OFFICE, 25 & 27 Fourteenth St. SATURDAY, APRIL 25, 1874.

Reconciliation of the Democracy. The Charleston Courier of the 20th is at hand containing that address to the Kanawha County Democracy, by a number of their leaders, that was heralded to the party heretofore by a special dispatch to the Register a few days ago.

"The Boss Tweed of West Virginia has succeeded in playing another confidence game upon unsuspecting and honest men. We are compelled to give him credit for facility and skill equal to the Fakir of Aya in juggling tricks to deceive better men than himself.

"Government is the instrument of the people, for their own protection and benefit, and must not be prostituted for sectional, partisan or personal ends."

"The friends of honest government, who signed that paper, did not of course foresee the full effect of simply attaching their names to sound democratic principles, but the editor, Monday morning in our little neighbor around the corner, most convince them of the mistake they made in indirectly endorsing treasury plundering and ring rule."
