

Spirit of Jefferson.

Charlestown, Jefferson County, West Va. TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 12, 1872.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

As our connection with the Spirit of Jefferson closes with the present issue, we have thought proper to say to those of the community who may know who has been the actual editor of the campaign Spirit, a few words in vindication of the political course of the paper during the campaign.

The returns from all parts of the Union indicate that the people have concluded to give General Grant another lease of power, and risk the consequences. We accept the result, as the Baltimore Gazette, and if we say now that the popular will has not been fairly, honestly and justly expressed, it is simply because we believe that thousands of voters in the closely contested States have been deluded or debauched by an Administration entrenched in power, reeking with corruption, and having at its command all the means and appliances whereby its power may be perpetuated indefinitely.

The great Democratic-Conservative party of the U.S., under the leadership of Horace Greeley, has been beaten and there is nothing left us but to preserve rigidly our party organization. The fight between consolidation and Local Self Government must be kept up. There is an irrepressible conflict between the two, and if we ever keep up the fight it may happen that some of the present friends of consolidation may hereafter suffer so severely from its tyranny as to be ready to desert to Local Self Government on the eve of the next battle between the two.

The returns from the last election in West Virginia show that Wilson in the First, Martin in the Second, and Hereford in the Third District, are elected to Congress by large majorities. They are all Democrats. In the Second District Butler ran far behind Martin. A very tight vote was polled, most people believing the first election of congressmen valid.

PROPHECY.

No one can possibly regret the defeat of Horace Greeley more than we do. His election would certainly have been a great triumph, and we think would have been at least one step towards bringing back the Federal Government to within Constitutional limits.

But from all we can observe, if Greeley ever sets into the White House it will be by Democratic strength, without any material aid from the Republicans. We will vote for anybody to beat Grant, but we don't believe 'Honest' Horace can do it.

Mr. Greeley Returns to the Tribune—His Card to the Public. NEW YORK, November 6.—The Tribune will to-morrow publish the following card: The undersigned resumes the editorship of the Tribune, which he had relinquished on embarking in another line of business six months ago.

WEST VIRGINIA. The absence of special dispatches to the Register giving the result of the voting at the Presidential election last Tuesday is accepted by us as a bad omen. The Democrats who thought it not worth while to vote have thought it unnecessary to advertise their negligence in that respect.

VIRGINIA. RICHMOND, November 8.—Sixty-eight counties and cities have been heard from, most of them officially. The Democrats lose in these 17,050, while their gain is only 1,620, showing an excess of 15,430 on the side of the Union. This leaves only about 3,500 of the Conservative majority for 1872 to be overcome in the remaining thirty-four counties.

THE ESTIMATED RESULT. The following is a statement of the result in the several States of Tuesday's election for President, corrected by the latest returns received: STATES FOR GRANT. Estimated Electoral Majority. Vote.

Table showing estimated electoral majority and vote for Grant and Doubtful States: Grant 0 States, 64,944; Doubtful States: Florida, 4; West Virginia, 5. Total, 33.

A Colored Accession to the Cabinet. There is a concerted movement afoot to obtain a Cabinet place for a colored politician in this city, formerly connected with the Freedmen's Bureau. Advertisement of his services during the period of reconstruction, and in the late campaign, was admitted to the editorial column of the Republican paper this morning.

NEW YORK, November 6.—Demyse, stereotyper of Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly, has given bail to answer the charge of participation in scandalous publications against Luther C. Challis. Challis, the slandered broker, says the women must stand trial.

A New York Scandal.

Arrest of Woodhull and Claflin.—The Free-Love Champions in Jail for Printing Obscene Literature.—Becher Scandalized, &c. Mrs. Victoria Woodhull and Miss Jennie Claflin, of the firm of Woodhull & Claflin, were arrested at their office in New York on 2d instant, on a suit brought against them for publishing in their Weekly a series of scandalous articles implicating Henry Ward Beecher and Theodore Tilton's family, the charge against them being the sending through the mails an indecent publication.

Under the head of the "Becher-Tilton Scandal," Mrs. Woodhull published an article eleven columns in length, in which she says: "I propose to commence the series of aggressive notices which I have undertaken to begin in this article, with the settling one of the most stupendous scandals which has ever occurred in any community. I refer to that which has been whispered broadcast for the last two or three years, through the cities of New York and Brooklyn, touching the character and conduct of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher in his relations with the family of Theodore Tilton. I intend that this article shall burst like a bombshell into the ranks of the moralistic scamp."

MURDER RAISED TO A FINE ART. Whatever of the arts and sciences have been lost in the revolutions of ages, the American people of this day may fairly claim to the acquisition of one additional accomplishment not hitherto numbered among the accepted agencies of civilized society. It is the happy ease with which, if you have a mind for you may kill your neighbor, and become a hero in reference to his laudable act. It makes small difference in what mode you adopt in putting him out of the way. If your difference of methods may be regarded, perhaps a preference for fine, stealthy, and velvet approaches on the obnoxious object of your mortuary attentions may be generally recommended. They are apt to awaken more interest and excite more earnest sympathy than a vulgar pistol shot or knife, or coarse braining blow, or any other mode of assassination so common that refined society is likely to be bored by them, and shrug its shoulders to cut you for a lack of invention and want of plot.

LETTER FROM HUNTINGTON.

HUNTINGTON, W. VA., Nov. 1, 1872. Dear Dalgarno:—Thinking that some short account of this city, its present and its future, may not be uninteresting to the many readers of the Spirit, I concluded to drop you a few lines in that view and for that object—the more particularly as many of the good people of Charlestown have been talking, and are still talking, of coming to the Virgin City of West Virginia. In all the elements necessary to growth and prosperity, geographically and artificially, Huntington is supremely blessed. Located upon the banks of the Ohio, with daily and hourly eye, momentarily, countless steamboats ply between the mouth of the Ohio and Pittsburg and intermediate points, arriving at her wharf, discharging innumerable hundreds of pounds of freight. With her Ches. & O. R. R. from this point to Richmond via Charlestown, which will now in a few days be opened from one terminus to the other, with a road which via the Big Sandy to Lexington, Ky. which is now under construction, and with a railroad by the Sycamore Creek Valley to Dayton, Ohio, which is to cross the river at this place upon a magnificent bridge erected at the foot of Ninth street, the ultimate prosperity and importance of this city is a foregone conclusion—a fixed fact.

Under the head of the "Becher-Tilton Scandal," Mrs. Woodhull published an article eleven columns in length, in which she says: "I propose to commence the series of aggressive notices which I have undertaken to begin in this article, with the settling one of the most stupendous scandals which has ever occurred in any community. HON. JAS. C. CLARKE AND THE B. & O. R. R.—The Baltimore correspondent of the Frederick Citizen says: "It is reported among railroad men that Hon. James C. Clarke has accepted the position of Master of Transportation on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, made vacant by the death of Wm. Prescott Smith. If this be true the company will have secured the services of the only man in the country who could entirely fill Mr. Smith's place as acceptably and successfully as he would. Aside from being one of the best railroad men in the country, Mr. Clarke has administrative abilities of the highest order, and will bring to the service of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad prestige and influence that at the present time is much needed."
