FOUNDER OF HEINZ PRODUCTS CO. DIES

PITTSBURGH, May 13.—H. J. Heinz, proprietor of the Heinz Food Products and a prominent Sunday school worker, died in his home here yesterday of pneumonia.

Mr. Heinz was a native of Pittsburgh. He was seventy-five years old. After receiving his education in the public schools and at business college he turned to commercial pursuits, and from a small beginning brought his business to vast proportions.

Interested in Gardening. When his parents moved to Sharpsburg, then a small village, where a garden of about three acres surrounded the home, Mr. Heinz became interested in gardening.

The success which he met in handling garden products suggested to him the idea of engaging in the business of packing pure food products.

He started in a modest way in 1869. The first factory consisted of the basement and one room of a dwelling. The first product was horseradish, packed in bottles.

In 1872 greater facilities were needed, and the business was moved to this city. It grew steadily, until now the main establishment occupies a floor space of thirty acres.

Mr. Heinz's interest in higher education is indicated by the fact that he was instrumental in founding and was chief supporter of the Kansas City University.

Sunday School Worker. In Sunday school work Mr. Heinz was an international figure. He was chairman of the executive committee of the World's Sunday School Association, for many years president of the Pennsylvania Sabbath school and vice president of the Sunday School Association of London.

During all his career Mr. Heinz took an advanced position on the social problem of the proper relations between employer and employee. He always took a great interest in civic affairs, and was a director of many banking institutions and civil organizations.

Mr. Heinz leaves two sons, Clifford Heinz, at home, and Howard J. Heinz, now in Europe, a member of the United States Food Administration. Howard Heinz also was State food director of Pennsylvania.

FIRST PHOTO OF PARIS "BLUEBEARD"

Henri Desire Landru.

The prevailing topic in Paris today is the wholesale disappearance of the wives of Henri Desire Landru, who has been arrested by the Paris police. In two years five wives of Landru, a resident of Paris, have disappeared under mysterious circumstances.

Hanged Sultan's Relatives. The party reached Rungema, Dr. Stierling relates, and there found Okwawa's son and also the head sultan's brother and four half-brothers. True to German custom, believing extinction of a race essential toward the introduction of "kultur," they hanged Kawawinjiki, the sultan's brother, and the four half-brothers, and arrested the son and other members of the family.

It is in this same spot that Mujinga, founder of the Okwawa dynasty, was buried, and it is believed that his bones, too, were taken from their resting place by Capt. von Prince.

The reason for the taking of Okwawa's skull to Germany is given by Dr. Stierling as purely scientific, and to allow "the famous professor, Dr. Luchan, to measure it."

After Capt. von Prince and his party had concluded their hanging party in Rungema they started for the coast taking with them Okwawa's son and the rest of the royal family as prisoners.

Capt. von Prince, who was in charge of the party, has also written a history of the people of German East Africa. He says little of Okwawa except to speak of the trouble the native ruler gave the German troops.

FIND WHO STOLE OKWAWA SKULL

NEW YORK, May 15.—Those responsible for the desecration of the grave of Sultan Okwawa, whose skull is demanded from Germany by the peace treaty, have been found, it is believed, by the Oriental department of the Public Library, through whose courtesy an authentic history has been given of this leader of the Wahheh tribes in East Africa, which for more than twenty years fought German Kultur.

Sultan Okwawa for years opposed the inroads of Germanism while he reigned over his tribe. The section he ruled lies north of Portuguese East Africa and east of Rhodesia, in the high mountain country.

It is in this same spot that Mujinga, founder of the Okwawa dynasty, was buried, and it is believed that his bones, too, were taken from their resting place by Capt. von Prince.

As a tribute to the late Colonel Roosevelt, Senator Calder of New York intends to introduce a bill on the opening day of the Sixty-sixth Congress changing the name of the Panama canal to the Roosevelt canal.

URGES PANAMA BE 'ROOSEVELT' CANAL

As a tribute to the late Colonel Roosevelt, Senator Calder of New York intends to introduce a bill on the opening day of the Sixty-sixth Congress changing the name of the Panama canal to the Roosevelt canal.

Former President Taft is one of the strongest advocates of such a memorial, which is endorsed by the most prominent men in public life.

"My bill does not carry any appropriation," said Senator Calder, "for none is necessary. The mere renaming of the great ditch after the one man who made it possible will be sufficient to carry out our idea. Of course, I assume there will be appropriate exercises when this rededication measure becomes law."

Inspiration for changing the name of the canal was received from Herman Hagedorn's book, "The Boy's Life of Roosevelt," by Capt. Thomas Butler, who suggested the plan to Senator Calder.

Captain Butler was given his idea from reading of the energy and activity of the former President in connection with the building of the canal, and from pictures showing Colonel Roosevelt throwing dirt from the "ditch."
