Thermometer Record.

The following range of the temperature as observed at Silver's Drug Store, corner opposite the Post Office, yesterday:

THE Municipal Court yesterday adjourned over until tomorrow.

DEAD.—We regret to hear of the death of Rev. Dr. Richmond, which occurred at an early hour yesterday morning.

You do not need to black your boots in this city. You hang them out of the window at night, and they are black enough in the morning.

LOST A THUMB.—A boy named Wm. Rose, who lives near the eastern end of 17th street, on Saturday had a thumb cut off while at work in a cooper shop.

CONDEMNED.—We understand that our efficient market master, Michael Edwards, on Saturday last condemned about fifty pounds of butter, because of short weight.

ROBINS and bluebirds are employed in mating and looking for bird houses. The latter are for rent to the feathered fraternity cheap, owners being perfectly willing to let them "for a mere song."

MANSLAUGHTER.—Emery, the accomplice of Geary in the murder of Gottlieb Powell, was found guilty by the court in session at St. Clairsville, and his sentence will be from one to ten years in the penitentiary.

DISCHARGED.—John Marsh and Hiram Burkett, who were charged with complicity in the Eighth Ward row about two weeks ago, were yesterday examined by Squire Schultz, and discharged from custody for want of evidence to convict them.

BREACH OF THE PEACE.—Catherine Croton complained before Squire Schultz yesterday, charging Hans Blake, Ferdinand Bobbert and Burr Watt with committing a breach of the peace. The accused were held in $100 each to keep the peace for one year.

SQUIRE CLARKSON.—Herbert Wilkins was before Squire Clarkson yesterday, upon a charge of stealing $3 from W. M. Buford, which had been previously marked for the purpose of detecting a thief. He was committed until this morning at 10 o'clock, when his case will be examined.

TEMPERANCE. THE MEETING YESTERDAY.

A Pledge is Circulated and Signed. About four hundred people assembled at Washington Hall yesterday afternoon. The meeting opened with singing, after which Rev. James Moffat engaged in prayer. A hymn was given out and sung immediately afterwards, and Rev. J. B. Bristow, of the Baptist Church, offered up a fervent prayer.

Rev. Moffat then announced that Rev. Maxwell P. Gaddis, who had been announced to speak at this meeting, was detained by the train, and would not arrive, if at all, before six o'clock. He thought, however, as the audience had assembled, it were better to spend the time in prayer.

Accordingly, about an hour was spent in singing and prayer.

After a prayer by Miss Lizzie Boyd, Mr. Moffat invited Mrs. Whittenmeyer to the stand, saying that he did not doubt the audience would like to hear something further from her. Upon this invitation Mrs. Whittenmeyer came forward and for over half an hour held the close attention of all present by her arguments and appeals on behalf of the cause. Being a stranger in Wheeling, she expressed her reluctance to assume a leading part. But although she did not belong to this community, she belonged to the cause, and felt it her duty to aid it by every means in her power. She felt as if the time for action had about come in Wheeling. She believed, from what she saw before her, that there were ladies enough in the audience to initiate the work necessary to be done. The responsibilities of the crisis at this time upon us must be met by more or less personal sacrifice. We could not accomplish the results that were being accomplished in other communities unless we had made up our minds to give some of our time to the necessary work and undergo whatever was distasteful in it. She was sure that ladies generally did not like the idea of coming to the point in this crusade and encountering so much, that was forbidding, but there seemed to be no other way for each one to assume a firm position, and for all to stand side by side. This is the grandest movement ever known to the American people. The land is to be delivered from slavery. Yes, a slavery that is a thousand times more blighting, and a thousand times more vile than ever negro slavery was. It seemed as if the women of America were called upon to engage in this work and redeem their country from this fearful bondage.

Mrs. Whittenmeyer related the experiences of some Christian women in the city of Newark, New Jersey, and dwelt upon a visit that they had paid to a family where a woman and four little children were huddled together in a bed, and living in a room without fire having no bread in the house, while the husband had pawned everything in the way of furniture, and everything of value, even the family Bible itself, in order to get money to appease his insatiable appetite for strong drink. She also alluded to the fact that men who were addicted to drink had expressed their sympathy with this movement, and had whispered words of cheer in the ears of the women engaged in it, telling them to press on and deliver them from the presence of a temptation that they were powerless to resist, and must ultimately result in their ruin. She spoke also of the fact that gray haired fathers and mothers were daily pleading with sons on their road to ruin, begging them by all that was sacred and holy to leave off the dreadful practice that was carrying them down to ruin. But these sons were also powerless; they were willing to leave off the practice, and many of them made noble efforts; but in unguarded moments when the fever for drink came upon them they were overcome by the sight of temptation, and despite tears and entreaties and their own good resolutions fall victims to the terrible vice.

She wanted it understood that this crusade of the women of the land against liquor was not one of vengeance against those who sold it. Oh, no. Not at all. Very many of these men, engaged in this traffic, were not bad men; some of them were even respectable men in their way. But they were the enemies of society and must give up this business. We cannot fold our hands and allow them to hand us over to ruin in order that their business may go on. No; let them take warning while they can. Let them prepare to get out of the traffic. Let them countermand their orders to Cincinnati, if they are ordering on more liquor. We do not wish to inflict even pecuniary loss upon them. We would be glad to save them from loss. Therefore we exhort them in loving kindness to give heed to this movement.

Before closing her address Mrs. Whittenmeyer said she would like to know whether the ladies present felt as if the time had come when they were willing to organize for work in this cause. If it had not then they should continue to do as they were doing—viz.: to meet for prayer and praise, and ask for help and encouragement from on high. But it seemed as if there ought to be many who were prepared and willing at this time to come together and firmly take a position before the community on this question. Are there not many here who are ready to pledge themselves that they will not use spirits in any form about their houses? Surely we can all deny ourselves of such luxuries as mince pies for the sake of example to our fellow creatures. Are there not many also who are ready and willing to say that they will not patronize those who sell intoxicating drinks? If all of you who were to refuse to buy goods of the trader who sold to him in the room and whiskey and wine in the back room, he would soon give up dealing in the latter. And so, in like manner, if all of you were to refuse to buy drugs of the druggist who will not use spirits in any form about his premises, in order to accomplish anything in this movement all those who wish it success must aid it in practical ways like these.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Whittenmeyer's address, it was announced that a pledge had been prepared and was ready for signatures. This pledge Mr. Moffat read to the meeting. It is as follows:

"We, the undersigned ladies of Wheeling, feeling deeply the fearful evils resulting from the use of intoxicating drinks, do hereby pledge ourselves not to use them ourselves nor patronize those who traffic in them. And we pledge ourselves to use our influence and unite our prayers and labors for the redemption of this vile traffic, and for cleansing our city from all that can intoxicate."

This pledge having been read, the following ladies manifested their readiness to sign it, and their names were taken down by the committee:

Elizabeth Dillon, Mrs. Bagge, Sarah A. Rosner, "Wiley, Mrs. Mary B. Bailey, "Chandler, Miss Kate Lane, "Taylor, Mrs. Anna Bate, "Vogel, Mrs. Aggie Hubbard, "John Robertson, Mrs. Wally, "Mrs. Hubbard, Mrs. J. T. Dickie, "Miss Ella Dillon, Mrs. C. W. LETTERS from the celebrated Pianist

Maria Marie Krebs. NEW YORK, May 17th, 1873. Messrs. Steinway & Sons, Gentlemen:—I am leaving America to fulfill engagements in Europe, permit me to thank you for the many courtesies extended to me, but above all for your kindness in furnishing for my concert, during the last two seasons, your magnificent Concert-grand, and most perfect instruments I have met with during my artistic career.

Their tone is marvellously grand, of exquisite poetical and sympathetic quality, which was to me a perfect revelation when trying the Steinway Piano for the first time, and it is just this thoroughly musical quality of tone invariably growing upon both ear and player, that a cultivated musical ear will prefer the tone of your pianos to all others. The touch is simply perfect, elastic, pliable, and promptly responding to all and every demand made by the pianist.

After thoroughly testing your Pianos, both in private and public, I can conscientiously say that the Steinway Pianos are superior to all other American or European instruments known to me.

Yours sincerely, MARIA KREBS.
