, and Theodore Roosevelt, of course, people who cannot see beyond the confines of their own narrow fatherland and age. At any rate, what are crossing the Delaware and chopping down a cherry tree compared with the accomplishments of a Bramante or an Ictinus? Or what is "lying to Hagen" or even splitting rails when placed beside the wonders wrought by a Brunelleschi?

It is apparent that Vox Populi must either agree or expose his ignorance.

Chicago will be proud, cultured, and not bound by any narrow national prejudice Emerson, and Hawthorne, and Walt Whitman are among the heroes, and Chicago and all America should be gratified.

The men who have been selected—for there are no women considered—are as follows: The prophets—Moses, Confucius, Zoroaster, Buddha, Christ, Mohammed, St. Paul and Luther.

The poets—David, Homer, Pindar, Virgil, Dante, Petrarch, Chaucer, Milton, Emerson, Whitman, Victor Hugo and Goethe.

Playwrights—Sophocles, Euripides, Aeschylus, Aristophanes, Shakespeare, Miller, Corneille, Racine, Schiller and Lessing.

Novelists—Boccaccio, Cervantes, Rabelais, Voltaire, Rousseau, Balzac, Turgenev, Tolstoy, Scott and Hawthorne.

Philosophers—Socrates, Plato, Aristotle, Descartes, Spinoza and Kant.

Discoverers—Archimedes, Euclid, Copernicus, Galileo, Columbus, Newton and Darwin.

Faithfuls—Giotto, Da Vinci, Titian, Raphael, Tintoretto, Veronese, Holbein, Velasquez, Rubens, Rembrandt, Hals and Millet.

Greek leaders—Herodotus, Thucydides, Tacitus, Demosthenes and Cicero.

Sculptors—Phidias, Praxiteles, Scopas, Donatello and Michelangelo.

Architects—Ictinus, Brunelleschi and Bramante.

Musical composers—Palestrina, Bach, Handel, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Wagner, Brahms and Tchaikowsky.

According to Lorado Taft's plan, there is to be a large canal down the center of the Midway, to be spanned by three ornamental bridges, with a fountain at each end of the mile-long avenue. The statues, which are to be of bronze, are to be placed among the trees on the outside of the canal. The sculptor has frequently said that the consummation of the plan is closer to his heart than any other undertaking and he has already made designs for much of the work. He is at present engaged in making a design of the Midway as he would have it look, which is to be used in a student comic opera to be given at the University of Chicago.
