

MANY ARE DRENCHED AT UNVEILING RITES

President's Speech at Arlington Cut Short by Approach of Heavy Rain.

Exodus from this city of hundreds who came to attend the unveiling of the Confederate monument at Arlington began early this morning, and will continue throughout the day. Many, however, will remain to take tours of sight-seeing in the Capital and vicinity. Gossip among the visitors hinges chiefly on the occurrence of yesterday's storm, and those who attended the exercises got a good drenching in the storm that broke just at the close of the President's address. There was a hurried exit from the cemetery, as flashes of lightning and distant thunder gave warning of the approach of the storm.

President Wilson, who accepted the monument in behalf of the United States, was interrupted by the deluge of his speech by the approaching tempest, and abbreviated his remarks. "I am not so much happy as proud to participate in this capacity on this occasion, proud that I should represent such a people," said President Wilson. After reciting the history of the memorial, President Wilson continued: "I am not going to detain you by trying to repeat any of the eloquent thoughts which have moved us this afternoon."

Task Is Simple. "I rejoice in the simplicity of the task which is assigned to me. That task is this, ladies and gentlemen. This chapter in the history of the United States is now closed, and I can bid you turn with me your faces to the future, quickened by the memories of the past, but with nothing to do with the contests of the past, knowing as we have shed our blood upon opposite sides, we now face and admire one another. I have occasion to turn to the name of Robert E. Lee, and I found him simply described as a great American general. The generosity of our judgment did not begin today. The generosity of our judgment was made up soon after this great struggle was over, when men came and sat together again in the Congress and united in all the efforts of peace and of government, and our solemn duty is to see that each one of us is in his own consciousness and in his own conduct a replica of this great reunited people. It is our duty and our privilege to be like the country we represent, and speaking no word of malice, no word of criticism, even standing shoulder to shoulder to lift the burdens of mankind in the future and show the paths of freedom to all the world."

Following his speech, the President, in company with his two daughters, Mrs. Grace and Mrs. Meridian, hurried to the White House automobile and started the journey to the White House. The storm broke before the machine had proceeded very far from Arlington. Hold a Reception. A reception to the veterans and daughters of the Confederacy was tendered by the Arlington Monument Association and Secretary of State Bryan, as head of the Pan American Union at the Pan American Union building last night. Sir Moses Ezekiel, sculptor of the Confederate Monument, was one of the guests of honor. The guests of the receiving line were the Secretary of State and Mrs. W. J. Bryan, Mrs. Marion Butler, and Mrs. Daisy M. McKim, of the Daughters of the Confederacy; Sir Moses Ezekiel, sculptor of the monument; Mrs. Cornelia Branch Davis, of Texas; Mrs. Jennie Faulkner McSherry, of West Virginia; Mrs. Lillian George Henderson, of Alabama; and Mrs. William Cummins Story, of New York, national president of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Refreshments were served in the fountain room.

U. S. OFFICIALS WILL STUDY CONVICT SHIP

McReynolds and Admiral Dewey Among Those Who Will Visit the Success.

Government officials have interested themselves to such an extent in the exhibition of ancient methods of punishment for criminals, as shown on the old prison ship Success, that Captain Smith and his associates have been forced to change the plans they originally made for keeping the ship open to the public, so that the officials can get a better opportunity to study it.

It had been intended to give those Government officers who desired to see the ship an opportunity to go over her at a private exhibition today. The responses to the invitations extended by Captain Smith were so numerous that it will not be possible for all to do this, however. Special days have been set aside for the Government officials. This will not interfere with the visits of the public, which are to begin tomorrow. Attorney General McReynolds has accepted an invitation to visit the ship Monday with Superintendent of Prisons and officials of the Department of Justice. The Attorney General has evinced a great interest in the old hulk.

Entirely aside from the interest the Success holds for the public as an example of the horrible forms of torture inflicted on criminals a century ago, the vessel is a matter of great curiosity to naval officers and ship builders. Secretary Daniels, Admiral Dewey and the officers of the department of construction and repair of the Navy Department, are to be the guests of Captain Smith Tuesday next for the purpose of going over the construction details of the ship. The Success is more than a century old, and it is probable that there is not in existence a stancher craft. Her leak "hide" and timbers are in a remarkable state of preservation, and it is the opinion of naval experts who have seen her that she would withstand a shock that would rip the sides of a modern steel or iron vessel.

It is not generally known that the broad arrow, which is a distinctive mark on the sails and the garb of the prison vessel is not really a mark of disgrace, but of ownership by the British government.

To Attend Encampment. Richard G. Harding Camp, No. 2, United Spanish War Veterans, will be represented at the national encampment to be held in Louisville, Ky., August 21 by James E. Wilson, James J. Murphy, Richard B. Wheeler, and William Heritage. Six new members were elected at last night's meeting at Pythian Temple, which makes the camp the largest in this department, and second largest in the United States.

IF SKIN BREAKS OUT AND ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR Use it like a cold cream and dry Eczema eruptions right up.

The moment you apply hold-sulphur to an itching or broken-out skin, the itching stops and healing begins, says a renowned dermatologist. This remarkable sulphur made into a thick cream effects such prompt relief, even in aggravated Eczema, that it is a never-ending source of amazement to physicians. For many years hold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous eruptions by reason of its cooling, parasite-destroying properties and nothing has ever been found to take its place in relieving irritable and inflammatory affections of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure, yet, in every instance, it immediately subsides the itching irritation and heals the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again manifests itself. Any good pharmacist will supply an ounce of hold-sulphur cream, which should be applied to the affected parts like the ordinary cold cream. It isn't unpleasant and the prompt relief afforded is very welcome, particularly when the Eczema is accompanied with torturous itching.—Advt.

Good News for Sufferers From Kidney Diseases

The kidneys, from their delicate construction and the filtering work required of them, are more susceptible to disease than any other organ in the wonderful machinery of the human body. The most noticeable feature of kidney disease consists in its subtle and delusive character, and so insidious are its ravages that many victims do not even suspect its existence until the advanced stages have been reached. Few people, after reaching the period of maturity, are in possession of absolutely healthy kidneys. It follows that the greatest care and vigilance must be exercised to keep these organs free from the dangers that constantly beset them. Since the discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy about 37 years ago, many sufferers from kidney diseases have been benefited by its healing properties. Many physicians consider it an excellent remedy in the treatment of diseases of the kidneys, liver and blood. Get it today. It is sold by all druggists in 50c and $1.00 sizes.
