In the presence of relatives and intimate friends, Miss Ethel Theodora Shane, of Brookland, D. C., and Newell Roy White, of Washington, were married Wednesday evening, the Rev. John Weidley, pastor of the church, officiating. Mr. LeRoy Wolfe played the wedding march, and Roland Carter sang "O, Promise Me".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, William T. Shane, wore a gown of white crepe meteor trimmed with white tulle and lace. Her train was caught with a bandeau of pearls and she wore a pearl necklace. The bridal bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor, Miss Margaret Shane, sister of the bride, wore canary-colored tulle trimmed with white net and lace and a Persian grille and carried a basket of yellow roses tied upon a seat.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, after which Mr. and Mrs. White left for a wedding banquet in New York city, and returned to Washington, D. C., on Saturday.

Miss White's best man for her wedding and the others were Earl White, William Francis Yates, and LeRoy Wolfe.

HARVARD MEN HEAR TALK BY DR. WILEY

Athletics Should Be Part of Every Curriculum and Count Toward Graduation.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, famous for his zeal in enforcing the pure food law, was more famous last night because he is a graduate of Harvard. Dr. Wiley's speeches in the past have touched on many subjects, but his talk before Harvard students at the University Club was "to speak" different from anything yet.

The former head of our Bureau of Chemistry came out as a champion of college athletics.

"Universities," he said, "should make athletics a part of the curriculum, and if a man passes his physical tests, he should be given a qualifying mark in his commencement examinations. I like athletics, but I like to see a contest. I hope to see Yale win a boat race or two, because, here of late, Harvard has been winning too much, and it is getting monotonous. In everything, I like to see things evenly matched."

General Carranza remarked the United States is too big to fight Mexico, and I think so myself. When two nations are evenly matched the contest is worth watching, but when a bulldog attacks a little dog it is murder. I don't think that all of Mexico is worth the lives which surely will be sacrificed. War never would have come had I been President.

He turned from war and athletics to reminiscences of his college days, and wound up his address by telling of how he invested nearly all of his first earnings in a long, black gown for commencement, and after seeing "Charlie" Eliot appear in a cutaway coat, inquired of knowing "papa" the "why and wherefore," and was told that "certainly long, black gowns would be worn, for all the 'rubies' would wear them."

John W. Holcombe, president of the club, made an address of welcome, and the Dasha brothers were heard. Their specialty is taking their guitars and setting over in a corner of the room, where they play slow, sad, and melodious music, which either makes you want to cry or else go down to Mexico and make Huerta salute the flag. G. T. Tittman recited.

Recruits Are Needed in War on the Fly

No one doubts the supremacy of the United States forces in the republic of Mexico, in any kind of a battle that might ensue, but there is serious doubt expressed by the District Health Department for Washington in the war it will wage this summer against the horde of deadly flies due here.

The call for patriotic fly fighters has been issued more than a month, and already there are numerous recruits enlisted, but more are necessary. No physical examination need be passed to become a regular in the army now assembling for the assault on the disease-carrying insect; no age limit will bar from enlistment any man or woman, but brisk young "sure-shots" in dealing death to the pest are most desired.

The death rate that follows the assaults of the fly each year is hard to estimate, but scientists and entomologists who have given attention to the study of the fly say it is the most deadly of summer pests. Particularly effective is the fly where helpless infants are concerned. The food in the nursery is especially attractive to the typhoid-fly, and once let it get in the house and it will quickly ferret out the milk bottle of the baby on which to deposit germs that mean sure death.

Insanitary conditions in the home and about the yards are the places that flies seek out and in them will be found the most prolific breeding spots for the summer pests. Clean out the filth, refuse, and unclean spots and you will lessen the food for the fly.

One thing that has rendered possible the building of the Panama canal, more than anything else, has been the sanitary and preventive measures taken to keep down the deadly yellow fever and pernicious malaria. This has been done by waging an unrelenting war against all insect life believed to carry disease, particularly flies.

The way to build up more life and make possible thereby other great engineering projects is to banish the deadly fly.

EXTERMINATE THE FLY TODAY.
