BALTIMORE THEATER RELEASED BY POLICE

Miss Maude Gilbert, New Leading Woman, Will Be Brought to Washington.

Styvester E. Poll, proprietor of Poll's Theater, has increased his chain of theaters, making twenty-eight in all, having leased the Academy of Music, Baltimore, which he will open next Monday night with a stock company.

This announcement has been authorized by General Manager James Thacker, who also stated that the circumstance would bring a new leading woman to Poll's in the person of Miss Maude Gilbert, who is credited with being the most popular leading woman ever identified with the Poll force.

Miss Gilbert played at Poll's last year and left the company during the summer to accept a contract from a motion picture company.

Miss Florence Rittenhouse will close her engagement as leading woman at Poll's next Saturday night, and will become the leading woman of the Poll Players in Baltimore.

Miss Maude Gilbert is well remembered by the playgoers of Washington, not only on account of her local stock engagements, but for the wide range of her acting in the local theaters in a number of the big road productions.

Miss Gilbert came direct to Washington from Los Angeles, and put in a busy day yesterday in the local stores preparing for her opening performance next Monday night in "Clothes."

Accident Caused by Runaway Automobile

A surrey driven by Congressman Sherwood of Ohio and a runaway electric automobile figured late yesterday in an accident which resulted in damage to the Congressman's turnout.

General Sherwood was driving along C street, near First street northwest, to the Capitol, when he noticed the electric running down the hill. He saw it was unoccupied and apparently making straight for his team. He turned suddenly to avoid a collision, drove over the curb, lost control of his horses, and broke one of the front wheels of the surrey.

The automobile brought up against a lamp-post farther down the hill.

Wharton School Loses Second Instructor

PHILADELPHIA, March 29.—Howard L. Baldensperger, of Michigan, instructor in the Wharton School of Pennsylvania and advocate of free speech, has resigned to take up prison reform work in New York City. His resignation becomes effective next Monday.

Baldensperger refuses to discuss the reason for his action. It is known, however, that he was a warm friend and supporter of Scott Wearning, whose dismissal from the Wharton School attracted widespread attention several months ago.

The course Baldensperger taught at the university was virtually the same as that taught by Scott Wearning.
