

JOHNSON ATTACKS HOOVER'S POLICY

Senator Says His "Native Son" Rival is Conducting Filthy Campaign.

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.—Herbert C. Hoover's campaign in California was swatted by "Hi" Johnson yesterday.

Both Hoover and the Senator are "native sons" of California. Each is gunning for the Republican Presidential nomination. Johnson has served two terms as governor.

Expressing ejection over his lead against his rival in the Montana primary election and predicting he would have a "majority of the delegates" at Chicago, Senator Johnson delivered his punch at Hoover before leaving the city yesterday.

New Jersey's primaries are held next Tuesday, and Johnson is out to capture a slice of the national convention delegation.

"I have just received wires from California," said Senator Johnson, as he lit a cigar and placed his derby atop his head at a jaunty angle, "that the good Mr. Hoover is conducting the filthiest, nastiest, most disreputable campaign ever waged there."

The criticism of the former food administrator's campaign fairly exploded from Senator Johnson's lips. From the next room of their suite at the Bellevue-Stratford ran Mrs. Johnson. She eagerly followed every verbal knock at Hoover.

"Hoover has behind him every crooked and disreputable force and enormous sums of money. He is stopping at nothing that is disreputable, indecent and dishonest," continued the Senator.

Mrs. Johnson laughed and whispered to one of the Senator's political aides: "Hi" is certainly handing it to Hoover.

MARGUERITE L. SMITH, who is the first woman ever to preside over the New York Assembly. She wielded the gavel during a short but stormy session.

JOHNSON CARRIES MONTANA EASILY

Incomplete Returns Show He Received Majority of All G. O. P. Votes.

BUTTE, Mont., April 23.—Incomplete returns from the Presidential primary election indicate that Senator Hiram Johnson has received more votes than were cast for all of his opponents on the Republican ballot. Wood is second, with Hoover, Lowden, and Harding following the order named.

Out of 250 precincts, Johnson received 8,253 votes; Wood, 1,604; Hoover, 1,250; Lowden, 1,139; and Harding, 141. There are 1,500 precincts in the State.

Available returns show President Wilson is leading the Democrats. No Democratic candidate's name had been filed, and voters had to write in their preference.

CALIFORNIA JURIST DROWNS SELF IN TUB

OAKLAND, Cal., April 23.—Henry A. Melvin, aged fifty-five years, assistant justice of the California supreme court, committed suicide here yesterday. Judge Melvin locked himself in a bathroom at the Merritt Hospital, filled the tub full of water, and then lay face downward in the tub to await death, according to hospital authorities. When attendants broke down the door he was dead.

Judge Melvin had been ill for some time, and it is said suicidal mania was responsible for the act.

SCHOOL DRIVE PLANNED.

A stay-in-school drive to inspire children to continue their education is being planned throughout the country for May, the children's bureau of the Labor Department announced. This will be followed in the autumn with a "back-to-school drive."

KING GEORGE HAS TO WRITE TO EX-KAISER

Asks Fallen Monarch To Name Trustee in Germany For Connaught Estate.

LONDON, April 23.—The first known post-bellum communication between King George and the former Kaiser has just been made in connection with the marriage settlement of late Duchess of Connaught, of which the late King Edward and Wilhelm II were co-trustees.

When King Edward died, the former Kaiser nominated King George as his co-trustee. Under the settlement part of the Glenelg estate, near Potsdam (where the late Duchess of Connaught lived with her brother, Prince Leopold of Prussia, before her marriage), was settled on the duchess for life. After her death, the property was to be divided equally among the children of the marriage.

The duchess' children, Prince Arthur of Connaught and his two sisters, are now petitioning for the sale of the estate and King George has had to write to the erstwhile German emperor requesting him to appoint a trustee in Germany who can carry out the sale and wind up the estate of the fallen monarch has undertaken to do.

Hopeless to Expect Jews Will Aid Brothers in All Lands, Says Zangwill

LONDON, April 23.—"I have wasted half my life in trying to bring about solidarity among the Jews," said Israel Zangwill, the Zionist author, at Steinway Hall. "The Jew," he added, "will fight for the country that shelters him, but he will not make common cause with fellow-Jews in other countries."

CARNEGIE

Carnegie was an industrious reader.

Without proper care of his eyes he would not have been able to acquire his great knowledge and ability.

It is easy to ascertain the condition of your eyes. Come in today for an examination. It is good judgment to be sure your eyes are normal.

And in having your eyes examined here, you take advantage of our motto—"The Best Service at the Lowest Prices Consistent with Efficient Service."

You are assured not only of the personal service of our capable optometrists, experienced opticians and skilled mechanics, but with this attention you get the benefit of the minimum in costs.

We Have the Most Completely Equipped Laboratory in Washington

SHELLTEX FRAMES SPECTACLES OR EYEGLASSES. Value $4.00..... $2.00

Fitted With Crystal Spherical Lenses. Value $8.00..... $3.95

Oculists' Prescriptions Accurately Filled to Your Oculist's or Hospital Approval.

GET OUR LOW PRICES ON OCULISTS' PRESCRIPTIONS BEFORE GOING ELSEWHERE.

WHY PAY MORE!

SHAH OPTICAL CO.

OPOMETRISTS OPTICIANS

525 Seventh Street N. W.

G. O. P. SPLIT IN THREE FACTIONS

Climax Will Be Reached on Floor of Chicago Convention.

(Continued from First Page.)

lean delegates will be selected, thirty-five in Massachusetts, twenty-eight in New Jersey; and forty-eight in Ohio.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, who has been stumpng New Jersey for Senator Hiram Johnson, returned to Washington yesterday. He said the situation there is much the same as it was in Michigan. "The machine," he declared, is against Johnson, but the people are for him. Senator Kenyon believed the result would be close.

Ohio is expected to show significant results. The main contest is between Warren G. Harding, now United States Senator from that State and its former governor, and Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, who has dared carry the fight against the "favorite son" into his own yard. Senator Penrose, one of the "big chiefs" of the party, has allowed it to go out that he "favors a man of the Harding type," but the fact that Colonel Proctor, General Wood's main backer, is a Cincinnati man is expected to counterbalance the "favorite son" advantage to some extent.

Ohio Poll Favors Harding.

A poll taken by the International News Service in Ohio, which included all the editors of daily newspapers of that State with respect to their particular politics, brought out forty-one Republican ballots and thirty-eight Democratic ones. Harding was first choice of thirty-five of the forty-one editors, and second choice of three; General Wood was second being the second choice of twenty-six editors and first choice of four. Gov. Frank Lowden, of Illinois, ran third with seven second choice votes and twenty third, a total of twenty-seven. Senator Johnson came fourth, obtaining six votes for third choice.

Among the Democrats there was considerably more cohesion. Governor Cox, of a total of thirty-eight votes, obtained thirty-six, all as first choice candidate for the nomination at San Francisco. Governor Edwards, of New Jersey, and Herbert Hoover each obtaining one of the other two first choice votes.

Second to Cox, however came William G. McAdoo, with eleven votes, as second-choice candidate.

But the main interest, not only in Ohio, but in all the remaining States, lies in the trend towards factions, Republican and Democratic. Both parties are destined to suffer from the New England split.

Approaching the same, unless the fast multiplying signs fall. For, while the Penrose, Johnson and Hoover crowds are hammering each other for all they are worth inside the camp of the G. O. P., the Wilson, Bryan, and Edwards factions, within the Democratic party will be out after one another's scalps.

Under the title: "To Walk With God," Anne W. Lane (Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the former Secretary of the Interior), and Harriet Blaine Beale, daughter of the late James G. Blaine, have recorded a remarkable experience in automatic writing. It is a series of psychic messages from a spirit that has never been on earth, and published and copyrighted by Deed, Mead & Co., as one of their "Deeper Issues" series, dealing largely with the subject of life after death.

It comes in almost quakerish garb—brown broad covers with a green cloth back, the title and the names—"Lane-Beale"—in the simplest type. And within, its message is equally simple, equally unobtrusive, equally direct. Nothing could be more impressive. One cannot read it without being impressed with its dignity and reverent sincerity. If there be those who pick it up in a spirit of flippancy they will not have finished the introduction in which is set forth how it came to be written, without leaving that behind. Having come to scoff they will probably remain to pray.

That "introduction" is not the least interesting part of the little volume. It tells how, even to the title, it is the record of a first experience in automatic writing, which Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were engaged in war relief work, and Mrs. Lane was directing the convalescent home established by the Interior Department's relief organization as an adjunct to Walter Reed Hospital.

Get Data From Planchette.

It was only after weeks of effort with planchette, a small heart-shaped article made of wood, with two legs on wheels at the back, and a pencil making the third leg in front, that they were able to get coherent messages. They explain that more and the planchette "because it seemed less liable to unconscious muscular action than a pencil held in the hand, and at first we obtained only circles, words, fragments of sentences, with irrelevant messages cutting into what we hoped vainly would become a connected phrase. We were extremely interested but bewildered and baffled at every turn. It was more like opening a window to a crowded street and listening to the chance words one could catch, than like anything else in the world."

Finally, on the eleventh day came the desired change. From the moment we began the writing was firmer and more impelling, and we were told at once that whoever was using our hands had come to stay with us. We had technical phraseology "found our control," though we were both too inexperienced to recognize it.

Naturally one assumes that Mrs. Beale was moved to the writing, and the planchette, primarily by the yearning for some word from her beloved son, killed in action. If so she would appear to have been disappointed. There is not a word that indicates any direct communication from one of those whom we have loved long since, and lost a while. Their spirit had never been on earth. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were told, differing in that respect from the majority of the "spiritual guides" who were seeking to reach and help the people of this world. But even so one can understand that the experience was of the greatest possible comfort to her.

Not Without Love.

Their spirit tells them much of conditions "here."

"We are all materially of the same elements that we were on earth, only less cumbersome than when there, and being elementally the same, we have the same emotions and life. We love as we did then and all spiritual forces are busy with the various works which occupied them while they were on earth."

And further on: "There is no truth in this—that we are without affection and not interested in the world. We love as you do. We are more interested than ever in those we loved on earth, and our one desire is to help them and have them with us in this beautiful place. It is very beautiful here, and all who wish listen to beautiful music. When we work we are filled with joy and we are full of love for all. There are all kinds of things here which we have never known on earth—all kinds of flowers and trees and birds and animals. We are never better able to work than here. We are after all working to our full capacity as spirits. We are all working for the world."

"When we work here we work with our strength and until we are tired. Then we rest in one of those beautiful resting places of this land." These had already been described with a warning that one must not overwork. "There is reason in all things and to overwork is also breaking the law. 'God made heaven and earth in six days, and rested the seventh,' man must have his periods of rest on earth and here. We all rest here when we are tired, and there is a wonderful rest here which is not like your sleep, but which refreshes us even more. We rest in a beautiful tableland surrounded by hills with little streams of water flowing on all sides. There are flowers of all sorts and of all colors. Flowers of all sorts and of all colors, and the welcoming guardian of the place serves both our bodies and our souls."

Spirit Almost Sealed.

On another occasion the spirit comes very near to scolding "Anne." It is "not able to work today." Anne is too tired. "And when Anne is tired the guide is not able to use her psychic mind." Then as she asks how she is to rest more, "You must not worry about things that do not matter. The hospital is not a necessary thing for Anne. She ought to rest after lunch and be fresh for this most important work." Receiving the "lessons" is apparently rated of much more importance than answering questions. "Some questions can, it seems some times, be answered even when "Anne is tired."

They ask, "Will capital and labor ever be able really to meet?" And the spirit answers, "No, not now; both are blind. But in time the laboring classes will see that each one is necessary to the other."

The appendix is most interesting. It sets forth with fidelity the notes taken of the first four lessons, "showing just how we received the series, also the correction and revision of the same lessons given at a later date." The authors' intentions were, the spirit guide directed the publication of the lessons to give the conversations as received, and then put the corrected lessons at the end. "The spirit approved this, but told them to put the corrected lessons "at the beginning," in which form the book appears.

D. C. Women Get Data For Spirit World Book By Automatic Writing

Under the title: "To Walk With God," Anne W. Lane (Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the former Secretary of the Interior), and Harriet Blaine Beale, daughter of the late James G. Blaine, have recorded a remarkable experience in automatic writing. It is a series of psychic messages from a spirit that has never been on earth, and published and copyrighted by Deed, Mead & Co., as one of their "Deeper Issues" series, dealing largely with the subject of life after death.

It comes in almost quakerish garb—brown broad covers with a green cloth back, the title and the names—"Lane-Beale"—in the simplest type. And within, its message is equally simple, equally unobtrusive, equally direct. Nothing could be more impressive. One cannot read it without being impressed with its dignity and reverent sincerity. If there be those who pick it up in a spirit of flippancy they will not have finished the introduction in which is set forth how it came to be written, without leaving that behind. Having come to scoff they will probably remain to pray.

That "introduction" is not the least interesting part of the little volume. It tells how, even to the title, it is the record of a first experience in automatic writing, which Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were engaged in war relief work, and Mrs. Lane was directing the convalescent home established by the Interior Department's relief organization as an adjunct to Walter Reed Hospital.

Get Data From Planchette.

It was only after weeks of effort with planchette, a small heart-shaped article made of wood, with two legs on wheels at the back, and a pencil making the third leg in front, that they were able to get coherent messages. They explain that more and the planchette "because it seemed less liable to unconscious muscular action than a pencil held in the hand, and at first we obtained only circles, words, fragments of sentences, with irrelevant messages cutting into what we hoped vainly would become a connected phrase. We were extremely interested but bewildered and baffled at every turn. It was more like opening a window to a crowded street and listening to the chance words one could catch, than like anything else in the world."

Finally, on the eleventh day came the desired change. From the moment we began the writing was firmer and more impelling, and we were told at once that whoever was using our hands had come to stay with us. We had technical phraseology "found our control," though we were both too inexperienced to recognize it.

Naturally one assumes that Mrs. Beale was moved to the writing, and the planchette, primarily by the yearning for some word from her beloved son, killed in action. If so she would appear to have been disappointed. There is not a word that indicates any direct communication from one of those whom we have loved long since, and lost a while. Their spirit had never been on earth. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were told, differing in that respect from the majority of the "spiritual guides" who were seeking to reach and help the people of this world. But even so one can understand that the experience was of the greatest possible comfort to her.

Not Without Love.

Their spirit tells them much of conditions "here."

"We are all materially of the same elements that we were on earth, only less cumbersome than when there, and being elementally the same, we have the same emotions and life. We love as we did then and all spiritual forces are busy with the various works which occupied them while they were on earth."

And further on: "There is no truth in this—that we are without affection and not interested in the world. We love as you do. We are more interested than ever in those we loved on earth, and our one desire is to help them and have them with us in this beautiful place. It is very beautiful here, and all who wish listen to beautiful music. When we work we are filled with joy and we are full of love for all. There are all kinds of things here which we have never known on earth—all kinds of flowers and trees and birds and animals. We are never better able to work than here. We are after all working to our full capacity as spirits. We are all working for the world."

"When we work here we work with our strength and until we are tired. Then we rest in one of those beautiful resting places of this land." These had already been described with a warning that one must not overwork. "There is reason in all things and to overwork is also breaking the law. 'God made heaven and earth in six days, and rested the seventh,' man must have his periods of rest on earth and here. We all rest here when we are tired, and there is a wonderful rest here which is not like your sleep, but which refreshes us even more. We rest in a beautiful tableland surrounded by hills with little streams of water flowing on all sides. There are flowers of all sorts and of all colors. Flowers of all sorts and of all colors, and the welcoming guardian of the place serves both our bodies and our souls."

Spirit Almost Sealed.

On another occasion the spirit comes very near to scolding "Anne." It is "not able to work today." Anne is too tired. "And when Anne is tired the guide is not able to use her psychic mind." Then as she asks how she is to rest more, "You must not worry about things that do not matter. The hospital is not a necessary thing for Anne. She ought to rest after lunch and be fresh for this most important work." Receiving the "lessons" is apparently rated of much more importance than answering questions. "Some questions can, it seems some times, be answered even when "Anne is tired."

They ask, "Will capital and labor ever be able really to meet?" And the spirit answers, "No, not now; both are blind. But in time the laboring classes will see that each one is necessary to the other."

The appendix is most interesting. It sets forth with fidelity the notes taken of the first four lessons, "showing just how we received the series, also the correction and revision of the same lessons given at a later date." The authors' intentions were, the spirit guide directed the publication of the lessons to give the conversations as received, and then put the corrected lessons at the end. "The spirit approved this, but told them to put the corrected lessons "at the beginning," in which form the book appears.

WOOD HAS EDGE AS N. J. PRIMARIES NEAR

TRENTON, N. J., April 23.—When polls open for the primaries in New Jersey on Tuesday, one of the most exciting contests held in this State since Roosevelt ran against Taft in 1912 will be on. As the time draws near for the primaries, the Republican organization in New Jersey, which is solidly arrayed behind Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, is straining to capture New Jersey delegation to the convention.

Ten candidates for the "big four" to go to the convention the New Jersey organization has had four pledged for Wood. Only two have come out for Johnson. Reports were current that Wood, Sen. E. E. Edwards, and Senator Frelinghuysen would announce their preference for the Californian before the primaries opened.

GIRLS TO VIE WITH DOGS FOR NOTICE AT D. C. SHOW

"Capitol Hill Be Kind To Animals Club" Will Wear Overalls To Exhibit.

Clad in overalls, girls of the "Capitol Hill Be Kind To Animals Club" will attend the dog show of the Washington Kennel Club, May 7 and 8, in a body. At the show, Miss Helen Spencer, president, to ask Congressman W. D. Upshaw of Georgia to go with them, wearing his overalls.

The bench show committee, at its headquarters, 1127 Eleventh street northwest, last night announced that cash prizes have been increased from $1,500 to $2,400. Because of the large number of entries, the time for entries has been extended until tomorrow.

Among recent entries is Shamus O'Brien, largest Irish wolfhound in the world, owned by Lieut. Col. Francis T. Atterbury, U. S. A. E. E. McLean will also enter his high priced bull dog, Howe Totten will bring his entire kennel, including his collection of Great Danes.

Frida, May 7, has been designated as society day. The commander of Fort Myer, Va., and his staff will be invited to attend.

20 Fat Women Scare Off Lone Man in Six Weeks' Course to Cut Weight

CHICAGO, April 23.—Twenty women volunteers of an average weight of 220 3/4 pounds have started a six-weeks' officially sponsored course in reducing here under the direction of Health Commissioner John Dill. The women, who are taking the course, prescribed diets and accepted reducing exercises will comprise their program for the next six weeks.

Commissioner Robertson had called for fifty volunteers, half men and half women. Twenty fat women and one fat man answered. The man fled when he found himself the only male of the species.

Twelve of the women are housewives, two typists, one a stenographer, two clerks, one mercantile buyer, one office manager and one a nurse.

THIS little girl insisted upon getting in the way while mother was doing the washing and finally pulled the tub of water over on herself. Mother, being too busy to change the tot's clothing, hung her up to dry on the clothes line.

D. C. Women Get Data For Spirit World Book By Automatic Writing

Under the title: "To Walk With God," Anne W. Lane (Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, wife of the former Secretary of the Interior), and Harriet Blaine Beale, daughter of the late James G. Blaine, have recorded a remarkable experience in automatic writing. It is a series of psychic messages from a spirit that has never been on earth, and published and copyrighted by Deed, Mead & Co., as one of their "Deeper Issues" series, dealing largely with the subject of life after death.

It comes in almost quakerish garb—brown broad covers with a green cloth back, the title and the names—"Lane-Beale"—in the simplest type. And within, its message is equally simple, equally unobtrusive, equally direct. Nothing could be more impressive. One cannot read it without being impressed with its dignity and reverent sincerity. If there be those who pick it up in a spirit of flippancy they will not have finished the introduction in which is set forth how it came to be written, without leaving that behind. Having come to scoff they will probably remain to pray.

That "introduction" is not the least interesting part of the little volume. It tells how, even to the title, it is the record of a first experience in automatic writing, which Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were engaged in war relief work, and Mrs. Lane was directing the convalescent home established by the Interior Department's relief organization as an adjunct to Walter Reed Hospital.

Get Data From Planchette.

It was only after weeks of effort with planchette, a small heart-shaped article made of wood, with two legs on wheels at the back, and a pencil making the third leg in front, that they were able to get coherent messages. They explain that more and the planchette "because it seemed less liable to unconscious muscular action than a pencil held in the hand, and at first we obtained only circles, words, fragments of sentences, with irrelevant messages cutting into what we hoped vainly would become a connected phrase. We were extremely interested but bewildered and baffled at every turn. It was more like opening a window to a crowded street and listening to the chance words one could catch, than like anything else in the world."

Finally, on the eleventh day came the desired change. From the moment we began the writing was firmer and more impelling, and we were told at once that whoever was using our hands had come to stay with us. We had technical phraseology "found our control," though we were both too inexperienced to recognize it.

Naturally one assumes that Mrs. Beale was moved to the writing, and the planchette, primarily by the yearning for some word from her beloved son, killed in action. If so she would appear to have been disappointed. There is not a word that indicates any direct communication from one of those whom we have loved long since, and lost a while. Their spirit had never been on earth. Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Beale were told, differing in that respect from the majority of the "spiritual guides" who were seeking to reach and help the people of this world. But even so one can understand that the experience was of the greatest possible comfort to her.

Not Without Love.

Their spirit tells them much of conditions "here."

"We are all materially of the same elements that we were on earth, only less cumbersome than when there, and being elementally the same, we have the same emotions and life. We love as we did then and all spiritual forces are busy with the various works which occupied them while they were on earth."

And further on: "There is no truth in this—that we are without affection and not interested in the world. We love as you do. We are more interested than ever in those we loved on earth, and our one desire is to help them and have them with us in this beautiful place. It is very beautiful here, and all who wish listen to beautiful music. When we work we are filled with joy and we are full of love for all. There are all kinds of things here which we have never known on earth—all kinds of flowers and trees and birds and animals. We are never better able to work than here. We are after all working to our full capacity as spirits. We are all working for the world."

"When we work here we work with our strength and until we are tired. Then we rest in one of those beautiful resting places of this land." These had already been described with a warning that one must not overwork. "There is reason in all things and to overwork is also breaking the law. 'God made heaven and earth in six days, and rested the seventh,' man must have his periods of rest on earth and here. We all rest here when we are tired, and there is a wonderful rest here which is not like your sleep, but which refreshes us even more. We rest in a beautiful tableland surrounded by hills with little streams of water flowing on all sides. There are flowers of all sorts and of all colors. Flowers of all sorts and of all colors, and the welcoming guardian of the place serves both our bodies and our souls."

Spirit Almost Sealed.

On another occasion the spirit comes very near to scolding "Anne." It is "not able to work today." Anne is too tired. "And when Anne is tired the guide is not able to use her psychic mind." Then as she asks how she is to rest more, "You must not worry about things that do not matter. The hospital is not a necessary thing for Anne. She ought to rest after lunch and be fresh for this most important work." Receiving the "lessons" is apparently rated of much more importance than answering questions. "Some questions can, it seems some times, be answered even when "Anne is tired."

They ask, "Will capital and labor ever be able really to meet?" And the spirit answers, "No, not now; both are blind. But in time the laboring classes will see that each one is necessary to the other."

The appendix is most interesting. It sets forth with fidelity the notes taken of the first four lessons, "showing just how we received the series, also the correction and revision of the same lessons given at a later date." The authors' intentions were, the spirit guide directed the publication of the lessons to give the conversations as received, and then put the corrected lessons at the end. "The spirit approved this, but told them to put the corrected lessons "at the beginning," in which form the book appears.

RUSS-TURK PACT AIMED AT BRITAIN

New Entente to Fight Against Imperialism in East, Says Nazim Bey.

(Continued from First Page.)

serted that 500 of these officers have already departed for Afghanistan.

He said the English had hoped to influence the millions of Mohammedans under her domination through occupying Constantinople and making that city the seat of the Moslem religion.

Sultan Practically Prisoner.

Sultan Mohammed, he added, is practically a prisoner, but this was countered by Mustafa Kemal Pasha (the Turkish nationalist leader) suspending Mohammed as caliph.

"The Koran" (the Mohammedan Bible), wisely provides that the head of the Mohammedan religion never can be captured nor be made a prisoner, in that it ordains that Caliph must be free and independent in his actions and decrees at all times, and that he automatically ceases to be the worldly head of the church the moment he is taken prisoner, because as such he loses his freedom and independence," said Dr. Nazim.

"Every Moslem knows that with our capital under the guns of the British fleet and British military occupation, the Sultan is no longer free and independent. Therefore, the decrees and orders he issues cannot be binding upon the Moslems."

Dr. Nazim Bey laid great stress on what it means to Turkey and the Mohammedan world generally that Russia has been enlisted as an ally against Britain.

ANGLO-TURKISH PLOT IS CHARGED BY ITALY

ROME, April 23.—Judging from the trend of the Italian press, the Anglo-Italian joining of forces, first against France's occupation of Frankfort, and later on economic and political issues of world importance, has not brought forth the enthusiasm in Italy that her statesmen had looked for.

There is much bitter comment on Britain's procedure in the East and the dominant role she is playing in the settlement of the Turkish problem.

Leading Italian newspapers are reprinting in full the recent dispatch of Karl H. von Wiegand, giving what purports to be the text of a secret Anglo-Turkish agreement, said to have been signed in 1915.

This alleged pact is cited here as proof of what is called "British imperialism" and "Albion's selfish grabbing game in the East."

von Wiegand's dispatch mentioned above contained the alleged terms of a "secret agreement" between Turkey and Britain, giving Britain control of the Dardanelles and domination of Mesopotamia and Syria, in return for which Britain was said to have pledged to keep the Turks in Europe, with Constantinople remaining their capital and the seat of the head of the Moslem faith.

Both the London and Paris foreign offices have denied the existence of this pact.

Leaving aside the question of the existence of the treaty, it is noteworthy that the three main stipulations it is said to contain are today virtually accomplished.

1—Britain fleet dominates Dardanelles.

2—Britain controls Mesopotamia and holds the whip hand in Syria.

3—The treaty is retained in Europe with Constantinople still his capital.

BABY IS ONLY ONE TO ESCAPE SLAYER OF SIX

Farmer, His Wife, Three Children And Hired Man Found Slain In Their Home.

BISMARCK, N. D., April 23.—Attracted by the crying of a baby while he was passing the Wolf Farm, three miles from Turtle Lake, late yesterday, John Kraft investigated. He found the bodies of Jacob Wolf, Mrs. Wolf, and four of their children, and the body of a farm hand, name not known. All had been killed by buckshot fired from a shot gun.

The only member of the family spared was the year-old baby.

Wolf and one of the children were found in the barn, while Mrs. Wolf and the other three children were found in the cellar.

Hundreds of shells littered the ground around the house and barn, and the bodies of the victims were torn almost to pieces by the shot. The coroner and sheriff have taken charge.

2 W. R. & E. EMPLOYEES RETIRED ON PENSIONS

Two employees of the Washington Railway and Electric Company were retired on pensions at the meeting of the pension board yesterday.

George W. Luckett, car cleaner at the Four and High street car house, an employee of the company for nineteen years, was granted the minimum pension allowance of $20 per month, retroactive as of March 1, 1920. He is sixty years old.

J. H. Gatos, fifty-seven years old, motorman on the northern division for thirty years, was granted a pension allowance of $31.57 per month, retroactive as of March 1, 1920.

GREATER CARE OF INFANTS IS URGED

Child Welfare Society Issues Annual Report—28,000 Babies Visited.

Urging closer and wider medical supervision of children of pre-school age and declaring this need to be greater today than ever, the annual report of the Child Welfare Society, formerly the Washington Diet Kitchen Association, has been made public.

The society, which centers its work among infants and children up to six years of age, has been conducting a weighing and measuring campaign in the city, in order to study the development of children and to instruct the parents as to the care of the child.

In many instances babies are found undernourished or suffering with some disease without the parents' knowledge. The result of this study has been more than gratifying, the reports state, and tables are presented showing the reduction in the number of deaths among infants.

5,000 Babies Visited.

During 1919, the report shows, nearly 5,000 babies and children came under the supervision of the society, which society endeavors to reach such after birth as many infants as possible in order to give instructions as to the care of the child. Many organizations in the District have been cooperating with the society in its work.

Intensive surveys of pre-school children are contemplated. The society has eight branches in various parts of the city, and from these points the surveys will be made. When children are found underweight for their age, or suffering with any ailments, the society gives them and their parents the care to see that the advice is followed.

More than 28,000 visits were made last year by nurses and physicians to give the supervision of the society, an increase of 9,000, compared to 19,000 made during the previous year.

Dr. Harry S. Bernth, director of the society and writer of the report, gives a list of the society's work during the past year. He urges wide publicity in both pulp and press of the need of medical supervision of pre-school age children. He asks the medical profession be enlisted so that supervision be exercised under the direction of the private physician over all babies born in the District.

Officers of the society and the board of managers follow:

President, Miss Mary Gwynn; vice president, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall; second vice president, Mrs. David F. Houston; secretary, Mrs. William A. Hammond; treasurer, Mrs. Lewis C. Ecker.

Board of managers—Miss Cornelia Aldis, Mrs. Frederick Atherton, Mrs. Boris Bakmetoff, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Mrs. Gist Blair, Mrs. Joseph Bradley, Mrs. James S. Harlan, Mrs. Louis Brownlow, Mrs. Allison Cushman, Mrs. Charles D. Easton, Mrs. Lewis C. Ecker, Col. William E. Fowler, Mrs. Ethel Goodwin, Mrs. H. C. Graef, Mrs. Gwynn, Mrs. William G. Harlan, Mrs. James S. Harlan, Mrs. Charles M. Hinkle, Mrs. David F. Houston, Mrs. Charles B. Henderson, Mrs. Loren B. T. Johnson, Mrs. Henry F. Leonard, Mrs. William Littauer, Mrs. Ezra B. McCague, Mrs. Thomas R. Marshall, Mrs. James F. Mitchell, Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Miss Marion Oliver, Mrs. H. C. Perkins, Mrs. William Phillips, Mrs. Atlee Pomeroy, Mrs. J. H. Purdy, Mrs. H. H. Rogers, Mrs. Charles Sheel, Mrs. James S. Harlan, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Frank West, Mrs. Max West, Mrs. John F. Wilkins, and Mrs. Charles H. Woodhull.

R. R. SERVICE TO BE NORMAL MONDAY

"Outlaw" Strikers Will Surrender Seniority Rights and Return to Work.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Railroad service, both passenger and freight, will be "practically normal" tomorrow as a result of the decision of many "outlaw" strikers to give up their seniority rights and return to their jobs, according to officials of the various railroads today.

New York Central has lifted its embargo on freight and the Erie announced that movement of all freight has already reached a point approaching normal.

It was expected service on the Hudson tubes between Manhattan and points in New Jersey will be in full operation tomorrow morning.

Reports that engineers on the Lackawanna had voted at a meeting to strike were denied by union leaders today.

YANKS NEAR COBLENZ ISOLATED BY STRIKE

HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION ON THE RHINE, COBLENZ (via Paris), April 23.—This bridgehead, the center of the American occupying force on the Rhine, is almost cut off from the outside world because of the general strike in Alsace-Lorraine.

The only channels of communication are through Paris and Brussels.

FRENCH TROOPS CLASH WITH BERLIN CITIZENS

BERLIN, April 23.—Clashes between French troops and German citizen guards at Trebnitz resulted in many casualties, including the killing of the French major, Froumont, according to advices from Tschelen.

STEAL $35,000 IN GEMS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 23.—Miss Elsie Janis, popular actress, reported in their apartment at the St. James Hotel, she was robbed of $35,000 worth of diamonds and other jewels.

BURNSTINE'S DIAMONDS

ESTABLISHED 54 YEARS

And Other Precious Stones

Furnished and Purchased

DIAMOND EXPERTS

GOLD SILVER AND PLATINUM PURCHASED FOR MANUFACTURING PURPOSES

361 PENNA. AVE.

PHONE MAIN 5382

Our Graduate Optometrists will render you efficient service.

Good Glasses As $2 Low As $2

Chas. Schwartz & Son

708 7th Street and 3123 M Street

IGNACIO PESQUEIRA, chief justice of the Mexican supreme court, is reported to have been arrested by U. S. authorities at Douglas, Ariz.

R. R. SERVICE TO BE NORMAL MONDAY

"Outlaw" Strikers Will Surrender Seniority Rights and Return to Work.

NEW YORK, April 23.—Railroad service, both passenger and freight, will be "practically normal" tomorrow as a result of the decision of many "outlaw" strikers to give up their seniority rights and return to their jobs, according to officials of the various railroads today.

New York Central has lifted its embargo on freight and the Erie announced that movement of all freight has already reached a point approaching normal.

It was expected service on the Hudson tubes between Manhattan and points in New Jersey will be in full operation tomorrow morning.

Reports that engineers on the Lackawanna had voted at a meeting to strike were denied by union leaders today.

YANKS NEAR COBLENZ ISOLATED BY STRIKE

HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN ARMY OF OCCUPATION ON THE RHINE, COBLENZ (via Paris), April 23.—This bridgehead, the center of the American occupying force on the Rhine, is almost cut off from the outside world because of the general strike in Alsace-Lorraine.

The only channels of communication are through Paris and Brussels.

FRENCH TROOPS CLASH WITH BERLIN CITIZENS

BERLIN, April 23.—Clashes between French troops and German citizen guards at Trebnitz resulted in many casualties, including the killing of the French major, Froumont, according to advices from Tschelen.