

SAYS FOE CAN RAISE ARMY OF 3 MILLION

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Germany still has 12,000 airplanes and 4,000 field guns, it is declared by L. P. Locheur, French representative on the Peace Conference Committee on Preparation.

Gen. Tasker H. Bliss of the United States Peace Commission and Norman Davis, are expected to be the American representatives on a commission to draw up new armistice terms for Germany.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—The New York Times today prints the following copyrighted article:

PARIS, Feb. 10.—President Wilson's resolution, approved by the supreme war council Saturday, creating a Supreme Economic Council to consider certain matters arising under the armistice and also appointing civilian economic experts to the armistice commission, who shall report directly to the new economic council, is the direct outgrowth of the American delegates' increasing feeling that there has been too much militarism in the work of ending the war.

Foeh Dictated Details.
This feeling dates back at least to January 17, when civilian representatives of the allies, the United States and Germany met at Treves to determine upon the disposition of German merchant shipping. That was the conference which, under the chairmanship of Edward N. Hurley, took over all the German passenger and freight tonnage to be used for the transport of food to Europe and to carry home American and Australian soldiers.

But the relevant point now is that the Treves conference was held entirely under the auspices of Marshal Foch, who dictated every detail as to the time, place of meeting and the exact number of hours the delegates should be allowed to remain together. The main purpose of the conferences were accomplished, but there was a feeling at the time on the part of the civilians present that they could have accomplished still more, if figuratively speaking, there had not been a man with a sword standing at the door of the conference chamber to insist that they adjourn at a certain minute.

France Objected to Change.
This feature of the Treves conference, not hitherto disclosed, may be taken as a sample of various incidents which led up to a determination on the part of some delegates to the Peace Conference and in the Supreme War Council to substitute civilian for military methods whenever they think such a substitution will add to progress in the work of adjusting things with Germany.

Although there is nothing of the sort in the official communiqué, there is a report that the French members of the Supreme War Council did not give their approval to this apparent curtailment of the supreme power. Marshal Foch in the armistice dealings with Germany without a protest.

During the flight, the observer who accompanied Captain Lang became unconscious. Captain Lang was arrested immediately after the flight for disclosing the particulars of his flight without official permission.

Foeh Warns of Hun Strength.
In contrast with the apparent hedging as to supreme military power of Foch, great stress is laid on the importance of the marshal's warning that Germany is not living up to the armistice terms and that she can put 2,000,000 troops in the field by April 1, whereas the allies will have only 1,500,000 available at that date if the present rate of demobilization is kept up.

Foeh desires no real or apparent diminution of his authority. On the contrary, he wants his power greatly increased, and the armistice terms, which in the present period expires on February 17, will be made more rigid, by the occupation of Essen, the taking over of more artillery, and by compelling Germany to comply with all the terms of the armistice, which so far she has evaded.

People With Foch.
The French people are very largely in sympathy with Foch. They have never for a moment considered the war as over. There is constant dread of its being renewed under conditions that will reverse the victory of last November. Hence their lack of patience with all non-military methods to bring about the desired final result.

Forming a part of the same situation is the conviction in France that Germany is not yet defeated, and that Germany herself is rapidly waking up to the realization of that fact. As the latest piece of prime evidence of that fact, there is cited the speech of Dr. David, the president of the German National Assembly, at Weimar, in which he declared: "The life of Alsace-Lorraine belongs to that of the German nation, and we will never cease to demand that its inhabitants shall have the power of self-determination, according to the Wilson principles."

ALLIED AEROS BOMB BOLSHIEVİK TROOPS

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 11.—British and Russian airplanes flying low over the frozen timber land between the Vaga river and Volodga Railway are greatly harassing the bolshievik forces. This is one branch of the equipment in which the allies are superior to the enemy, who has virtually no aerial defense, while the allied fliers are demonstrating their efficiency despite the extreme cold.

On Sunday allied planes bombed the enemy occupied town of Taresovo and Shagovari and, flying farther south than the allied troops have yet penetrated, dropped bombs on enemy columns moving northward along the winter trails.

There has been considerable patrol and artillery activity in the Kadish and Sredmakrenka sectors. The enemy apparently was striving to regain the territory taken from him in the offensive raid south of Kadish last week. Other sectors are comparatively quiet.

The Russian government is taking steps to bring its forces up to the largest number available. The governor general has been authorized to mobilize all citizens up to forty years of age, including officers up to forty-five years. The previous mobilization order called out men under twenty-five years of age.

CREEL CAMOUFLAGE AN AD TO U. S. NAVY

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Lieut. Henry Reuterahl took 500 officers of the Third Naval district and their friends into his confidence at a dinner in the Astor Hotel last night and told them the big secret of how George Creel, chairman of the Committee on Public Information, answered the war time demands of the New York public for pictures showing what the navy was doing.

For months and months Lieutenant Reuterahl, who is an officer of the naval reserve, and other navy officers, he said, had been endeavoring to persuade the powers in Washington to organize a photographic division for the navy, just like the one that was picturing the army's exploits in the battle lines in France. It was no use, however, for the division wasn't formed.

Camouflaged Ships.
Nevertheless Mr. Creel got the pictures, and navy officers who had been behind the scheme for the photographic division gasped at his enterprise when the ships with their big guns very plain were shown here in all kinds of maneuvers. But it developed afterward, Lieutenant Reuterahl said, they were Japanese and Italian warships cleverly camouflaged by the Committee on Public Information, by the judicious placing here and there of an American flag and the removal of all Italian and Japanese insignia.

Eventually the navy's photographic division was formed and those at the dinner witnessed the first showing of the official film recording how the navy conveyed American troops to France. The film picked the soldiers up on their arrival at the port of debarkation in Hoboken and then showed navy officers going over charts showing the exact routes to be followed by the troop convoys. Down the bay the soldiers are seen starting for France at night, and then picking up the convoy of battleships a little distance beyond Sandy Hook.

Missed an Attack.
Smoke screens, submarine alarms aboard the ships, the dropping of test depth bombs and other incidents of the transports' passage are recorded. But the film did not happen to catch the actual submarine attack. The film was taken from the unfortunate transport President Lincoln, which was sunk on a later trip.

The dinner was the first social gathering the officers of the Third Naval district have had since the war began. The other speakers were Ensign E. C. McCulloch and Lieut. Joseph F. Wright.

PREDICT PORTUGAL REPUBLIC VICTORY

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Complete victory for the Portuguese republic forces within a short time was forecast in diplomatic circles here today.

Strong republican forces are gathering in the northern provinces, where the monarchists still hold out, while the blockade on the seaports controlled by the royalists is stiffening. The government at Lisbon considers there are enough troops already in the field to handle the situation, without calling on the expeditionary force which General Rodas placed at the country's disposal.

War Minister Cortezal has already left Lisbon for the front. President Canto Castro and other members of the Cabinet are expected to follow soon.

OLD SPANISH COIN CASHED BY SULTAN

LONDON, Feb. 11.—Spanish gold doubloons are not exactly common nowadays, but a number, valued as gold at about $2,000 recently, were taken over the counter of a city of London bank in exchange for current coin.

These rare coins were the property of the Sultan of Zanzibar, who brought them over on his recent trip to this country to pay expenses. They are an illustration of the remarkable hoarding propensities of Eastern people, as the doubloons were not in the least worn. They were as good as when minted some hundreds of years ago and the reverse side of each shows like a looking glass. They have been sent to the Government assay office and will be melted down.

MME. PETROVA PLEASES WAR WORKERS AT DANCE

Mme. Olga Petrova, star of the silent drama and vaudeville favorite, is as clever on a ball room floor as she is back of the footlights. Eight hundred employees of the surgeon general's office and their guests, who attended the office subscription dance at the Willard Hotel last night, can testify to this fact today.

Official Communique From Peace Conference

PARIS, Feb. 11.—The official communication dealing with the work of the supreme war council issued yesterday, says:

"A meeting of the supreme war council was held this afternoon from 3 to 5:30 o'clock at the Quai d'Orsay."

The conditions of the renewal of the armistice were first discussed, M. Klotz, French minister of finance, then described the work published in 1914 of the German great general staff, proving the premeditated and systematic character of the destruction of French industry. He gave a detailed analysis of this work, which it was decided to refer to the economic committee.

The next meeting will take place tomorrow at 3 o'clock. The Belgian delegates will first be heard.

The following communication was issued last night:

"The seventh meeting of the commission of the league of nations was held this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Hotel Crillon."

"As this reading the commission finished their first reading of the draft under discussion. In addition the drafting commission to whom the commission had intrusted the revision of certain articles of the draft, made its report. The meeting adjourned at 1:15 p. m. to resume its work at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning."

"Though certain of the earlier articles may be subject to re-examination at tomorrow's session, it is confidently expected that the commission will be able to proceed with the second reading of the draft."

The text of the official communication issued last night on the occasion of the committee on reparations met this morning at the ministry of finance, with M. Klotz in the chair. After hearing the members of the different subcommittees, the committee began the discussion of the principles upon which rest the right of reparation, and the examining of the memoranda submitted by the different delegations.

"William M. Hughes (premier of Australia) set forth the considerations upon which the British memorandum was based."

The official report of the commission on ports, waterways and railways issued last night, says:

"The commission on the international regime of ports, waterways, and railways held its second meeting at the ministry of public works today at 3 o'clock, under the chairmanship of M. Crespi."

"Two proposals were presented to the commission. The first, presented by the British delegation, relates to the freedom of interior transit, and the second, presented by the French delegation, relates to a study of the questions involved in the international regime of ports, waterways, and railways, as well as the rivers and railroads to which this regime should be applied."

"After an exchange of views among the members of the commission it was decided to appoint two small committees, one consisting of nine members, of which five should represent the great powers and four the minor powers, to study questions relative to the application of the international regime of ports, waterways and railways; the second, consisting of ten members, five from the great powers and five from the minor powers, to study the relation of general questions."

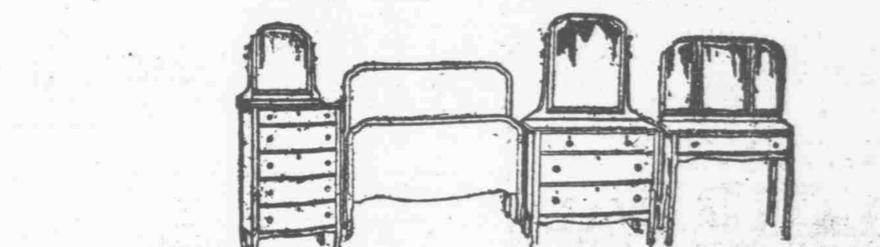

"The second of these committees will hold its first meeting on Thursday, February 13, at 2 o'clock."

REMOVE BONE FROM LEG TO RESTORE HIS LOST ARM

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 11.—By splitting a bone in his leg, taking out the piece and grating it into the right arm, where five inches of bone was shot out on the Argonne battlefield, surgeons believe they will restore a right arm of Capt. George Harston to its accustomed usefulness.

Medical men feel assured that both bones will grow out to their full proportions again.

CAN'T FIND DANDRUFF

Every bit of dandruff disappears after one or two applications of Danderine rubbed well into the scalp with the finger tips. Get a small bottle of Danderine at any drug store for a few cents and save your hair. After several applications you can't find a particle of dandruff or any falling hair, and the scalp will never itch.
