BRITISH COLONIALS MAKING HISTORY

Every Contingent Has Its Own Point of Glory to Go Down in Annals.

LONDON, Feb. 25.—Everlasting pages have been added to British colonial history in the battle of the Somme. Available records of his great struggle show that every one of British overseas contingents has chosen its own particular elevation, valley, village, or wood whose name will live like America's Bunker Hill.

The Canadians carved their niche of fame at Courcellette. It was the French Canadians here who brilliantly carried out their part of the general staff's set program and then pressed on, storming the fortress village, filled to the brim with Germans. Competent military authorities say it was surely a feat of arms and impetuosity that put Courcellette behind the allied lines within an hour, whereas it had been expected to hold out a week.

Historical versions of the battle of the Somme can never be written without the story of the Canadians' dash through and over the complicated defenses the Germans had built at Courcellette.

The taking of Regina, Saskatchewan, in honor of Regina, Saskatchewan, is another feat of arms. The Canadians at Ypres form another chapter which has nothing to do with the Somme.

The troops of diminutive Newfoundland selected a November day for annual national observance. The scene of Newfoundland's triumph in the Somme struggle will probably be named before many months. The geographical millinery says the trench is 1,335 feet by 100 feet. That's all the location it has so far, but what happened in that trench filled with Newfoundland's enemies is what Newfoundland has to be thankful for.

Beat Counter-Attack. The thinned Newfoundland bayonets that reduced it to a ditch of dead fought counter-attacks to a standstill while a German artillery barrage rained over the ground between them and their original line.

Troops working on the right in conjunction with the men from Newfoundland were unable to carry their part of the trench. The victorious British broke into the island and therefore fought their way into every corner of the stronghold and cleared it. They held the trench and have got it yet.

Pozieres is a word that means a lot to the men of the Somme. The Antipodal whirlwind which came slowly up the rising ground from Ovillers-la-Boisselle and gained its highest velocity in the shell-scarred ruins of Pozieres will long be remembered by the forces who tried to keep the village.

Strength Won Victory. Even Australians give the Germans credit for the most extreme of extreme efforts to hold this keypoint of the ridge that overlooks the Baupenne plateau. But extreme efforts didn't stop the Australian efforts who fought their way into every house and teeth in and out of every house in the village.

Magnificent physique is what won Pozieres, said an authority from the front. "It was the men of the courage and a whole lot of determination.

Delville Wood is already a historical South African name. History at Delville Wood runs back to July 18, when the South African fighters fell through out of the wood on the decimated ranks of Scottish Highlanders who had held their wrecked trenches there for four days. Outnumbered six to one the Africans and their killed compatriots rallied, stopped the enemy's rush, broke him and drove him back to a line which the enemy has tried but has never taken. Delville Wood is so firmly driven into South African history that it will never come out.

New Zealand's Conquest. The little village of Plera figures most prominently in New Zealand's history of the Somme. Sweeping through the village in conjunction with supporting troops, they bombed and bayoneted their way into and up and down the German main third line and held their gains.

What was once a few square miles of peaceful undulating countryside, miniature hills and wooded valleys with miniature red topped, church spired, villages breaking the passage of chalk white roads is today a few square miles of blasted shell scarred desolation. But this small portion of northern France, which represents a pinhead on an ordinary map, has made more British colonial history than all the former wars. It will make more history in the spring for the whole world, it is believed today, but what colonial history it has so far made will probably never be overshadowed.

POND TO HOLD OIL. LOLO, Kan., Feb. 25.—Unable to complete sufficient storage tanks to take care of the oil production in the newly developed Bedwell-Bowling-Ross lease, northwest of town, a force of men and teams were put to work this afternoon to excavate a pond of 5,000-barrel capacity, which will be used pending the building of tanks or pipe lines. Oil men after inspection estimated one well to be pumping near 125 barrels daily.

GOWNS TO COST $653

Fashion Art League Sets Minimum for February.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—To be well dressed in 1917, women must spend $653-plus.

The $653 doesn't include house dresses or founcing robes or any of the little trinkets so dear to the hearts of the ladies, either. This is the dictum of the executive board of the Fashion Art League of America, which will have its fashion show here March 12-15.

This is the way the coin will be spent. One tailored gown, $75. One top coat, tailored, $150. One afternoon gown, $110. Two waists for suits, $40. One evening gown, $125. Two pairs of shoes, one pair slippers, $24. Two hats, $25. One corset, $8. Three pairs of gloves, $6. Underclothing, $50. Stockings, $20. Total, $653.

The women who preside over the league didn't admit that the "plus" part of the expenditures will astonish the young man contemplating committing matrimony.

STREET PREACHERS FINED. Two men who gave the names of Christian J. Armand and Robert J. Scroggins, and said they were ministers of the Gospel, were fined $5 each in court this morning for speaking on the street without permits.

They explained to the court that they were preaching yesterday afternoon to a crowd at Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue when Policecapt Dawson notified them to appear in court. On their promise not to repeat the offense they were placed on probation for six months each.

LITTLE LILLIAN ROMANE FISHER CAN TALK AGAIN

This attractive little lady is the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fisher, 238 North St., Harrisburg, Pa. Last winter she had an attack of measles, together with a very severe cold. Just at that time Druggist E. J. Wilhelm presented Mr. Fisher with a jar of the Southern "outside" treatment—Vick's VapoRub Salve, which was just then being introduced in Harrisburg, and requested that he give this preparation a thorough trial. Mr. Fisher writes: "I must say that our baby had such a cold on her chest and in her throat that she could hardly talk, and we could not get her to take anything interally. After we used Vick's VapoRub Salve on her breast and throat at night before going to bed she was entirely relieved."

No family should be without this preparation. It is externally applied, and so can be used freely. It is absorbed through and penetrates the skin, and, in addition, is inhaled as a vapor. It has a hundred uses for the many minor ailments for which every mother is the doctor. Three sizes, 25c, 50c, or $1.00—Adv.
