"Seventh Street District" Described as Particularly Bad.

(Continued from First Page.) than by going up and down Seventi street as I have. I know that the conditions there at night on Seventh street became so terrible on account of the large number of saloons that special policemen were put there for the purpose of breaking up the gatherings. They gathered around there, drunken men and women, and it was almost impossible, so they told me—it came to me officially through the trial of cases in the Police Court—that it was almost impossible for a decent man after 9 o'clock at night to go up and down Seventh street on account of the drunken crowds that were in front of those saloons from N street north to P street, and in that neighborhood. I have had hundreds brought in for obstructing the streets there. cemen were put there for the purstructing the streets there.

have had hundreds brought in for obstructing the streets there.

Harry Robinson, a motorman on one of the Seventh street lines, testified:

"I have been a motorman on the street cars for twenty-two years, and I have studied these conditions on Seventh street, because I live on the corner of Seventh and T streets, and, like the gentleman who spoke here the other morning in regard to schools, I have stood on the cars many times and thought pityingly of the children who have to pass going to school.

"I am the father of two boys, and, as I gay. I live at Seventh and T streets. I observed the conditions, and they were such before we had the mile-limit zone that my wife would not venture out after lark around the locality known as Seventh and T streets or beyond Florida avenue.

"I do not tell you this as being biased against the liquor traffic. I have made clustrations in my work and the accidents that have happened in my time as a motorman, eight out of every ten have here, caused by drunken men running after the cars and getting hurt in that way.

I have counted the saloons there, and I have counted the saloons there, and night after night it is the same thing. These good gentlemen on the other side give you all these facts on the daylight side of it. Gentlemen, I see these things from 5 o'clock in the morning until 3 o'clock in the afternoon in one month, and from 3 o'clock in the afternoon to 2 o'clock the next morning. I see the conditions as they are. Nighttime Conditions.

Mrs. H. C. Rugg, formerly of the Associated Charities, said in part:

'In my capacity as a worker I was obliged to sign certificates for free medical treatment at the Eastern Dispensary. I always looked on Monday for a crop of people that would come out suffering from stab wounds, cuts through their clothes, if they did not go into their persons and injure them severely. And there were contusions from brickbats and blackened eyes and free-for-all fights. They did not always come out, but they came out so frequently that I knew, although the fights did not take place in the saloons, because Captain Daly's men keep good order there, that they were the result of ilquor drinking there, and I have also seen liquor saloons put right at the mouth of the alleys. Under such conditions as these there must be a strong correlative analogy in relation to the local merchants who depend largely upon the great army of Government servants for the promo-tion of business interests, and, if the tion of business interests, and, if the tenure of office of these people is to have the statutory limit as proposed, common sense points out to us that pursestrings will be tightened, strict economy practiced, and funds that should be in circulation will find their way into savings banks ready for get away-day. No comment is necessary as to what effect this would have on the mercantile affairs of our city. We are heartily in sympathy with the movement you have started, and we are glad of the opportunity of add-ing our protest to any attempt tending ing our protest to any attempt tending to curtail the chances of the clerks or that may hazard the welfare of our community. JACKSON BROS., INC.

Unrest Would Affect All Lines of Business.

To the Editor of THE TIMES: I cannot believe that Congress will pass legislation fixing the tenure of office for Government clerks at five years. We read and like to speak of our times as the most enlightened and progressive in the world's history. This movement is certainly a retrograde one. As a lifelong resident of this city. I remember so well the conditions which remember so well the conditions which prevailed before the civil service rules were in force. The unrest, the uncertainty, the haunting fear of removal rested heavily upon thousands of our best citizens. Our merchants, too, at every change of administration curtailed credit and the same unrest affected husiness generally.

The question I should like to ask is why five years? If an individual is incompetent, why let him or her remain five months, on five days? If prove efficient, are they not they prove all the end of five years than any new appointee can possibly be?

This legislation should not pass. Certainly some other solution of the problem can be had. BYRON S. ADAMS.

Enactment of the Law Would Be Most Unfortunate For Washington.

to the Editor of THE TIMES: Speaking only for myself I would re gard the enactment into law of the lve-year tenure bill as most unfortunate

I heartly concur in The Times' view that everybody should join in an effort to impress upon Congress the undesirability of the proposed legislation.

Capital Would Be Turned Into a Camping Ground For Temporary Employes.

o the Editor of THE TIMES: With public spirited organizations, like the Chamber of Commerce and other combined forces, it seems almost absurd for any one small individual to protest against anything in the form of protest against anything in the form of a Congressional measure. However, The Times is a live paper, and ought to know what will have the desired effect in checking up undesirable legislation. Washington is today a much more beautiful city than it was thirty years back, when the streets were full of office seekers, who spent their savings while waiting for jobs that never materialized. The civil service has been a good thing for those of us who are mostly dependent on the Government employe for what is to be had in the employe for what is to be had in the line of business. If the department clerk loses his posi-

If the department clerk loses his position it means that he leaves Washington; there is nothing else for him to do. If there is a specific time when he may lose his tob, he will become more cautious as the time draws near, and so all business would suffer in proportion. It seems as though the Congress of the United States would be more considerate than to make a law which would virtually turn the Capital City of the nation into a camping round for 15.00 temporary employes. If this is what is meant by the five-year tenure hill which was editorially discussed in The Times, May 16, all resident Washingtonians should unite in an effort to squelch it.

I. P. BOYCE.

The Everlasting Change Would Cost Heavily in Efficiency.

To the Editor of THE TIMES: My experience, as an employer, is hat it requires at least one year to train an employe into the details of the office, and at least three years to become competent to fill all the needs

What competent man would devote the best years of his life to a position that unfits him for any other, and would take the chance of being thrown out of office, after five of the best years of his life had been devoted to its service? Who are the best Congressmen? Those who have served one term or those who have given their entire life to the study of the country's legislations? Who of the country's legislations? Who make the most competent employes? Those who have served one to five years or those who have been twentyive years in the service? These are some points for your con-sideration, Mr. Congressman. HENRY BREWOOD.

Manchester Ship Canal Eighteen Years Old

Eighteen years ago the Manchester ship canal was opened for commerce. The big ditch cost $109,000,000, nine milllons more than the Suez canal. One hundred and eight years ago the first of great national cemeteries. Pere La Chaise, was opened in Paris. The great English cemetery at Woking. Surrey, was not opened until 1855, and it was five-year tenure bill as most unfortunate for the city of Washington. Its effect would be to make shifting and transient a large proportion of our population, which under present conditions of the confessor of Louis IV, who was the head of the great Jesuit order. which under present conditions of reasonable permanency of official tenure are home buyers, and therefore an important and desirable element of our citizenship. Trained employes are essential to the successful conduct of any business and this, it seems to me, applies as much to the affairs of the Federal Government as to private concerns and to my mind the best service cannot in Paris.

PLANS AND HOLDS

Monday Evening Organization to Carry Out Its Work During Year.

A program for next year's work will be formulated at a meeting of the executive committee of the Monday Evening Club, June 3. The committee will consider also plans for raising funds for carrying on the work of the organization. A report on this subject is to be submitted at the next meeting of the club, October 21.

The annual meeting of the club was neld at the Y. M. C. A. Building last night. Officers for the year and chairmen of committees were elected as follows: The Rev. John Van Schaick, ir. president; F. L. Siddons, vice president; Dr. William C. Gwynne, recording secretary; Mrs. Ella Henderson West, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Edna K. Busbee, treasurer: executive committee. Charles F. Nesbit, chairman; the Rev. William J. Kerby, George S. Wilson and Walter S. Ufford; chairmen of committees, Thomas Jesse Jones, improved housing; O. E. Darnall, probation and parole; William H. Baldwin, "loan shark" bill; Dr. George M. Kober, Infant mortality; Myron Jones, industrial betterment; M. E. Gates, physical walfare of school children, and sical welfare of school children, and Dr. William C. Woodward, social and moral prophylaxis.

become competent to fill all the needs of the position.

The everlasting change that would probably result should the five-year tenure bill pass Congress would not only cost the Government heavily for the continual training of new clerks, but the efficiency of the service would be affected.

What competent man would devote the best years of his life to a position that unfits him for any other, and would take the chance of being thrown out of office, after five of the best years of his life to a service?

Monotion of Dr. George M. Kober, chairman of the committee on infant mortality, the corresponding secretary was directed to convey to George M. Indorsement was given of the plans of the "clean-up" committee and it was decided to appoint a representa-tive of the club to affiliate with the permanent organization which will hold its first meeting in the District building, at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon. The club adjourned to meet the third Monday in October.

South Wales Miners Oppose Decisions

LONDON, May 21.—The miners fed-eration met today to discuss with the district boards the decisions of the various minimum scale decisions throughout the coal fields. There is much dissatisfaction with these decisions, especially in south Wales, where they have been invariably against the men. It was believed certain the government would be appealed to for further legislation to reorganize the boards.
