

REASON WHY TOD BY SUFFRAGETTE

Sylvia Pankhurst Gives Excuse for Militant Methods in Interrupting Parliament.

Sylvia Pankhurst—suffragette. She admits it. She does not want any euphemistic toning to that title. She is proud of it. She told an audience at the Columbia Theater this morning just why?

Clad in a Grecian gown, the twenty-year-old English girl, with some of the "shrieking sisterhood" as caused parliament considerable embarrassment, told why she adopted militant methods. She says she doesn't mind being laughed at, because all great martyrs were ridiculed, and she advertises her lecturing tour on large posters: "Sylvia Pankhurst, Suffragette, from an English Prison."

Grandmothers Were Suffragettes. "Our mothers and grandmothers were suffragettes," she said. "They held their meetings and sent their petitions by post. But no one had heard much about them. That's why militant methods were needed. We got down our history books and found that in 1870, when certain men wanted a hearing they sacked towers, tore bignons, and members of parliament from their carriages, committed murder, and did awful things."

Women Must Get "Pull." "Laws," she explained, "are for people who don't know enough how to be good." In order to get their rights, Miss Pankhurst thinks women must have more "pull," and then women will be as well paid as men. I don't know how it is in your country, but over in England there are more of us, so they think we are cheap.

Bill's Amendment. The teacher asked the little boy his name. "Bill," replied the lad. "You mustn't say 'Bill,'" explained the teacher. "You must say 'William.'" Then she asked the next little boy his name, and he piped up good and loud, "Billions."—Lewiston Journal.

The Indian's Need. "Then you think the Indian doesn't need civilization?" "Certainly not. With his blankets and headwraps, his leopards look like the prettiest cozy corner now. All the Indian needs is a claring glass."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TAFT SURE TO CALL AN EXTRA SESSION

Congress Must Vote on Reciprocity Treaty or Come Back—President Alarmed Over the Outlook—Told of Plan.

(Continued from First Page.) were talking extra session today. The situation is this: The progressives are anxious to defeat Lorimer. They cannot muster the votes to do it now, but they can do it after March 4, when the new Senators come in.

To Avoid Reciprocity Vote. They want to carry the resolution for direct election of Senators. They have a comfortable majority now, but the necessary two-thirds majority. After March 4, with the new Senators sworn in, they will be so close to a two-thirds majority that the decision either way will lie with one or two Senators.

How Progressives Reason. The progressives reason thus: "The President is going to give us an extra session, anyhow, to consider reciprocity. We stand to be defeated on that issue. But there are other issues on which we stand to lose before March 4 and to win afterward. Why should we not put off this entire series of lights till the new Congress, when we can win on three and lose on one?"

One Cause of the Strain. One of the developments which have caused increased strain in the relations between the progressives and the White House, is the feeling voiced by some of the former, that there has been something like a combination between the Administration and the Lorimer faction, with the purpose of living up to the Lorimer people for reciprocity, and in doing so, including the Administration Senators to take a fairly low view of the claims of Lorimer to his seat.

Dillingham Wants Vindication. Senator Dillingham of Vermont, who is a member of the Elections Committee, signed the pro-Lorimer report, and wants it adopted as a vindication of himself. His colleague is Senator Page, who, by all accounts, would like to vote against Lorimer, being convinced that his duty lies in that action. But Senator Dillingham has begged him not to do so, because if they divide on such an issue it will force attention in Vermont to the injury of Dillingham. Accordingly, because of these urgencies, it is now expected that Senator Page will vote for Lorimer.

This ceremony is planned to take place in May.

Question of Filibuster. At the next forty-eight hours will develop, so far as the Senate is concerned, whether anything like a filibuster is to be undertaken with the purpose of forcing the postoffice bill, the Lorimer vote, direct election of Senators and the Currier reciprocity bill over to the extra session. The insurgents thus far are appraising the situation and the outlook.

Committee Continues Reciprocity Hearings. Hearings on the reciprocity agreement continued this morning before the Senate Finance Committee. The hearings were not concluded and were resumed at 5 o'clock this afternoon.
