

THE BEST Photoplay Department in WASHINGTON

Big Stars and Plays To Be Seen In Film Programs During The Summer.

There is every indication that the motion picture will cause a revolution in the amusement business—that it is causing a revolution. For years there has been an idea among the purveyors of entertainment in the theater that there was no business to be had in the summer. And theaters and such places were closed. The quality of the shows in such places as were kept open during the summer was noticeably lowered. The motion picture has been able to do business in the summer time and the producers of photoplays have learned that if they keep up the quality of their productions they will make almost as much money in the summer as in the winter. Therefore producers of motion pictures are now making announcements of summer entertainment that include the most comprehensive list of plays and stars that have yet appeared in film plays. Stars of prominence can be secured for summer work in the films as such work will not interfere with their regular theatrical season. This summer is to be notable in the number of stars and plays that are to be produced by the various companies. For instance, the Universal Company has made an announcement that gives an inkling of the situation. The list of stars is truly a notable one, including only stars who are real stars. Emmet Corrigan will start work next week in "The West, Master Diver," an adaptation of the book of the same name by F. Hopkinson Smith. Helen Ware will appear in "Lass o' Lowrie," in which she was featured in New York and on the road for two seasons. Marie Cahill, comedienne, will produce "Judy Fortune," one of her big stage successes. Avery Hopwood, the author of the play, will make the motion picture adaptation. Wilton Lackaye will appear in a play not yet announced. Frank Keenan will be seen in a special production. This may be an adaptation of his vaudeville sketch "Vindication."

Dive Out Window Fails To Hurt Young Aviator

Falling from the second-story of his home, 1236 Irving street northwest, Daniel Carroll Pollock, the sixteen-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rosa E. Pollock, escaped with a few scratches and established a record for youthful aviators. While his parents were away the child climbed to the window, leaned against the screen, and the next moment, atop of his novel flying machine, was headed for the ground, forty feet below. His grandmother, Mrs. D. J. Carroll, rushed down to the yard expecting to find the child dead or badly injured, and discovered him crawling toward the door. Dr. Harrison Crook was summoned, and pronounced the youthful aeronaut uninjured except for a few scratches.

This is the Girl who is Celestia sometimes called The Goddess. THINK of Joan of Arc—pure, delicate, directed by a superb, all powerful force that led her into any danger, and you will feel the character that Anita Stewart has made of "The Goddess."

Anita Stewart has become so imbued with the spirit of "The Goddess" that she is enveloped in an atmosphere of such divine beauty and inspiration, that to gaze on her is to be lifted and completely changed yourself. Her rendition of Gouverneur Morris' great creation will become more marvelous to you as you read his great story in these pages, and follow the girl through her classic struggle with the forces of evil, meeting with earthly love and directing the world to a renaissance of beauty. "The Goddess" is as you will be glad to know also a motion picture produced under the auspices of

The Washington Times by the eminent

VITAGRAPH COMPANY

Miss Stewart is supported by that well liked Earle Williams, who plays Tommy Steele and by a cast that includes six of the screen's greatest favorites. Ralph Ince is the director. His 500 successes are ample evidence of what this, his prime effort will be.
