HOLD FETZER FOR TEST ON SANITY

John E. Fetzer, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon upon Louis Donaldson, in connection with the alleged shooting following an attempted hold-up of the Munsey Trust Company on August 13, was arraigned before Judge John P. McMahon, in the United States Branch of Police Court yesterday, and is being held today until an examination as to his mental condition can be made.

When brought before the court Fetzer mumbled something incoherently about being down-trodden and having the world against him, and paid no attention to the judge. The preliminary hearing was continued so that time may be had for an investigation as to his sanity.

GUN PRODUCTION HERE DECREASES

The pressure of gun production work at the Washington Navy Yard has decreased to such an extent that the night force has been discontinued in the breech mechanism shop, it was announced today. Practically all of the wartime production contracts, have been completed at the local yard.

During the war vast quantities of guns, gun supplies and cartridge cases were turned out by the local yard. The last of the cartridge case contracts were cleared up several months ago.

Five new lathes are to be installed, probably this week, in the new gun shop. The lathes will replace worn-out material and are for the use of the pack bit division.

The big railway gun now on exhibit in the northwest section of the yard will be left on exhibit there until Monday, and possibly later, it was said.

This gun can be seen without going into the yard, which is only permitted by pass. It is on the spur track at New Jersey avenue and M street, southeast, and is backed up within a few feet of the fence surrounding the yard, so that it can be examined closely.

The big 14-inch piece is mounted on the same twenty-four-wheel carriage on which it was moved in France.

One of the only five of its kind turned out in this country during the war, it is one of the largest railway guns ever built. It has a bore of 14 inches and fires a 1,400-pound shell a distance of 24.5 miles. During the war this gun fired 236 shells into the German lines, practically a life's work for so large a gun.

This gun was the first American made and manned gun fired against the foe in the war, the famous piece belonging to the First Division being a French-made gun.

It was manned by a naval gun crew, under command of Rear Admiral Charles E. Plunkett.

The gun was designed in 1917, the final design being completed December 23. Construction work was begun February 13, 1918, and the gun was completed April 28. Four days later it was given its final tests at the naval proving grounds and was shipped to France. It went to the battle front at St. Nazaire and fired its first shot August 17, 1918.

THE murder of Mrs. Lucina A. Broadwell, pretty young mother of three children, has stirred the entire State of Vermont. George A. Long, a mechanic, thirty-nine years old, and Mrs. Isabel Parker, sixty-nine years old, a milliner and rooming-house keeper, were arrested on May 15 and later were indicted on the charge of murder by the grand jury. In the lower part of the layout are shown Harry Broadwell, husband of the slain woman, and their three children. The upper left-hand inset is Mrs. Broadwell, the victim, and in the right inset George Long, who is facing trial for her murder.

PRESS CLUB HONORS UNCLE JOE CANNON

"We would have you live a thousand years and a day," said Bill Rodenberg, the well-known member of Congress from Illinois. "And we would live a thousand years less than a day, for we would not live to see you pass away."

Bill was winding up in the peroration of a nifty little speech introducing Uncle Joe Cannon at "Cannon night" at the Press club last evening, and just as Bill subsided, "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald, the singing mayor of Boston, now holding down a seat in the House of Representatives, jumped to the platform and led the cheering crowd as it told Uncle Joe that he was a jolly good fellow.

Uncle Joe was in regular form, told a lot of stories about old time newspaper men; and had considerable to say about the way money is wasted in Congress under the present system of appropriation.

Regular Money Saver.

You know Uncle Joe was one of the star chairmen of the appropriations Committee. Champ Clark said last night that if all the money Uncle Joe had saved the people of the United States could be made into dollar bills it would cover the District of Columbia easily; and Speaker Gillett said that Uncle Joe was in the height of all his glory as chairman of that great committee.

Uncle Joe gave some mighty good advice, when he declared that if the House Press Gallery could always be filled with writers, reporters there would always be a quorum in the House. His theory of course is that when the members see no reporters in the gallery they think it isn't worth staying on the job any more that day.

Leaping from that point, Uncle Joe touched lightly on subjects appertaining to the League of Nations and condemned that highly entertaining piece of public property with considerable vigor.

Nick Longworth President.

Nick Longworth, a member of the club, presided and in the language of the day, pulled a few good ones on himself, Honey Fitz, Champ Clark.

Speaker Gillett, the Press Club Quartet, Bill Rodenberg and everyone else in sight. He introduced Champ Clark as "the best beloved man on either side of the House." The former speaker, in a characteristic address recounted some of the characteristic episodes which he loves to tell and which make wonderful sidelights on current events.

He said that a recent photograph of himself, General Kieffer and Speaker Gillett was published in a Joplin, Mo. paper with the caption "The three leading German delegates to the Peace Conference."

The Press Club quartet is composed of Clifford Wilkins, Charles Bartlett, Ed Callow and James Shick. Claude Hobbes played an accompaniment.

Will Thomas, a club member, lugged in a barrel of cider and a barrel of apples from his farm near Sandy Spring and everybody had a drink. Ninety-nine men out of every hundred who drank asked this question, "Is there anything in it?"

DISTRICT JUDGE NAMED.

The President sent the following nomination to the Senate today: Charles K. Park, of Missouri, to be United States District Judge for the eastern district of Missouri.

Will Gompers Kill Red Leadership in Labor's Ranks

As many observers see it, the calling of the steel strike at this time reveals the purpose of certain revolutionary radicals to wrest control of the American Federation of Labor from the hands of Mr. Gompers and the other moderate-minded leaders and place the Reds in the saddle, thus making it "the first gun of the industrial revolution." Senator Kenyon declares that the strike is "the first skirmish in an industrial war in the United States" and the New York Times agrees that "it is industrial war in which the leaders are radicals, social and industrial revolutionaries, while their followers are chiefly the foreign element among the steel workers, steeped in the doctrines of the class struggle and social overthrow, ignorant and easily misled." "The authority and leadership of Mr. Gompers are at stake in this strike," adds the New York Times; "He has no liking for the revolutionary element in labor; for years he has fought against it; he has known the radicals were all the time seeking to destroy him." On the other hand, Mr. Gompers, himself, defends William Z. Foster, who is said to be "the brains of the whole campaign to unionize the steel industry" and a Radical.
