MONDAY, APRIL 15, 1878.

We are indebted to Hon. R. F. Martin for an official copy of the proposed tariff changes.

We are indebted to Lee McNeely, Esq., an old citizen of Wheeling, for a pamphlet copy of the opinions of the Supreme Court of Louisiana in the case of General T. C. Anderson, of Returning Board fame.

The subjects for the Townsend prize essays were given out at Yale College last Saturday, and are as follows: I. John Quincy Adams in the House of Representatives.

II. The Power of the Christian Clergy in the Past and in the Present.

III. The Influence of the Greek and Latin Classics upon the English Literature of the Present Age.

IV. The Religion of Genius.

V. Legislation in Regard to Labor.

VI. Classes in a Democracy—Their mutual rights and duties.

VII. National Antipathies.

VIII. The Ancient and the Modern Jew.

WADE HAMPTON'S term as governor of South Carolina will expire with the current year, but he will undoubtedly be a nominee for re-election. The general sentiment of the State is roughly expressed by an old negro woman who, from the body of a crowd that was hurrahing for the governor, cried out, "You stay, 'governor. We had a better time since you was made 'governor than we had since the war." The State is really in a tranquil condition, and is rapidly recovering from the financial prostration caused by the recklessness of carpet-bag administration. Hampton has been a man of his word. Travelling through the State, doubtless with a view to the fall campaign, the governor said at a gathering of people:

"I come to you to-day pointing back to the conditions of things when I spoke to you last, and the conditions which exist now. What they were, you all remember. What they are, you all can see. Peace reigns supreme; the laws are respected and enforced everywhere. There are no disturbances and no scenes of bloodshed. We are on the high road to prosperity. We have everything in the future to encourage us; and all this has been accomplished—why? Because your representatives, the governor and the legislature, have stood squarely and honestly on the platform, and have fulfilled the pledges made in the last campaign."

Hayes in the South.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. NASHVILLE, TENN., April 10.—Having had occasion to visit quite a large number of the cities, towns, and hamlets of the South, particularly in Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, and portions of Kentucky, and Georgia, during the past two months, and during these peregrinations having assiduously sought from all classes of people to ascertain the present Administration, I must bear testimony that I have not heard any material complaint, but, on the contrary, President Hayes is very generally lauded as decidedly the best President since the surrender. Although he vetoed the Silver Bill, which the South stood almost a unit for, they cheerfully forgive that small peccadillo, and attribute it as an error of the head rather than of the heart. For his sense of justice and resolution in putting into practice the military order, which has permitted the intelligence of the South to direct legislation and administer the laws, President Hayes has well secured the approbation and esteem of a generous and honorable people. The people of the South want tranquility; they do not want a military government, and they do not want a party to be inaugurated, pushing forward, and developing the material resources of the country, by fostering and encouraging all branches of industry and commerce. The people care but little for either political party, only as a means of bettering their condition, by encouraging commerce and developing new industries; and in my opinion, judging from what I have heard and seen in the South, every political party gives the best evidence, in good faith, of administering the Government honestly in the interests of all the people, irrespective of class, that party will receive the support of the thinking and intelligent voters of the South, irrespective of party. The way to cry out "Kultur," and that the people of the South want to pay the Rebel debt. All this is sheer nonsense. Since the withdrawal of the military from the South, far less disorder prevails than in any sections of the North, and, judging from my own experience, a man is more secure in person and property in the South now than in the North. And all this is attributable to Hayes' Southern policy. H. H. McCauley.

The Wool Market.

N. Y. Bulletin of Saturday. The market for domestic wools still fails to receive the support of anything like an active demand, and dealers are in much the old discouraged mood. A number of manufacturers are to be seen on the market, but they do not appear to want supplies of material, especially after a trip through the goods market, where the unpromising condition of affairs proves very disheartening. The situation of the tariff question, too, is another disturbing element which tends to make all buyers very cautious, and are entirely checks demand in many cases. The stocks here are quite moderate as compared with even the ordinary outlet for the season, but in consideration of the condition of business there is a surplus, and holders anxious to sell. The market is quiet, and a sacrifice on nominal quotations. It would seem, however, that no matter how low the cost goes the demand cannot be stimulated beyond just such amounts as buyers can work into immediate and positive use. There has been a further pushing off of the common stock since our last. Advice from San Francisco indicate a more liberal arrival of the spring clip and a better assortment of quality, with more or less interest shown by Eastern buyers and purchasers making. The rates reported are 18 1/2c for fine wool, equal to about 21 1/2c here, and our dealers consider the figures as altogether too high considering the state of affairs on the Atlantic coast. The spring clip of California, it is thought, will run one-third short of last year, which would make the total about twenty million pounds. The sales for the week on this market include 20,000 lbs X and XX at 40 1/2c; 40,000 lbs X at 41c; 10,000 lbs fine medium at 37 1/2c.

The Bellaire Street Railway.

Bellaire Independent. There has been much complaint in regard to the inconveniences of travel on the Street Railway, but we understand that the Directors expect to be able to improve the facilities of the road soon. Some one has blundered in the management of matters, but the matter may be remedied, and should not occur again. Some of the stockholders are much excited in regard to the condition of the road, and are very free in the matter of comment as to the honesty and capacity of the officers.

Business in the West.

The Western papers are almost the only ones that report an improvement in business this spring. It will be noticed that the further West the reports are made the more encouraging they are. This is a healthy and desirable state of affairs. It is upon the prosperity of the West that the welfare of the northern part of the country chiefly depends. The Grand Rapids Eagle, of Michigan says in its commercial article of Wednesday, April 10, that trade has been fairly active for the season, the rest of the year, and that the prospects for the future grow more and more encouraging. The Times of Kansas City, Mo., reported April 10 that the jobbing trade had assumed a decidedly rushing appearance, all dealers having all that they could attend to. At St. Paul the situation is encouraging. The Pioneer-Press records that at St. Paul there is a very decided increase of activity in the jobbing trade, though most of the trade is done on orders, the interior buyers not yet coming to market to make selections. This is owing to the early opening of the spring. The buyers, however, will come, and the States is daily receiving large accessions to its population, and the great bulk of those who come here go to the country. They will want goods, and as most of those who come here are well-to-do buyers, they will pay for what they buy. The Press predicts that the trade of this year will be far in advance of the most sanguine anticipations of merchants. At Minneapolis, things are equally active. The wholesale trade shows largely increased business, and has opened with excellent prospects for a very large season. It will undoubtedly continue through the summer. Country merchants already find that the large immigration coming in adds so much to their trade that they must increase the frequency of their orders to keep up their stocks. The St. Paul Globe gives the same account. It says there has been no lull in the general commerce of the city during the past week; on the contrary lively as business was the previous week, the past seven days have increased it in an unprecedented degree in nearly every branch. The Omaha Bee gives a view of the springs of this commercial activity. It says:

The agricultural regions of Nebraska, Kansas, and Dakota, and even the valleys of the mountains beyond, were never more prosperous at this season of the year than they are this spring. The farmers, encouraged by last year's results, are cultivating every foot of land that the means at their command allow, while thousands and tens of thousands of new and energetic immigrants are settling in the sparsely settled districts, and going to work with a determination to succeed that has never before been evinced by newcomers as a mass. Every one seems to realize that his or her success depends altogether on the efforts put forth, instead of speculating on the rise of land and corner lots, as has been the case with the majority of Eastern emigrants in years past.

The Financial Condition of Virginia.

The decision of the Virginia Supreme Court, just made in the case of Clark against Tyler, renders it impossible for the State to repudiate that portion of her debt which is found to be most troublesome—the $20,000,000 of "consols." If the Legislature refuses to increase taxes and pay interest at the Treasury, bondholders may continue to cut the coupons off their bonds and sell them to taxpayers, who can have them received by the collecting officers for "all taxes, debts, dues and demands" whatsoever. Even taxes, which are set apart to the school fund, may be paid in coupons.

The General Assembly, as if anxious to bring about a crisis, left the Treasury empty. The lunatic asylums, institutions of learning, and the penitentiary are running on credit. More than one-half of the incoming taxes will be paid in coupons; the residue, if paid in money, will not be sufficient to pay the interest on Government and public schools. What else will be done? No one seems prepared to answer. The present General Assembly (which will not meet in regular session again until December) is pledged not to increase taxation, though the courts make the only practical one, and credit that, perhaps, will not bring the immediate relief demanded.

The "readjusters"—the people who are determined to make the creditors compromise on such terms as they (the readjusters) may prescribe, are well organized. The "debtpayers," having in the ranks the ablest leaders and the largest tax-payers, are doing little or nothing, except to occupy a defensive position, while their opponents are aggressive and prepared to carry the issue into the Congressional territory. The only hope for the State is for the "debtpayers" to make a vigorous canvass, and show the people that they can better afford to suffer the taxes increased than to suffer the ills that they may endure, which will be greatly intensified month by month. The task is formidable, but not impossible. Under the present Constitution none but men who have paid their capitation tax can vote, and outside the ranks of those who are actually property holders few are thus qualified.

It is believed that those paying the greatest amount of State taxes, having seen the beneficial effects of the readjustment policy, will not refuse to be a little further burdened to save not only the honor but the very existence of the State. It is claimed by those who ought to know that who are disposed to pay in full, manifest the bondholders will meet the State with proper consideration, and the entire debt of $30,000,000 now bearing 6 per cent, may be funded in new 4 per cent bonds. However that may be, the narrow question is now—reparation being impracticable—between providing more revenue or permitting the State Government to go to pieces.

Large Shipments by Saturday's Steamers to Europe.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Six steamers left this port to-day for Europe, carrying out their accustomed full cargoes, and being, besides, with the exception of one unusually heavy aggregate, there being over 250,000 bushels. A feature of the export trade is the large number of agricultural implements going abroad, most of them, it is understood, being intended for Germany. The Wilson steamer alone took out no less than 1,000 packages of mowers and reapers, in addition to 1,500 packages of hardware and general merchandise. Another feature is the quantity of live cattle going across, there being 450 sheep on one of the Anchor Lines vessels, besides 34 horses. Don't Fool with Talking Wires During a Thunder Storm.

The Hartford Post records an incident which is a timely warning to the owners of telephones. It says: "On Sunday morning, when the sudden flash of lightning was seen, and was followed by a sharp peal of thunder, Dr. John A. Stevens was using the telephone extending from his home on High street to the drug store in the Hotel Capital. The clerk at the drug store had his ear at the tube listening for a communication from the doctor, when simultaneously with the peal of thunder, he received a severe shock in the ear, the report sounding like the discharge of a gun. His power of hearing was more or less affected all day. Dr. Stevens saw a flash of electricity play about his end of the instrument, and on examination it was found that the delicate insulated wire had been entirely destroyed by the lightning. Had the doctor been speaking at the tube at the time of the flash, he would probably have been dangerously injured."

Nature Demands a Tonic

When the nerves are unstrung, the head aches, the appetite is poor or variable, the sleep disturbed, and a general depression of vital power is experienced. Such a state of things cannot long exist without the development of serious disease. The most active and general invigorant known to the human system, is a tonic. The active ingredients gives it a permanent claim to public confidence, and its surpassing medicinal value is admitted by medical men of distinction, by whom it is widely used in private practice. For fever and ague—both as a preventive and remedy—dyspepsia, liver complaint, bilious remittent fever, constipation, choleric complaints, flatulency, indigestion, and other ailments, it is a thoroughly reliable remedy. It is the anti-febrile specific par excellence of the malarial districts of this and other countries, where diseases born of miasma prevail, and as a general household remedy it is also universally esteemed. codad
