CONGRESS TO ACT ON WAR BUREAUS

When Congress settles down to business again after the election, it will have to consider what is to be done with various boards, bureaus and commissions which have been established for the war period.

Already, because there is the possibility of the end of the war before many months, these war-time agencies are beginning to prick up their ears and seek a longer lease of life than present legislation gives them.

Some cases, they exist for the war only and in others they will go out of existence in six months to a year after peace is declared.

The fact that the war is not at all certain to end and that it may run on yet for years, hasn't prevented the war boards, bureaus and commissions from being nervous over the peace talk and from stirring about trying to get new legislation for extensions of their existence.

Congress is almost sure to have a first-class row over what to do about these agencies or most of them. Strong opposition to continuing their existence is going to be exhibited.

The future of the food administration, the fuel administration, the war trade board, the war industries board, the war labor board and a variety of other organizations will have to be dealt with. The railroad administration and the telephone and telegraph administrations are on the list, though they have a longer lease of life than the others.

The fuel administration has always been looked on in Congress as a failure and has been bitterly criticized. It will go out of existence when peace comes. Attempts will be made to extend it, but it will take drastic pressure on Congress to achieve it.

The food administration, which ends with the war, is less unpopular. The argument is already being made that it will be needed for a year or so after the war, until the troops come home and there is a readjustment of conditions and restoration of something like a normal world food situation. It is not impossible Congress will take this view of it and vote to keep Hoover on the job.

THIS REQUEST is being made by our Information Operators in Washington when asked for numbers which can be found in the telephone directory.

WE WERE OBLIGED to adopt this practice in order to conserve equipment and labor. It will also enable "Information" to give good service to those who really need her assistance in obtaining numbers not yet in the directory.

HERETOFORE telephone users in Washington called "Information" 5,500 times a day instead of obtaining the desired numbers from the directory.

THIS meant a waste equal to the entire time of 30 employees!

WILL YOU KINDLY FALL IN LINE and help prevent this waste of resources by always looking in the telephone book for numbers before calling "Information?"
