

First Photographs of President Wilson's Memorable Reception in England

RECEIVED BY THE MAYOR AT DOVER.

Here is a striking picture of President Wilson, exchanging greetings with the mayor of Dover (England) upon his arrival at that port from France, en route to London for his visit with King George. Note the serious expression of the Chief Executive of the United States, who evidently realized, at the moment this picture was taken, the tremendous importance of his arrival on English soil.

A CHARACTERISTIC SMILE.

With a smile of genuine happiness, President Wilson greeted the port of Dover. His trip across the channel from Calais was an unusual one—the weather was delightfully pleasant and the nearly always turbulent waters, smooth. The photograph was taken as the President stood on the bridge of the Brighton.

ARRIVING AT DOVER FROM CALAIS.

Here is President Wilson on board the steamer Brighton just after it arrived in the harbor at Dover after the trip across the channel from Calais. The Chief Executive is awaiting the launch that is to convey him and his party ashore where all England was waiting to pay him homage. His reception in Dover was enthusiastic.

PRESIDENT WILL FIGHT FOR LABOR

By ROBERT J. BENDER.

PARIS, Jan. 20.—With the American plan for the league of nations completed, President Wilson was rounding out his program for international labor legislation today. The President's position is said to be that no peace is possible until the threat of economic competition which might destroy the safeguard of labor is ended. It was expected that he would make some public declaration of his views in this regard at the two speeches he was to make today. The addresses were to be delivered at a luncheon given him by the French senate and upon occasion of his attending a session of the Chamber of Deputies.

American Program.
The American program for labor legislation, it is understood, provides for incorporation of several vital principles in the peace treaty, including an international child labor law, protection for women workers, regulation of working conditions and agreement on the hours of labor to constitute a universal work day. In his speeches in Italy the President emphasized the importance of the influence of labor on world opinion and made plain that labor must be fully recognized in the peace negotiations.

The league of nations plan of the American delegation is based on careful study of its own and allied ideas. Allied authorities familiar with the plan say it is the best yet promulgated. It embodies features of General Smuts' program and includes many of the details of the British plan. The American plan, it is understood, provides that the associated powers shall constitute the nucleus of the league and that every free nation shall have the right of membership. There is a provision for arbitration, with compulsory measures which would prevent the outbreak of war pending reports of the arbitrators.

Lloyd George Agrees.
The memorandum prepared by the American delegates outlines the possibility of new world thought, action and spirit, designed virtually to prevent future wars. Germany and Russia would be taken into the league when they have stabilized their governments, and the league would afford every possible aid to both nations, the President feeling that peace would be useless with half of Europe aflame with the spirit of jealousy and revenge. Premier Lloyd George is said to be unreservedly in agreement with this principle. After formation of the league there would be meeting of special delegates to formulate a new international code. In view of the attitude of the allies, it may be stated that the President feels the outlook is favorable for prompt consummation of the league.

PRESIDENT MAY NAME ANOTHER PEACE ENVOY

That President Wilson is seriously considering the appointment of an additional member of America's peace delegation was learned today from authoritative sources. According to confidential advices reaching Washington through official channels, the President inclines to the belief that during his absence from the conference—for he is to sail for home early next month—America should be represented at the peace table by her full quota of five delegates. Furthermore, there are indications that such an additional delegate would continue to represent this country even in the event that the Chief Executive should return to France. Since the United States is allowed but five delegates, this would mean one of two alternatives:

First—That one of the four remaining delegates—Lansing, House, Bliss, or White—would have to make way for the new appointee;

Second—That the President would carry out his originally announced intention of attending the opening sessions without sitting as a permanent delegate.

PAPER MILL WORKERS THREATEN TO STRIKE

LUKE, Md., Jan. 20.—A strike of paper mill workers, involving plants in several States, is threatened today by leaders in the move to unionize employes of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

A mass meeting of employes was held last night, at which one of the principal speakers was W. H. Parker, vice-president of the National Paper Makers' Union. A representative of the Department of Labor, division of conciliation, has reached here and will seek to bring representatives of the paper mill and the employes together with a view to adjusting existing differences.

R.R.-WIRE RULING OF I. C. C. IS REVERSED

Rulings of lower courts reversing the interstate commerce decision of March 28, 1916, which it was claimed invalidated contracts between railroads and telegraph companies, were affirmed by the Supreme Court today. The roads and telegraph companies had contracts for interchange of service either free or at reduced rates the roads transporting materials and the company favoring the roads in sending messages.

The Interstate Commerce Commission decision was that the transportation of material by the roads at low cost was legal where the material was for use "along the lines" of the roads but illegal where the materials were used "off the line."

The telegraph companies declared they did not know exactly where they stood and to make a test case refused to abide by their contracts. Lower courts ruled against the Interstate Commerce Commission in three separate cases.

CENTENARIAN DIES AT HOSPITAL HERE

The Capital's oldest inhabitant is dead today at the Washington Asylum Hospital at the age of 107 years. He was Nelson Miner, colored, who lived at 1235 Fourth street northwest. A tobacco user all his life, the aged man was apparently in good health until a week ago. Heart trouble caused him to go to the Asylum Hospital for treatment. Physicians at the institution said today that otherwise he was strong and in good health.

Miner's death was due to infirmities which were attributed by his physicians to old age. He had been a resident of Washington since the end of the civil war. Miner was born in Virginia. After spending fifty-three years of his life a slave, the negro came to Washington at the close of the war. Miner died Friday, and his body was removed to his home.

The death of another centenarian, this one by suicide, was reported from Philadelphia today. After living more than a hundred years Frederick Layton, who lived at Fifth and Master streets in Philadelphia, committed suicide by hanging from a balcony. Layton celebrated his 100th birthday last October. Born in Nottingham, England, he came to this country forty years ago. Falling sight caused him to become melancholy.

TODAY

Have reason to say that. A little Wall Street foolishness can start a great deal of trouble, far from the corner of Broad and Wall.

Two pieces of good news. First, the beautiful Schoenbrunn palace of the imperial Hapsburg family is to be a home for poor children.

Second, Chinese workers in the State of Wisconsin, by draining, have transformed worthless marsh lands into wonderfully productive gardens.

Tens of millions of such wasted marsh lands are in this country. Why couldn't the Government with machinery directed by army officers and manned by American workers transform some millions of these acres into fertile lands, and give American soldiers a chance to buy them on the installment plan, out of crops.

Organization, intelligence, machinery, and lime will do the work. And six acres of such land will support a family well. Would it be "socialism" and abhorrent to make a few million more families self-supporting on this land?

conversation was to be made to the conferences. The coldest weather of the winter was prevailing in Paris today.

Confer on Russia.
The Russian situation was examined at a meeting of President Wilson and the prime ministers and foreign ministers of the allied powers at a meeting at the foreign office today. The French ambassador to Petrograd gave valuable information.

The following official communique was issued:
"The President of the United States of America, the prime ministers, and foreign ministers of the allied governments, assisted by Baron Makino, and the Japanese ambassador in Paris, met at the quai d'Orsay this morning between 10:30 and 12 o'clock.

"M. Moulens, the French ambassador to Russia, who returned a few days ago from Archangel, addressed the meeting and gave the particulars of the situation in Russia.
"The next meeting will take place on Tuesday at 10:30 o'clock in the morning to hear the remarks of M. Scavinius, the Danish minister in Petrograd, who left the Russian capital very recently."

SEN. ELKINS' SON SUED FOR DIVORCE

Blaine Elkins, son of the late Senator Stephen Elkins of West Virginia, was named defendant in a suit for absolute divorce filed today by Mrs. Mary Kenna Elkins, who alleges misconduct and names a co-respondent. Mrs. Elkins, who is represented by former Senator Joseph W. Bailey of Texas, says their marriage took place at Cincinnati, Ohio, January 28, 1908, and that her name before her marriage was Mary Slavin Kenna. She says they have one child whose name is Stephen B. Elkins, third, and whose permanent custody she asks.

Mrs. Elkins alleges that her husband "is possessed of a large fortune" and that "she is without money or property of her own." She asks the court to decree her a permanent annual alimony of $12,000 to be paid in monthly installments of $1,000 for her own maintenance and that of the child, together with an additional sum of $2,500 to defray the expenses of the suit. Mrs. Elkins petitions the court to issue an order restraining Mr. Elkins from disposing of his property. A court order was issued requiring Mr. Elkins to answer the suit of his wife.

FRANCETRUSTS YOU, PRESIDENT IS TOLD

PARIS, Jan. 20.—Antonin Dubost, president of the French Senate, in welcoming President Wilson at the luncheon given by the Senate to the American Executive, made the following speech.

"My colleagues and myself than you for having been so good as to accept our invitation and give some hours of a time which we know to be devoted to high meditations and important negotiations upon which the fate of the people depend.

"From your first step on the land of France, since your entry into Paris, the French people spontaneously gave their hearts to you and they perceived at once in your frank smile, in your so loyal and open physiognomy that you too were spontaneously giving yourself to them. You are today in an old palace of France, and it is among those grand reminders of past times that while a thought rejuvenated by republican ardor and yet with patriotism the French Senate continues to shape a history which has already counted for fifteen centuries.

Senate Is 'With Him.'
"We welcome here, Mr. President, you and your ideas. Nowhere could your splendid ambition to substitute for the periodically broken equilibrium of material forces the definite award of moral forces elicit more enthusiasm than in France, and nowhere in France than in the senate, since the statutes of international peace have been first of all and for a long time prepared by some of its most eminent members.

"But be assured, also, Mr. President, that there is nowhere in the world a country committed to a more formidable security than is France, being directly subjected to the secular thrust of a proud race which seems to be driven by some ancient longing for conquest. Our national problem consists therefore in combining our European past, our actual material security, with the conditions of the new order for which you have given so noble a formula, because this new order will ever have to lean on some force of which France, when all is told and done, will stand as the most advanced and the most exposed sentinel.

"It is with such a hope that we shall most willingly participate in the sublime crusade which you come to undertake on the devastated soil of old Europe, where hatred and discord still howl after the guns have become silent, and where anarchy causes a vast part of mankind to stagger.
"The task is a gigantic one, but it is worthy of your country, accustomed, as it is, to great undertakings, and of ours with our ancient artisanship of western civilization, and it is worthy of you, Mr. President, with your great heart and your high intelligence, which we salute with a joyful hope and fervent acclamation."
