

FOUR BANDITS ROB CHICAGO EXPRESS

Passengers Offer No Resistance and Lose $200 in Cash and Valuable Jewelry.

JACKSON, Mich., Jan. 23.—Train No. 7 on the Michigan Central railroad, the "Detroit-Chicago Flyer," was held up by four bandits near Jackson at 5:30 this morning and the passengers robbed of more than $200 in cash, and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars.

The robbers are believed to have boarded the train at Jackson. With drawn revolvers, they went through the train, forcing the passengers to hand over all their valuables. No one offered any resistance.

Near Parma, a little village eight miles west of here, two of the bandits made their way to the engine and forced the engineer to stop the train.

A posse of Parma citizens was organized at dawn, but was unable to find any trace of the band-up men.

Tracked by Police. A score of Jackson police, under command of Michigan Central Detective Henry Decker, were rushed to Parma on a special train to aid in the search. They tracked the hold-up men through the snow to a road crossing a mile east of the village, where the robbers are supposed to have been waiting.

None of the robbers was masked. When they first boarded the train they went to a Pullman car and when the conductor asked for their tickets he was met with a command to throw up his hands. The conductor was then backed into one end of the car and tied fast to the colored porter, with one of the bandits robbing the rest with a revolver.

The others then began the work of robbing the passengers. Not a shot was fired. Two women fainting at the sight of guns pointed in their direction.

"Come through with your money and be quick, about $200," was the demand said to C. C. Giosser, of Detroit, the first man picked off. Giosser handed over $20.

Ray Hall and Howard Brady, both of Detroit, were the next victims. Hall contributed $40 and a valuable watch, and Brady about $45.

Interrupted by Porter. The robbers were interrupted in their work by the appearance of C. E. Scott, of Chicago, a Pullman porter.

"Get back there, — you, or I'll shoot," yelled one of the bandits. Scott retreated to the next car.

After robbing every passenger in the car, the bandits abandoned their work without any attempt to visit the three other Pullmans.

Passengers describe the man who evidently was the leader of the gang, as short, and stout, with black hair. He wore a checked suit and a light-colored hat, they said.

Closing Series of Baltimore Grand Opera. The first of the closing series of operas at the Lyric Theater, Baltimore, will be given by the Chicago Grand Opera Company on the evening of February 5 when Puccini's "Mme. Butterfly" will be presented with a distinguished cast.

The principal roles will be sung by Mme. Alice Zepplini, who will be the Pinkerton, and Francesco Fredrici, the Sharpshooters. Mme. Zepplini is among the most brilliant of the younger Italian sopranos and is an established favorite in Baltimore. One of her notable successes was as Gilda at the Lyric performance of "Rigoletto" in November. Bassini will make his first Baltimore appearance since his notable triumph as Cennaro in Wolf-Ferrari's "Iris" at the Madison of a part he created two years ago. Fredrici has won increasing recognition since his American debut in November. He possesses a baritone voice of rare beauty and is young and handsome.

"Mme. Butterfly" is the Chicago Company will present three other operas at the Lyric during February, on consecutive Friday nights. It is likely that one of the novelties introduced by Maestro Campanini this season will be presented, of these Puccini's "Monna Valina" and Massenet's "Don Quixote" are notable. In each of them Mary Garden scored a success.

150-DAY SENTENCE IS GIVEN CHAUFFEUR

Cold Fingers His Excuse For Series of Mishaps to Which He Pleads Guilt.

My fingers were stiff and cold from driving all night, and I could not control the car," declared James Pallas, 615 K street northeast, a driver of a Federal Taxicab Company car, who pleaded guilty to five charges of violating the automobile regulations, in the Police Court, today.

He was sentenced to 150 days in jail in default of a $300 fine. Pallas told the court that he took three morning papers reporters out to Virginia "looking for a big fire" and when he returned to the city yesterday morning, he took two drinks of whisky to "warm him up."

The reporters, he said, were in the taxicab when it collided with Pate Wheeler, colored, on Seventeenth street northwest, attempted to climb a lamp post on Church street northwest, and later collided with a horse and carriage owned by Joseph Campbell, 724 Eighth street northeast, on Church street northwest.

Pallas pleaded guilty to two counts of colliding, two of speeding and one of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

NEW YORK TRAPPERS PRIZE BLACK MINK

One Man Upstate Already Has Nine Pelts to His Credit This Winter.

GENESEO, N. Y., Jan. 23.—Although the mink season is not half over several Genesee trappers have already obtained a number of skins. Louis Chapman is high man so far, with nine to his credit, but some of the other trappers have bigger strings of traps than he and say they will pass him before the season is over. Good black skins will be worth $5 each this winter, the pelts with a brown or gray tinge not quite so much.

Across the flats in the towns of Leicester and York, bounding Genesee on the west, the trappers are boasting they have far outstripped Genesee's contingent. Mink are seldom seen, as they hunt at night and sleep during the day, but local trappers assert there are lots of them left in the valley, and their strings each year substantiate it.

While the streams are open the mink live mostly on fish, but when there is a big freeze-up they have little to sustain them, but on occasions mouse or chipmunk and lose much of their fat. Their favorite run is along the Genesee river, particularly further up the stream, where the banks get rocky, but distance doesn't bother Genesee trappers much, while the traps sometimes reach a dozen miles up the valley, and who take a fall from the Crovland swamp and upper Mt. Morris.

The mink, of course, is taken in combination with the muskrat and skunk trapping; in fact, the jump trap method is about the only way of taking a mink. It is too seldom seen to be taken by roaming along a watercourse with only a gun, and cannot be driven out by ferret, as it would make about two mouthfuls of its undersized relative. It never digs holes, adopting any old burrow it finds for its own, and it is so much of a traveler that it is said it will sometimes go upstream or down ten miles in a single night.

SPEEDWAY SUICIDE DUE TO ILL HEALTH

G. B. Maynadier Shot Himself After Policeman Called Taxi to Take Him Home.

Ill health is believed today to have been the motive which prompted Gustavus B. Maynadier, of Baltimore, to end his life by firing a bullet into his brain while in a taxicab on the Speedway.

The body is still in the Emergency Hospital morgue, where it is being held pending some word from the man's relatives in Baltimore.

Maynadier was employed at the Department of Agriculture up to the fall of 1912, when he accepted a position with the Ohio Experimental Station, at Wooster, Ohio.

Shortly after 8 o'clock last evening a crossing policeman at Fourteenth and G streets noticed that Maynadier was heading against a tree-box, and was apparently ill. He went to the man's assistance, and offered to call an ambulance, but Maynadier said that he wanted a taxicab and would go to his home. The officer called a taxicab, and the man had the chauffeur take him around the speedway. While the machine was on the bridge across the tidal basin outlet, Maynadier shot himself.

Diplomatic circles are amazed at the action of Charge Nelson O'Shaughnessy, who aided Senor Estanol, former cabinet member, under sentence of death, to escape from the country.

Members of the American colony were disposed today to criticize the charge. O'Shaughnessy admitted his part in Estanol's escape, and said he acted entirely on his own initiative, without any word from Washington. He said he interfered because Estanol is an old friend.

Observe Wedding Day By Feeding Homeless. NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—"Yum, yum, Dem was some eat," was the comment on the Bowery today, of 400 shivering, unkempt men who formed the bread-line at the Bowery Mission and held pleasant memories of the novel way in which Mr. and Mrs. Finley Shepard celebrated their first wedding anniversary. Mrs. Shepard was formerly Miss Helen Gould.

Instead of the usual bread and coffee, each hungry wayfarer received a hot roast beef sandwich, coffee, pie, crackers and fruit, at the expense of Mr. and Mrs. Shepard.

MUSEUM RECEIVES CARIB SPECIMENS

Farabee Expedition's Courier Brings Poison Darts and War Costumes.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—Just before entering a part of French Guiana, which, so far as is known, has never been visited by white men, Dr. William C. Farabee, leader of the South American Amazon expedition of the university museum, dispatched a courier to the Dadanava river, in the extreme south of British Guiana, with mail and several cases of specimens.

One of the letters in Dr. Farabee's mail reached the University of Pennsylvania Museum yesterday. The explorer said that the members of the expedition were in excellent health.

Several cases of specimens which the expedition collected among the last Carib tribes in Brazil arrived at the Museum yesterday. The specimens include wearing apparel of the Caribs, war costumes and implements, specimens of minerals, snakes, lizards, and vipers.

The wearing apparel consists of head-dresses for men, worn on a kind of basket crown, and feather aprons. There are also other aprons made of bead-work which show intricacy of color schemes. There are several native oil-furres which are long hollow tubes about two inches in diameter in which the hair is placed. The exterior of the tubes is elaborately decorated with the brilliant plumage of the macaw and cockatoo and with beads and paint.

Several yards of native cloth made of tree cotton are among the most interesting of the exhibits. There are also a number of looms and spindles in the specimens.

Some "refinements" of civilization are indicated by a number of boudoir cases elaborately wrought and filled with cosmetics. There are pretty necklaces, several knives decorated with feathers, with blades of peccary teeth, and a large collection of very finely woven strips of cloth with elaborate fringes, all dyed red. These are wound about the body and the limbs by the Caribs to make a complete costume.

The war implements consist principally of clubs and one sealed quiver of poisoned darts. The darts are small arrows shot from a blowgun, the slightest abrasion of the skin by the poisoned tip brings paralysis and sudden death.

Investigate this case:

Bowling Green, Ky., 11 No. 4. "Gentlemen: The spring of 1912 I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicine that my doctors recommended to me, but no results came from the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit. I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But, at last, James Deering, of Glasgow, Scotland, insisted that I try your medicine. In one week's time there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles I felt as well as ever in my life. I firmly believe that Eckman's Alternative will relieve any case of Lung trouble if taken before the last stage. (Abbreviated) A. C. BERTZGERWORTH.
