Violators of the law will be compelled to furnish a bond of from $500 to $5,000, guaranteeing that they will observe the law to the letter. In addition to the prescribed month's sentence, orders to this effect have been sent to Commonwealth's Attorneys throughout the State, the object being to put a stop to the continued breaking of the law by those who are able to pay the smaller fines imposed.

RAIN POSTPONES GARDEN JUDGING

Conolly's Inspections Will Commence Tomorrow.

URGES IMPORTANCE OF RECORD

General Appearance and Net Income to Be Considered.

Heavy rains Sunday night prevented H. M. Conolly, Department of Agriculture demonstrator, and chief of local extension work in home gardens, from making his initial "judging" tour this morning in The Times' garden contest.

First judging of gardens will begin in earnest tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when Mr. Conolly will visit a dozen or more gardens in the north-west section of the city to get preliminary information that will aid in final selection.

Important facts to be considered by Mr. Conolly will be general appearance, record kept and net income to be derived from gardens.

Preparation for Late Crops. Some valuable garden hints were thrown out this morning by Mr. Conolly relative to late spring and early summer gardens.

"Many crops in vegetable gardens are in the soil to germinate. These early crops should be disposed of as soon as possible so that the fall and winter crops can be planted before the 15th and 30th of this month. Late cabbage, late tomatoes, small lima beans, black-eyed peas, and carrots should be planted during this period," Mr. Conolly said.

"Tomatoes and snap beans may be canned for winter use, and the lima, navy, and black-eyed beans may be stored in a dry state. There is still time to plant mid-season varieties of cabbage, beets, squash, pumpkin, and sugar corn. Cucumbers for pickles also may be planted now."

"It is very important that enough moisture will be held in the soil. Heavy rains during the past few days has made the soil 'just right' for the planting of cabbage and tomato plants, sweet potatoes, peppers, and egg plants," he said.

Mr. Conolly again wishes to emphasize the need of keeping accurate garden records. Without such records gardens will stand a very poor show of being included in the elimination contests, he said.

SAFETY FIRSTERS TO MEET. The Washington Safety First Association will hold a meeting in the Public Library on Wednesday, June 13, at 8 o'clock. The standing committee for the year will be announced at this meeting.
