

PRESIDENT LEAVES
SICKBED FOR WORK

Refuses to Obey Physician and Goes to His Office to Sign Several Minor Measures.

Unable longer to stand the inactivity imposed upon him for the last two days on account of an attack of la grippe, President Wilson insisted upon going to the Executive offices in the White House to sign several important documents. Once there, he remained for a short time immersed in work.

The beauty of the day appealed to him, and he asked Dr. Cary Grayson, his physician, whether a ride would do him any harm. The doctor did not believe so, if he would agree to bundle up warmly. This was done, and with a smile that spread over all traces of the recent illness, the President entered the White House automobile, and was whisked away for an afternoon's spin.

While in the Executive offices he saw no callers. The Japanese attaché, clothed in full regalia, called at the office, but saw only Secretary Tamm, who was asked to have the President autograph a picture which the attaché took with him.

IS CELEBRATING
80TH BIRTHDAY

COL. JOHN S. MOSBY.

TODAY MARKS BIRTH OF COL. J. S. MOSBY

Most Feared Chieftain in Ranks of Confederacy in Good Health.

This the eightieth birthday of Col. John Singleton Mosby, guerrilla chieftain in the civil war, and the most feared cavalry leader in the ranks of the Confederacy.

Eighty years ago he was born in Fowhatan county, Va., where he was raised. Later Colonel Mosby went to the University of Virginia, and he was practicing law at Bristol, when the war broke out.

When Colonel Mosby was born, December 6, 1833, were only two States—the one from Baltimore to Frederick, and another in South Carolina.

Colonel Mosby enlisted as a private in the Confederate cavalry, but his peculiar temperament soon raised him to a leadership, and his raid on the rear of McClellan's army on the Chickahominy was one of the boldest pieces of warfare on record.

Colonel Mosby received a letter of congratulation yesterday from N. J. Crothers, of Polatch, Idaho, who was one of fifteen Union soldiers captured by Mosby during the war. Seven of the fifteen were ordered to be hanged by Mosby as a lesson to a Union general who had hanged several of Mosby's raiders. Crothers was one who drew straws with another prisoner, and escaped hanging.

Colonel Mosby appears to be in excellent health, despite his years. He lives at 1223 Twelfth street northwest, this city.

WANTS TEACHERS PAID BEFORE XMAS

Dr. Davidson Tries to Provide Full Month's Pay For Them Preceding Holidays.

Endeavor to provide Christmas funds for the teachers of the public schools is being made by Dr. William M. Davidson, superintendent, Alonzo Tweedale, auditor of the District, and Louis C. Wilson, disbursing officer.

The teachers are usually paid on the last day of the month. At the request of Dr. Davidson, Auditor Tweedale today submitted to the Commissioners for transmission to the Comptroller of the Treasury a request for an opinion as to whether the teachers can be paid a full month's salary for December, prior to the beginning of the Christmas holidays.

The argument advanced by Dr. Davidson and the auditor in support of the proposition is that no services are required of the teachers after December 23, the beginning of the Christmas vacation.

There are other instances, it is pointed out, where teachers are entitled to payment for a full month where a full month's services are not actually rendered.

Under the law, the teachers are paid in full for the month of September, the beginning of the school year, although the schools are not opened until about September 20. A similar situation arises in June, the closing month of the school year.

The teachers last year were paid a half-month's salary prior to the Christmas holidays. This is the first time the question of a full month's payment has arisen.

Members of the police and fire departments and employees of the District institutions of whom a full month's service is required and who are paid monthly, will be paid, by order of the Commissioners, a half-month's salary for the present month December 15.

PRODUCT OF PRIZE
HENS ON MARKET

Egg Dealers Guarantee to Prevent Sale to Buyers Who Might Hatch Them.

The citizen of Washington who looks into the eye of an incubating egg, sunny side up, may be about to consume a morsel once worth between $3 and $5 and possibly more.

More than 300 eggs laid by prize hens at the poultry show in the National Rifles Armory have been turned over to a dealer to be sold "strictly fresh ones." These measures are taken to insure the owners of the prize birds against the chance that any of these eggs be hatched and somebody obtain thereby a valuable chicken for nothing.

The dealer is honor bound to mix the eggs laid by prize hens with those from the ordinary backyard cackler and to sell them at the ordinary fresh egg price. Anybody may in consequence get a specimen of the golden variety, included in the lot are eggs laid by hens which have records as high as 20 eggs a year. A setting of these (fifteen) is worth $30 or more.

Officials of the show are waiting for today's attendance to tell them whether they will split even or face a financial loss in the exhibit. While the attendance has not been as large as it might be, the officials feel pleased with the interest shown by those attending the show, and also pleased that the show drew such an excellent list of entries in the past evening.

The principal desire today was to recover a top-eared rabbit valued at $50, which some unkind person removed from its cage during the dark scene in the motion picture show. The police have been notified of Bunny's disappearance. Unless the animal is returned the show officials will have to make good the loss.

Hodger of the Smithsonian Institution, and Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, of the Bureau of Mines.

Mr. Worcester, who until recently was member of the Philippine commission, and the Secretary of the Interior of the islands, carefully avoided the discussion of the political side of the question, but described the efforts this Government is making to educate the natives and prepare them for later self-government.
