

URGES OFFICE GIRLS TO STAY WOMANLY

Mrs. Key Cammack, Bank Official, Advises Retaining Feminism in Business.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—"Concentration is what the business woman who would be successful needs—greater concentration upon her work to the exclusion of a thousand things which distract the feminine mind."

"The tentative attitude of women toward their jobs has given employers an impression of feminine instability. It has kept women's wages below men's."

"I do not believe women will find aping of masculine mannerisms and clothes an aid to success. An exquisite feminine personality is unique—and an asset."

Mrs. Key Cammack thus expressed some of her "Bayer package" concerning the business woman and success yesterday in her office at the New York Trust Company, Fifth avenue and East Fifty-seventh street.

The board of trustees recently appointed her assistant secretary of the bank, which makes her the second woman bank official in New York.

Mrs. Cammack is slender, graceful and young, with smiling eyes and graciousness of manner which speaks her Southern ancestry. For several years a writer of stories and verse she entered the New York Trust Company office last November to conduct a new department of financial educational work among women. She continued:

"I think the woman in business who gives up one particle of her femininity is throwing away just that much chance of success. Even greater will be her mistake to trade upon sex."

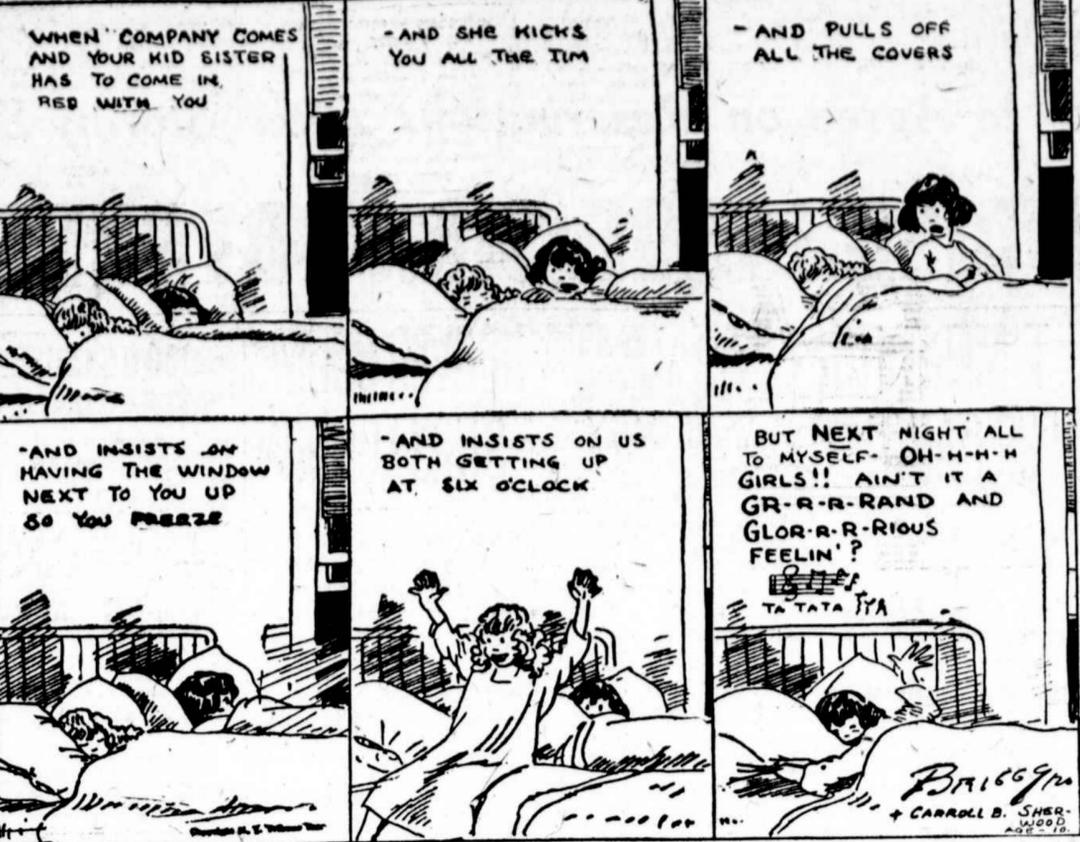

"The womanly woman, is the quintessence of desirability. What I call the 'feminine' woman has no place in the business world. She is the kind who'd drop her handkerchief and expect her boss to pick it up. The 'womanly' woman operates on a fifty-fifty basis of near-precision and care on the neither-copies-mannish-modes-of-dress-nor-dons-unsuitable-frills-for-the-office."

Mrs. Cammack yesterday carried out her idea of suitable business wear by wearing a modish gown of blue serge.

TREATY CONFEREES UNABLE TO AGREE

Arrange Truce Until Thursday After Stormy Debate—Article X Stumbling Block.

(Continued from First Page.) man, gave out this statement after the conference: "The Democratic members of this conference have considered the announcement made by Senator Lodge that he and his associates are not willing to consider any compromise on the Lodge reservation concerning Article X, nor on that relating to the Monroe Doctrine."

"The unexpected interruption of the conference and the decision to refuse any compromise on article 10 is all the more surprising because it seemed from expressions on both sides of the table that we were close to a possible compromise on this very important reservation by means of the following draft proposed by several Senators and already assented to by most of the members of the conference on both sides of the table before the interruption:

"The United States assumes no obligation to employ its military, or naval forces, or the economic boycott, to preserve the territorial integrity, or political independence, of any other country under the provisions of Article X, or to employ the military, or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case, the Congress, which under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war, or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall by act or joint resolution so provide. Nothing herein shall be deemed to impair the obligation in Article 16, concerning the economic boycott."

Trace Till Thursday. Lodge said he had no statement to make except that "we are unable to agree on the article 10 reservation." Lodge said the Thursday session was called at request of the Democrats. Hitchcock said the Republicans called it of their own accord.

Hitchcock, amplifying his formal statement, said he had presented his reply to the Lodge ultimatum and that a final break seemed inevitable. He then suggested that he would call the treaty up on the floor of the Senate, and asked the Republicans whether they would support that. He said they did not seem pleased by the suggestion and adjourned the meeting after setting Thursday for a further discussion.

"I shall not for the present move to take up the treaty in the Senate," Hitchcock said. "The situation is very tangled. The Republicans are divided among themselves."

TIME FOR FILING RUM INVENTORIES IS EXTENDED

Daniel C. Roper, internal revenue commissioner, today extended until February 10 the time for filing inventories by persons possessing liquor or other fluids containing one-half of one per cent alcohol suitable for beverage purposes.

Today was to have been the last day for filing returns, since the Volstead enforcement act stipulates such returns must be filed within ten days after the constitutional prohibition amendment became effective.

"FLU" HOLDING UP CENSUS RETURNS

Five Enumerators Forced to Quit—Siamese Envoy Listed By Zealous Worker.

Influenza has so depleted the ranks of the census enumerators in Washington that Robert E. Mattingly, district supervisor, fears the work will not be completed before the end of this week. He had predicted that the last of the 367 portfolios would be in by tonight. Up to 11 o'clock this morning 310 districts had reported, with the exception of scattering individual returns, mostly from hotels and boarding houses.

Washington still maintains its lead among the cities of the country in percentage of the field covered. Phya Prabha Karavongse, Siamese minister to the United States, and his family were listed as citizens of the District by one of the enumerators. It was discovered by Mr. Mattingly yesterday upon going over some of the reports.

A force of 600 persons already is at work in the building at Fourth street and Missouri avenue verifying the return slips and assorting them for tabulation. The count of population will commence as soon as returns are in from any one center, so that the population of Washington will probably be known by February 15.

In Washington so far five enumerators have had to be replaced because of influenza, and others have reported themselves ill and asked for extra time.

U. S. TO DEMAND AMERICANS FREED

Official Report of Capture of Red Cross Workers in Siberia Still Lacking.

The State Department today is preparing to take steps demanding the immediate release of the American Red Cross workers and seven American engineers, who it is reported in advices were captured by the bolsheviks at Kluchinskaya, Siberia.

Up to noon today no official report of the capture had been received by State Department or other Government officials here, but sufficient foundation for the report is based on press dispatches received from the consular services at Vladivostok and San Francisco, Cal.

According to the advices, the American consul, Ray Hansen, and twenty other Americans, members of the Stevens' railway staff, escaped capture. One Hundred Are Women.

Of more than 300 other American Red Cross workers and members of the railway staff said to be fleeing from Siberia, there are 100 women. It was said the all women were to be evacuated from Siberia on the first available transport.

The State Department or other officials have not received the names of the American railway staff who have been captured, but while steps are being made by the American consular officials at Vladivostok to ascertain exactly what forces made the capture and negotiations are being opened for their release, the American, the Federal authorities here have called for all facts in the case.

Included in the list of American railway engineers who fled from capture is believed to be Col. Frank Roosevelt Blunt, of Plano, Ill., a member of the Stevens Commission sent from America to aid in rehabilitating the Trans-Siberian Railway. Col. Blunt was formerly in the engineer reserve corps of the United States army. He also was general manager of the Chilean national railways, and previously had been general superintendent of the Chicago and Great Western road.

D. C. CENTRAL UNION WON'T BACK BERGER

Profiteers Denounced at Meeting—Urge Congress Take Stern Measures.

The discussion of politics, profiteering, sedition and legislation occupied a busy and varied meeting of the Central Labor Union last night. The union refused to endorse the position of Victor L. Berger as one of its principal actions. A communication from the Milwaukee Federated Trades Council, asking to recognize Berger as a bona fide member of the House of Representatives was unanimously voted down.

When W. W. Keeler, the newly elected president, had the resolution read and asked if there were any delegates favoring it, the meeting room resounded with negative exclamations. The vote was put, however, and resulted in all the delegates voting against the endorsement of Berger.

Senators Capper and McNary were commended for their fight against profiteers, but the union delegates declared that Congress should take more specific action than it has in the past.

In a lengthy political discussion Congressman Norman J. Gould, presidential campaign manager for General Leonard Wood, was criticized as having been a consistent foe of unionism. The attention of General Wood was directed to such a situation in resolutions.

An investigation into the affairs of the Seattle, Wash., Union Record, which, suppressed under laws relating to sedition, asked financial and moral assistance of the Central Labor Union, will be made by the local organization through a committee to be appointed for that purpose, it was decided last night.

Approval was given to Senator Pittman's bill, now in Congress, providing for reciprocity between the District and Maryland in regard to automobile licenses.
