The boarding house was equipped with fire escapes, and the fire broke out near the stairway on the ground floor swept quickly to the roof, cutting off the means of exit.

A cat belonging to John Sigil, one of the lodgers, saved Sigil's life and the lives of his family by its yowling. Sigil awoke to find the flames approaching his door. He had time to lower his wife and three children from a second story window to the roof of an adjoining building.

GRAVEURE-PANTER RECITAL NOT UP TO EXPECTATIONS

It was a different Graveure who came to the National Theater in song recital yesterday afternoon, assisted by Eleanor Painter, soprano. When Louis Graveure, baritone, was first heard in Washington he made his greatest impression by the almost psychic insight he showed throughout a program of many of the master songs of music literature. In yesterday's program this artist was at his best in songs that spoke genial humor, in which Mr. Graveure was actor-interpreter.

Mr. Graveure sings with a delightful ease and he possesses both the robust operatic manner and also has command of the subtle shading in his soft tones. His voice is resonant and brilliant, or again full of color and atmosphere, and he uses a tonal quality in his upper range unusual in a baritone. His diction is notable, but Mr. Graveure did not fulfill the expectations his first recital had aroused, perhaps because of his choice of program.

Skewed Great Charm.—Great charm he showed in his songs of humor, dramatizing with artistry the Koehlin "Le Te," and rendering the Irish "The Flatherkite" and the fairy "The Leprechaun" with such spirit and picturesqueness that the latter had to be repeated. "My Menagerie," by Fay Foster, proved a most interesting and original song, but in serious mood Mr. Graveure was less inspired.

Miss Painter has but recently entered the recital field. Her voice is full and rich in the middle register although her tone production is irregular and often blurred, while her top voice is frequently hard. She is best in her lighter work, a marked tremolo marring her more serious efforts. In her lighter songs, "The Flatherkite" and the "Leprechaun," she was charming, but the voice was too immature for the "Queen of Sheba" aria, and her Carmen entrance had little in interpretation, was not vocally adequate.

Good Ensemble.—In several duets these singers gave an excellent example of good ensemble, but in the Weckerlin "Toi d'ivoire" Miss Painter was distressingly off pitch. Two encores by Mr. Graveure, "Belgium Home" and "Sylvia," by Oley Speck, were respectively the most nobly heroic and the most subtly delicate of his songs.

The accompaniments of Francis Moore were really rare masterpieces, in tone, in interpretation, and in appreciation of the singer's moods.

CHEVY CHASE BOYS OFFER SERVICES IN U. S. S. DRIVE

A delegation of schoolboys from the Chevy Chase section called upon Commission Brownlow and Major Pullman, Superintendent of Police, to volunteer in the War Savings Stamp campaign.

"We thought we might get jobs while school was closed and turn our earnings into War Savings Stamps," said Wesley Hanford, of 3706 Keokuk street. "We'd like to sell them for the Government, if we could."

Commissioner Brownlow told the boys he was pleased with the spirit they showed. "But don't work at anything laborious in the few days of enforced holidays," he said. "If you could do it, we could use you in the fuel situation, but I have always felt that boys should play, study, grow strong mentally, physically, and morally and be kept away from hard work, even in vacation times, unless forced by circumstances to do it."

The boys were referred to D. J. Callahan, the head of the local War Savings Stamp Committee, headed by Hanford, who went to see Mr. Callahan. The others in the delegation are Harry Hubbard, son of the secretary to the Bureau of Standards, 112 Quincy street; John Lane, son of John Lane, architect, 15 Metrose street; Clark Beach, son of Charles H. Beach, dentist, at 3705 Keokuk street; Wendell Alexander, son of James E. Alexander, automobile dealer, of 3714 Keokuk street; Archibald Adkins, Quincy street, Chevy Chase, Md., son of Jesse C. Adkins, lawyer.

Eat Ice Cream and Help Win War, Say Food Administration

The Food Administration is making a strong bid for popularity with the children of the nation. Herbert Hoover and his assistants are opposed to "ice cream days," and they have taboos plans of ice-creamless days in the cause of food conservation.

But all of the ice cream you want and save bacon and other fatty foods for our soldiers and the allies, is their slogan. Ice cream takes the place of these fats in the diet, it is declared, and the ice cream eater needs no fat meat.

AMERICAN STEAMSHIP SINKS U-BOAT IN BATTLE

AN ATLANTIC PORT, Feb. 9.—An American steamship in a recent battle with a German U-boat in the Mediterranean is believed to have scored a hit and sent the U-boat to the bottom, according to the report of a captain who is in port here.

The merchant vessel was outward bound for this side when the U-boat was sighted. Immediately gunners on the merchantman got busy and sent shell after shell at the enemy. The last two shots went true in the mark, and it is believed the underwater vessel was sunk, as it did not appear again.

According to the master reporting the incident, hostile submarines are more scarce now than several months ago.
