HEALTH OFFICE TAKES ACTION TO END DISTRICT "MILK WAR"

HIGH PRICE IS LAID TO PRODUCER

Fowler Explains City's Views.
Warns Both Parties to Grant Concessions.

Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, today served notice on the Maryland-Virginia Producers' Association that he will not tolerate any unfair methods in the milk business in Washington and that they will have to make some concessions to the Washington dairymen. He also advised the Washington dairymen that they, too, would have to make some concessions because he would not allow the Washington public to suffer through any fight they may have.

Fowler Warns Producers.
Representatives of the producers' association held a conference today with Dr. Fowler and obtained his views on the situation. He told them that if they persisted in holding up the price of milk they would lose their Washington market, as he has signed permits today with a Wheeling, W. Va., producer to bring milk into Washington. Wheeling has practically the same regulations pertaining to milk as obtain in Washington.

The Washington dairymen complain that the association is a combination of restraint of trade and that they are holding up the price of milk in Washington. In their efforts to fight the association, some of the dairymen have brought milk into Washington from dairies in other States which did not have permits to ship milk into Washington.

Threatens Prosecution.
Dr. Fowler said today that he will prosecute any dairymen who handle unlicensed milk in Washington and those who persist will be publicly denounced. He said that he wanted to encourage dairymen to fight the association, but that they would not be permitted to dictate objectionable terms to the Washington dairymen whereby the citizens of the city would suffer.

ANOTHER SONG TO APPEAR IN SUNDAY TIMES

Love Ballad, "Oh, Girl of Mine," Was Written by Alexandria Man.

A ballad, "Oh! Girl of Mine," with music by Harry Rose and lyrics by W. J. Monahan, was published in the next Sunday's edition of The Washington Times. In giving the complete words and music of this tuneful song The Times introduces an Alexandria, Va., composer to its readers.

Ballads, a waltz song and fox trot are among Rose's compositions. The "heart song" is the one that most often gains popularity. These are the songs that John McCormack has made into real art songs, by virtue of his artistic singing of them. They invite a musical understanding, a love for "telling a story" in song, and a good listening tune.

With the passing of old King Jazz, with his noise and his "rough house," something is going to take his place in popular music in America. The modern popular American ballad is yet to be written. The songs published in The Washington Times may bring out the writer of this ballad. The judgment is in the hands of The Times' readers.

Try The Times' latest song, "Oh! Girl of Mine," in your home. Remember if you like it, that Harry W. Rose composed the music and W. J. Monahan wrote the poem. Both of them are our home people.

A. A. M., in the Masonic Temple.

"If nations would adopt the same fraternal spirit that fraternalists adopt there would be no more war," Dr. Sze said.

PHILADELPHIA IS 1,000 MEMBERS DOPE SOURCED. POLICE BELIEVE

Getting Evidence Against Ingenious Peddlers Difficult Part of Work, Detectives Say.
That Philadelphia is the main source of supply of "dope" which finds its way into the District is peddled to drug addicts, is the belief of police, who have discovered the region near Third street and Virginia avenue southwest to be a literal hot house which supplies "hope-heads" with the material for flowery dreams.

Despite their knowledge of the illicit traffic in drugs going on daily, Fourth precinct police admit that their certainty is worthless unless backed up by proof, and this is the hardest part.

The average dope peddler and his patron, the addict, possess a cunning that often outwits the police, trained as they are in detecting and running down street rackets.

Most of the dope is peddled in the streets now, because the police and the pharmacy inspectors of the Internal Revenue Narcotic Bureau and the Police Department have a habit of walking in at all hours on the houses that they suspect, and have on several occasions torn up boards and steps and found drugs hidden.

One Experience.
Some time ago Sergeant Green and Detective Manfred, of the Fourth precinct, received word that "dope" was sold in a certain house in southwest. They investigated but were only able to locate a few needles and syringes. They were not satisfied and decided to prolong that search.

In one of the corners a woman lay in bed, apparently in pain. An other woman told them not to disturb her but to search as much as they liked. The "invalid" was groaning in agony. On her stomach she held tightly a rubber water bag. When the police were unable to find any dope in the house they decided to look into the water bag. The apparently sick woman put up a stiff fight and this led the police to further suspect that the water bag held the dope. They succeeded in getting it away from her and found that it was full of drugs of several kinds tightly corked up in small vials and that the bag was then filled with water.

One of the common ways for the dope peddler on the street to carry his wares is in a cigarette box or a match box. They are always sure to put one match or one cigarette in it, and when they see a policeman coming their way and suspect that he has seen them they take out the match or cigarette and after lighting it carefully toss the box into the street as if it was empty. This scheme worked for a time but the police became aware that the peddlers were getting rid of the drugs right under their noses.

Ingenious Subterfuge.
The dope peddlers also have very ingenious ways of carrying the dope in boxes slipped under their sleeve with devices on them that can release the drug and permit it to fall into the street when they get into a tight corner. Others will secrete the dope in the cuffs of their trousers and in hidden pockets in their clothes.

One of the cleverest dope peddlers in years was one who is now serving a term in the penitentiary. He was a sleight of hand artist of no mean ability, and on several occasions went through a thorough search in the police station after he had been stripped of his clothes and retained a quantity of dope by palming it whenever the police got near it. A sprained finger which he had when last arrested resulted in his bundling the palming trick and being sent to jail.

BEER MANUFACTURE TO BE RESUMED AT ONCE

There will be no delay in issuing permits for the manufacture of real beer, for sale as medicine, Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair stated today. Blair said that all brewers, who have complied with the law, will be granted permits readily.

Brewers, who have been charged with violating the law, however, may be delayed in getting permits now, the Commissioner said.

CROWD OF 2,000 SEES CITY CLUB KEY-STONE LAID

Vice President Officiates at Exercises as Bands Play and Bunting Waves.

Before an audience of more than 2,000 people and with bands playing and bunting flying, the cornerstone of the City Club's new $900,000 clubhouse, 1310 G street northwest, was laid and dedicated today by Vice President Calvin Coolidge.

The ceremonies were opened by Edwin C. Graham, president of the club. He introduced Dr. Abram Simon, who delivered the invocation, after which the audience sang one verse of "America."

The new cornerstone, the gift of the Kiwanis Club, was formally presented by Claude H. Woodward, president of the Kiwanis Club, accepted by President Graham in behalf of the City Club.

Relates Club's History.
In accepting the stone President Graham spoke of the "birth" in 1909 of the club and the growth it has attained in the ensuing twelve years until the membership is now nearly 1,500.

"Founded in 1909 by a group of 100 of the leading business and professional men of the Capital, the City Club secured its 'birth' from the Washington Commercial Club," Mr. Graham said.

The first appearance in Washington of a desire for a larger union, through social contact and comradeship, of the diverse factors in the city's business and professional life.

President Graham introduced Roy L. Neuhauer, secretary of the club, who made a list of the contents of the stone for the club's record, after which the stone was set in place by Vice President Coolidge and sealed with a silver trowel, a gift to the club by a local jewelry firm.

Vice President Speaks.
"This is to be more than a social club," Vice President Coolidge said. "It is not only a place where its members may meet and enjoy each other's society, but it is to be a club that will reach out for something larger, its aspirations are for a larger union, through social contact and comradeship, of the diverse factors in the city's business and professional life."

On the platform during the ceremonies in addition to the Vice President were Commissioners Rudolph, Keller and Oyster. Dr. Abram Simon, Claude H. Woodward, Roy L. Neuhauer and James Sharp, former president of the old Commercial Club and chairman of the building committee for the new club house.

Girls To Fool Thugs By Not 'Wearing' Any Handbags

There are a lot of girls who are not going to take any chances on having their handbags grabbed this winter. They have a little plan all their own to foil the hand-bag snatcher.

They are not going to carry any. At least that's what they say. Instead they are buying coats with pockets, and so that makes the handbag unnecessary.

Reading of girls and women being robbed while walking home nights, has intimidated many girls and so they say "no handbags for them to attract the thugs."

am sorry to have had to recommend his retirement," Chief Watson said this morning. "It will, perhaps, be difficult for me to find such a loyal man to fill his place. I have considered some of the men for the appointment but I have not yet reached a decision as to who to recommend to the Commissioners."

BODIES OF TWO SISTERS ARRIVE FROM GERMANY

Daughters of Col. Glenn I. Jones, of Medical Corps, to Be Buried in Arlington.

Two coffins including the bodies of two little girls who died within a few months of each other in Coblenz, Germany, will arrive late today at Union Station.

Washington's military circle is manifesting unusual interest in the children of the little girls whose father was stationed with the Army of Occupation. The bodies will be taken to Arlington National Cemetery where interment will be made at a date to be announced later.

Just about a year ago, Elizabeth Jones, thirteen-years-old, and her ten-year-old sister, Roberta, were told their father, Col. Glenn I. Jones, of the Medical Corps, had been ordered to Germany.

Delighted at the prospect of the trip abroad, the children and their mother made elaborate plans for their stay at Coblenz.

About one month after the family had become settled in Germany, Elizabeth became sick. Despite the efforts of the best medical men in the Army of Occupation, she died.

Four weeks ago, Roberta was taken ill and died. Grief-stricken, Colonel and Mrs. Jones decided the children should be buried in their native land, and in the national cemetery, which would some day be the last resting place of the parents.

While in Washington, Colonel and Mrs. Jones will stop at the apartment of the officer's brother, Fletcher H. Jones, in the Home Apartment House, Seventh and K streets northwest.
