

GUARDSMEN OBJECT TO HIGH PRICES CHARGED VISITORS

Brigade Headquarters Is Asked to Change Site of Annual Camp.

(Continued from First Page.) men didn't want to go back to actual work. But they have the consolation of knowing that the hot wave will disappear with nightfall, a characteristic of the climate here, as it turns cold in the setting of the sun. All morning long the men have worked and sweated in the hot sun, and when 11 o'clock came and they were told that there would be nothing further for them to do except police a hundred-acre field where they encamped, a wave of shouts rose from the entire brigade.

Fabric boxes and papers in which yesterday's thousands of lunches brought to the camp ground by the visitors covered the entire parade ground and were blown into the camp of the guardsmen. These have been cleared from an untidy field covered with wrapping paper, newspaper, tin cans, and battered tin cups, and bottles, and jam glasses. The reservation within half an hour was as spick and span as the original area.

The women of the Hilltop House, including scores of relatives and friends of the officers of the guard encamped here and who are to be entertained at a dinner tomorrow night. Invitations to every officer of the guard to be in attendance are being sent out this afternoon.

Concert Precedes Ball. The ball will follow a special concert to be given by the band of the First Infantry in honor of Col. Joseph Garrard, in command of this camp, at his headquarters tomorrow night. The concert will be begun at 7 o'clock and will last till 8:30 o'clock.

Tonight the men will be given copies of the following menus, showing them what will be given them for the last two meals of tomorrow: Dinner—Roast beef, baked potatoes, corn on the cob, tomatoes, bread, and coffee. Supper—Bean soup, cold roast beef, boiled rice, stock gravy, bread pudding, bread, butter, and coffee.

Early this morning couriers carrying little sections of maps were dashing from Camp Ordway in all directions. This afternoon the returned, dust-begrimed and tired, but with a verified and tested set of maps to be used in the morning. The maps are to be gradually extended until the grand finale next week, when the big brigade will be divided into opposing armies and will fire imaginary bullets and shrapnel at each other.

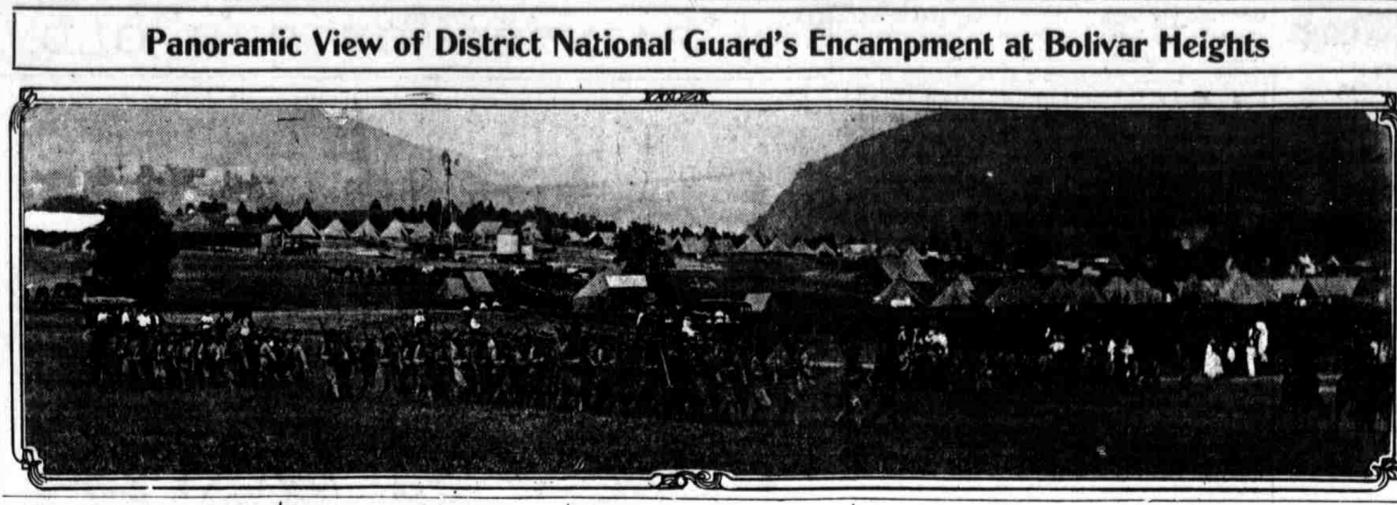

The Preliminary Work. More attention has been paid to this preliminary work leading up to this spectacular finish of the maneuvers this year than ever before. Col. Charles H. Curran, Col. William E. Harvey, and Major C. Fred Cook, representing the brigadier general, as well as Col. A. L. Parmerter, the adjutant general of the guard, quickly adopted the suggestions of Col. Joseph Garrard, the commanding officer, regarding this preliminary work, and the results have been startling. The men in some way, have taken more interest in their work, and the officers have found them to be better qualified than in previous years. The movements now being worked out than otherwise would have been the case.

The program of the encampment does not call for extended maneuvering until next week. It is known, however, that the regular army men who have charge of this are preparing to spring a surprise on the men. They likely will call them out any day, and set one division of the brigade against the other.

Some little concern is expressed by the report that the light battery of the guard is preparing to fire real shells into the air, and that the battery, which overlooks Camp Ordway. There are a lot of persons living over on the heights, even in places of abode cannot be seen from here.

This report reached them last night, and this morning they came in flocks to protest to Colonel Garrard regarding such a procedure on the part of his men. The colonel hadn't heard the report, and refused to take the report, and complaints seriously until finally he was convinced that such a rumor had gained credence. He set the night, and was given rest by telling them that no shells will be fired in their direction, or any other, so far as that is concerned, during this encampment.

The dress parade engaged in by every militiaman and regular in camp, with the exception of those on duty for other duties, was one of the most spectacular ever participated in by the Washington boys. Headed by Col. Charles H. Curran, the 2,000 odd men passed by in review before Colonel Garrard. The crowds of the night, and was given a hearty reception by his former fellow-militiaman.

Panoramic View of District National Guard's Encampment at Bolivar Heights

LITTLE HOPE OF BRINGING DARROW TO TRIAL AGAIN

State Will Probably Abandon Second Case Owing to Cost.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 19.—Despite the announcement of District Attorney Fredericks that he will prosecute Clarence S. Darrow on the charge of having bribed Juror Robert Bain, in the McNamara case, there was a strong impression today that the case would never come to trial.

When Judge Hutton's court convened today, Fredericks said he was prepared to ask that the opening of the trial be set for an early date. He would not indicate, however, what he thought the date would be. The trial of Darrow on the Lockwood charge, which ended Saturday with an acquittal, was so long and costly that the state is reluctant to prosecute him again.

SAN JOSE, Aug. 19.—Clarence S. Darrow, counsel in the McNamara case, who has just been acquitted of jury bribing, will make his future home in San Jose, according to friends of his here today. Negotiations for the purchase of a home at Los Gatos, a nearby suburb, are under way, it is asserted. Darrow is to enter a law firm here.

Darrow Fee in Noted Labor Case Placed at $200,000 by Federation

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 19.—In an eighty-page book, just issued, the American Federation of Labor makes an accounting for the $236,106 fund collected for the defense of J. J. and J. B. McNamara in the Los Angeles dynamite cases. The expenditures were $27,911.83.

Among the other items of expenditures were $10,000 for the production and distribution of literature, $10,000 for the production and distribution of literature, $10,000 for the production and distribution of literature.

Plans Investigation For Darrow Lawyer

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—An investigation of the connection of John R. Harrington, the Chicago lawyer, with the bribery case of Clarence S. Darrow, will be undertaken by the Chicago Bar Association. Announcement of this came following the verdict which acquitted Darrow.

SENATOR FALL IN SPEECH ATTACKS STATE DEPARTMENT

Truth of "Better Conditions" in Mexico Challenged by New Mexican.

Starting statements as to conditions in Mexico and along the border were made today in the Senate by Senator Fall of New Mexico. Senator Fall, challenging the truth of the statements put out by the State Department that conditions are growing better, portrayed them as growing worse. He warned the Senate that conditions cannot continue as they are in the republic.

Senator Fall first arose to a question of personal privilege to deny a statement purporting to come from Madero alleging that Senator Fall, who made a speech on Mexico in the Senate some weeks ago, was preventing peace being established in the Mexican republic.

Senator Fall replied to this and said: "I have information here that shows the assertions of the State Department that conditions are growing better are absolutely unfounded."

Mr. Fall said he possessed sources of information that were better and more reliable than those of the State Department, granting that the department was proceeding in good faith.

He charged that there were at the outside 420 Mexican federal troops in the northern part of Sonora for the guarding of all settlers and property there. In at least one community, 300 American bands had been organized to defend themselves, and in another, where there was $50,000,000 worth of mining property, Americans banded together to defend the federal government's interests.

Federals Dodge Orozco. "The federal troops which were stationed in Sonora for the protection of Americans have been called into Chihuahua," said Senator Fall, "and in going they took very good pains not to meet Orozco."

He recalled that General Blanco, one of the Madero generals, had himself said his sympathies were with the revolutionists.

MEXICAN REBELS LEAVING OROZCO, IS TEXAS REPORT

Army Officers Strengthen Border Patrol to Prevent Crossing.

The disintegration of the Mexican rebel army is now in full swing. Numerous bands of insurgents who have followed Orozco for months, many of their services in the arid wastes of northern Mexico, are scattering in all directions from Juarez.

The proximity of their camps to the American border has caused General Steever to exercise more vigilance, and at El Paso he has increased his patrol guard. Troops I, K, and M, of the Third Cavalry, have arrived there from Fort Sam Houston.

In a telegram from Steever, received at the War Department early today, it is stated that Orozco's main army is now marching toward the Ojinaga region. Steever says he will increase his force in the big red country if the force of 2,500 rebels enters Ojinaga.

Orozco Near Border. Orozco is still sending detachments back to Juarez, which he evacuated Friday, to collect supplies. The major part of his army is now at Gloreas Ranch, five miles west of the El Paso smelter.

Another portion of the army is at Palochina, ten miles south, and another is ten miles southeast of Juarez. There are also detachments at Guadalupe and San Ignacio. A strong force of rebels are at Munday's ranch, which is directly across the river from Hancock, Tex.

Troops Watch Rebels. There is a strong rebel column with artillery marching southward to Ojinaga, and it is this body that is being closely watched by the American troops. The column is 2,500 men strong.

The federals are on the Mexican Northern border at San Pedro and are only about two or three days distant from Juarez, which town they will take without difficulty.

WHITMAN IGNORES POLICE DEMAND TO GIVE UP SCHEPPS

Paymaster Rushed to West Side Prison on Reaching New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—When Sam Schepps, gangster and alleged paymaster of the assassins of Gambler Herman Rosenthal, arrived in New York today from Hot Springs, Ark., he was accompanied by District Attorney Whitman, Assistant Rubin, and several county detectives, working for the district attorney, and it was only by a swift rush through Grand Central station that Schepps, Whitman and a squad of policemen under Captain Gillen, of the East Fifty-first street station, were on hand to meet the train, and Deitch and Schepps demanded that Whitman pay no attention to the demand, but without parley had his men rush Schepps through the station and into a waiting taxicab.

Husted to Prison. "To the West Side prison, quick," shouted Whitman, and Schepps and the district attorney's detectives were whirled away.

Deitch made a half-hearted effort to stop the taxicab, but it sped away. "Don't you fellows butt in," warned County Detective Althomas, sticking his head out of a cab window.

Schepps was taken to the West Side prison where Rose, Wabber, and Vallon were quarantined. Whitman went to his office to arrange for Schepps' appearance before the grand jury and the central office men returned to headquarters to tell their chiefs about it.

"I am satisfied," Schepps has told me this morning, "it was enough to clear up several vital points."

This statement was made by Whitman after he had held a conference of thirty minutes with Schepps.

Rose's Story Corroborated. Asked if Schepps corroborated "Jack" Rose's confession, Mr. Whitman said: "Yes, Schepps confirmed, so far as I have gone with him. He corroborated the statement that he had gone to Harry Pollock's home (where Rose was held) forty-eight hours before the shooting of Lieutenant Becker (who was killed) for the murder of Rosenthal. He declared he was not on the scene of the murder. He did say, though, that he had ridden in the 'murder automobile' used by the conspirators in the shooting of Becker. He told me he went to Pollock's home with Rose to see Becker. Further than that I did not question him. Schepps is a talker, and loves to tell stories, so I've got to separate the wheat from the chaff."

Fished for Bass and Cheered for Climbers

Belief that extensions to reach Lake Ontario, some of the larger eastern New York cities, and the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania would be advantageous, was the reason given for the desire to make the big expenditure involved.

Two months ago the commission denied an application by the New York Central for permission to buy the Ontario and Western stock held by the New Haven, because it held that all the energies and credit and resources of the Central should properly be devoted to the public duties with which it is now charged.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Another move in the railroad consolidation game is shown by the application today by the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Company to the public service commission for a permit to take over the New York, Ontario, and Western. The New Haven now owns $2,200 preferred and $29,160,000 common of the Ontario's outstanding $4,000 preferred and $68,113,824 common stock.

Belief that extensions to reach Lake Ontario, some of the larger eastern New York cities, and the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania would be advantageous, was the reason given for the desire to make the big expenditure involved.

Two months ago the commission denied an application by the New York Central for permission to buy the Ontario and Western stock held by the New Haven, because it held that all the energies and credit and resources of the Central should properly be devoted to the public duties with which it is now charged.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Another move in the railroad consolidation game is shown by the application today by the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Company to the public service commission for a permit to take over the New York, Ontario, and Western. The New Haven now owns $2,200 preferred and $29,160,000 common of the Ontario's outstanding $4,000 preferred and $68,113,824 common stock.

Belief that extensions to reach Lake Ontario, some of the larger eastern New York cities, and the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania would be advantageous, was the reason given for the desire to make the big expenditure involved.

Two months ago the commission denied an application by the New York Central for permission to buy the Ontario and Western stock held by the New Haven, because it held that all the energies and credit and resources of the Central should properly be devoted to the public duties with which it is now charged.

Advertisement for Goldenberg's Room Size Rugs, featuring various rug styles and prices.

Advertisement for Women's Night Gowns, featuring various styles and prices.

Advertisement for 29c Bordered Batiste fabric, featuring various styles and prices.

Advertisement for 36-in. Tan Dress Linen fabric, featuring various styles and prices.

Advertisement for $2.50 to $3.50 White Dresses, featuring various styles and prices.

Advertisement for $2.50 to $3.50 White Dresses, featuring various styles and prices.