EIGHT OF SIXTEEN CANTONMENTS TO BE READY SEPT. 5

Eight of the sixteen national army cantonments will be completely ready for the first quota of drafted men on September 5.

Secretary of War Baker announced today that the other eight by that date "will accommodate a satisfactory percentage of the first contingent of selected men."

About $150,000,000 has been spent in building the sixteen camps for the soldiers.

Cantonments Named.

Cantonments regarded as practically complete are at Louisville, Fort Sam Houston, Ayer, Petersburg, Chillicothe, Rockford, Little Rock, and American Lake. The next four most nearly completed are at Des Moines, Fort Riley, Atlanta, and Columbia. Local handicaps have appreciably delayed those at Annapolis Junction, Battle Creek, Wrightstown and Yaphank.

Secretary Baker pointed out that the problem of providing the cantonments has been equal to building civilian cities, with 1,000 separate buildings in each, water and sewerage systems, paved streets, telephones, fire protection, and electric lights.

Startling Figures.

Some of the startling figures about the work are:

Five thousand to 10,000 men employed on each cantonment; 5,000 carloads of materials used on each cantonment; one carload of roofing tacks, nailing down 6,000,000 square feet of roofing paper; other material required included 140,000 doors, 93,000 kegs of nails, 3,000,000 square feet of screens, 66,000 sashes, 20,350,000 square feet of wall boarding, over 20,000 lamps, 139,000 rolls of sheathing paper.

Special care has been taken in making the emergency cities as hygienic, comfortable, and attractive as possible under military regime.

UPHOLDS POSTAL BAN ON WATSON'S JEFFERSONIAN

In a decision by Federal Judge Spear, filed today at Mason, Ga., Postmaster General Burleson is supported in denying the mailing privilege to former Congressman Tom Watson's publication, the Jeffersonian.

The decision holds that the matter carried in the Jeffersonian was so detrimental to the interests of the Government that the Postmaster General was justified in exercising the powers conferred upon him by the espionage act.

FURTHERS PEACE UNION FOR CENTRAL AMERICA

CHAUFFEUR FOR BAKER CAN'T SPEED WAR NOTES

In future when Edward Howard, official chauffeur to Secretary of War Baker, has an important message to carry to the Capitol he will be careful to observe the speed regulations. This is what he told Judge Pugh in Police Court when he was arraigned on a charge of "splitting the wind" along Pennsylvania avenue.

Howard told the judge that he thought under the circumstances he was justified in speeding up a bit. The judge told him that while war dispatches are doubtless of importance, lives of pedestrians along Pennsylvania avenue are also important.

FRANKLIN

"FRANKLIN," a new telephone central office, will be put into service this evening.

This addition to Washington's telephone equipment has been made necessary by the needs of the Government, the extraordinary activity in the commercial world, and the anticipated heavy demand for greater telephone facilities in the business section of the city.

To accommodate the new office, several departments have been removed from our building at 722 12th Street, N.W., and the entire interior has been rebuilt.

Many Main, North and Lincoln subscribers will have their numbers changed to Franklin. Other subscribers, formerly connected with the North and Lincoln offices, will be changed to Main.

With Franklin in service, Washington will be served by seven central offices: Main, North, Lincoln, Columbia, West, Cleveland and Franklin.

The new issue of the telephone directory—out to-day—contains the new telephone numbers. Commencing to-morrow, Sunday, September 2nd, please consult this directory before making calls.
