ONCE OVER THE TOP, MEN ASK ANOTHER TRIP, SAYS VETERAN

What did the Ohio men think they were going up against when to the shrill blasts of officers' whistles they scrambled up trench ladders and over the top early Saturday?

Supermen, in all probability, according to Major A. G. Nutter, reserve of officers, Canadian expeditionary force, who, incapacitated by wounds for further active service, now is stationed here with the British war mission.

In Major Nutter's opinion, this climax of a soldier's training is like many other dangerous experiences, calling for every ounce of nerve and man possesses the first time, but after that vastly easier.

Anxious For More.—"Before a man has gone over," he told The Times today, "he is likely to believe he is going to meet supermen in the other trenches. But after one hand-to-hand encounter, he's anxious for more."

Loath to dwell on the bloody exploits of the Twenty-fifth Battalion of Nova Scotia, which he joined on the other side in May, 1916, and which in one engagement registered twenty-six casualties out of thirty-one officers.

Major Nutter lauded the British Tommy whose glory, he says, has been dimmed in American eyes by tales of the Anzacs and Canadians.

"I cannot say too much in praise of the British troops," he declared. "They have performed wonders, but they do not talk of them. Men who have 'cleared it' all their lives in English cities, have proved themselves just as good fighting men as any from farm, mountain, or seaboard."

Expects Much of Summies.—"In this connection I want to express my high opinion of the American army. The forces now abroad are good material and will do wonders as they advance. That is the belief of every one of us." He also gave great praise to the Canadian women who are nurses in France and England.

The best thing a man can carry with him outside a gun, according to Major Nutter, is a sense of humor; the ability to laugh in the midst of the horrors of war. It is the saving grace of the soldier, he declares, and without it a soldier is in a bad way.

Major Nutter speaks this evening before officers of the United States Service Club at Massachusetts Avenue and Twentieth Street northwest.

JOHN D. TO PAY TAX OF $38,400,000

The thirty richest persons in the country will pay a total of $124,500,000 income taxes this year.

SEC. REDFIELD IS SOME SLEUTH, AS THIS TALE PROVES

In the absence of Sherlock Holmes, Arsene Lupin, et al., from the National Capital, Secretary of Commerce Redfield was called upon today to solve the mystery of two powerful lights which had been blinking with a slow, uncanny frequency from somewhere in the Interstate Commerce building.

Washingtonians have been observing the phenomena for several nights. Some have scented a deep dyed plot. This curious signaling to Potsdam right over the rooftops must cease. So they applied to the Secretary.

With unerring penetration the Secretary of Commerce accomplished the Q. E. D. in a trice.

He deduced thus: Blinking lights, occur with exact frequency, quite powerful, seen every night, couldn't be code because of the twin blinks.

Then Lighthouse Service must be testing new lamps which couldn't be tested on coast. Indeed, that is exactly what is causing the mysterious blinking. Followed quickly, deduction, inspection, verification. The Secretary was right.

Quick, Thurman, the needle.

ADVERTISEMENT. Hair Often Ruined By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulled coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless) and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.
