COOL IMPULSION.—The Morgantown Constitution says:

The State election in Connecticut on last Monday shows interesting tendencies.

The fact is that for the first time Connecticut elected a Republican Governor and Legislature, having a year ago chosen English, a Democrat, Governor by over 1700 majority.

The Connecticut election has any significance at all respecting negro suffrage, it is an endorsement of it.

What is thought of Mr. Carlisle's nomination as Minister to Germany. The respondent of the Cincinnati Commercial telegraph:

John S. Carlisle, of West Virginia, is appointed Minister to Germany. His appointment creates very great surprise, as Carlisle is remembered as being a very bitter Copperhead during the war.

It is anticipated that in a few days Mrs. Twitchell will be in all State in her own behalf.

Secretary Fish opposed any hasty steps to be taken in regard to Cuba, independent of the natural course of events on the island, but in case of interference from the United States, he would call in France and England, with whom we would become involved in combat.

President Grant has appointed Secretary Fish, Secretaries Borie and Creswell ardently favor Cuban recognition.

A dispatch from Houghton, Michigan, dated the 12th, says that at one o'clock, yesterday morning, a fire broke out in the village of Hancock, in the northwest quarter of our sister village of Hancock, which four hours thereafter resulted in the almost complete destruction of the village.

A few business houses on the north and west sides of the village were spared under the buff. On the south every building, including saloons, etc., was destroyed out of New Orleans. He would return immediately to Havana.

NEW YORK, April 13.

The Herald's Washington special gives the following account of an alleged interview between Senator Ross and President Grant.

Grant, at the same time as old Zach Chandler, but had the first chance to speak to the President.

"Come, Mr. President, to talk with you about the appointments for my State, having heard you intend to make certain nominations, they may not harmonize with my desires, if you deem it worth while to consult them in the least."

"Well, Sir,"

"This Presidential response was not in the true manner to be relished by the Kansas Senator."

"Am I to understand that I am rightly informed as to your intentions to disregard my preferences in the matter of appointments, Mr. President?"

"I have no intention to be dictated to, Sir," said Grant sharply.

"Nor have I to be insulted even by your words," said Ross, "I am the President," exclaimed Ross, with his hair stirred up to white heat.

"I must decline to be annoyed any further on the subject," muttered Grant between his teeth, "and desire the interview should terminate."

"You and your desires may go to hell," roared out Ross.

"Leave the house, or I shall force you out," thundered Grant.

Ross took his departure accordingly, in a terrible rage—quitting the White House like one rushing from a plague, and hurriedly catching a hack.

President Grant threw himself into a chair the moment the door closed and wiped his brow with his pocket handkerchief, evidently much relieved.

Zach Chandler approached and was thus addressed by the President: "Excellent! I have no time to lose. I must interview I must take a little time to cool off."

Such is the account which I have learned, and which I give substantially as it came to me. I do not vouch for its truth, but have good grounds for believing it to be true, and very different from an actual occurrence.
