

RETROACTIVE TAX ON WAR PROFITS WINNING FAVOR

The House Ways and Means Committee is going after the ill-gotten wealth of the war contract profiteer in framing the new $5,000,000,000 revenue bill.

A retroactive tax which will amount to practical seizure of super-profits resulting from fat Government contracts—particularly as they touch construction building and other "cost plus" arrangements—has the almost unanimous backing of the committee, a poll of members revealed today.

Several members made the additional suggestion that as each individual case of profiteering is developed, it be called to the attention of the public and the Government department involved.

Inquiry Is Planned. The first step in the committee's profiteer hunt will be an inquiry. With six weeks in which to frame a bill, the committee is willing to spend half the time, if necessary, at this, and every facility of the Treasury Department has been offered the committee in its probe.

That profiteering exists sufficient to warrant such an inquiry is shown by the President's utterance that the "profiteer is with us" by the recent Federal Trade Commission report and by Treasury Department data, committee members hold.

This proof has been clinched by additional data in the hands of the House committee. This includes the case of a coal company which made 2,000 per cent, and the case of an individual whose income jumped from $1,000 to $400,000 in a single year.

The determination of the committee to go the limit in taking war profits is based on the belief that normal business and the country at large should not be asked to bear additional tax burdens until the gains of a few conscienceless individuals and firms are turned back into the Federal Treasury.

Seems Large Profits. The committee's course also means that they have rejected the argument that there must be large profits if the Treasury is to realize any considerable amount on excess profits and income taxes.

The argument is akin to saying to the grocerman: "You must allow the burglar to rob your store so he will have money to buy groceries."

Chairman Kitchin has been known to be ready to lead a protesting inquiry since a long-ago bill at this session came a certainty.
