BUCKEYE BLAZES. Narrow Escape of the Buckeye Glass Works, at Martin's Ferry, from Total Destruction—The Noble Work of the "Bucket Brigade."

A great deal of excitement was manifested in the city yesterday morning, occasioned by the circulation of a report that the Buckeye Glass Works, at Martin's Ferry, had been destroyed by fire, and that other buildings in that vicinity were in danger of destruction. The apprehensions of the people for the safety of the town were increased when it was noted abroad that Chief Marshal Eccles had been telegraphed to for engines to aid in subduing the flames. Happily, however, the worst features of the report proved to be untrue, as the facts gleaned from a visit to the scene disclosed only the smoking ruins of a shed used by the Glass Works for the storage of bonnie and odds ends.

The fact, however, that the fire was confined to the shed will not convey to the reader any idea of the imminent danger that the entire establishment was in at the time; nor will it be possible to overstate those who worked so nobly and faithfully in staying the flames. The main establishment only escaped total destruction by the fortuitous circumstance that the wind was blowing toward the west, and that the human exertions of the populace, who worked with effect after the "bucket line" to the river was established.

The dimensions of the shed, which was totally destroyed, were fifty by seventy-five feet, and it was used for the purpose of storing bonnie and odds ends, and a variety of contents consisted of sixty-five barrels of benzine, a number of barrels of "seconds," or unsalable stock, fire brick and lumber. The fire was first discovered about half-past eight o'clock by parties across the river who attracted the attention of the engineer by their cries, and that gentleman immediately sounded the alarm by blowing the factory whistle. The signal brought to the scene, one man said about 1000 people, but the estimate being set down by a cooler calculation would probably fix the number at 500. The shed being situated on the bank of the river, a bucket line was formed, and the old fashioned fire brigade did good execution, many keeping at their posts at the water's edge, and others at the "bucket line" on the river.

The damage done in the destruction of the shed and stock will amount to $1,000, which is fully insured in Eastern companies. The only loss was $150 on the benzine, upon which there was no insurance. The theory of the origin of the fire is spontaneous combustion. The fact that a cinder-pile back of the shed has been smoldering for some time, gives credence to another theory that the benzine leaked from the barrels, and running to the cinder pile was ignited. Mr. John F. Miller, the Secretary of the Buckeye Works, is unostentatious in his praise of the efforts of the citizens who worked so effectively in confining the flames to the shed. Many women were in the bucket line, and worked as faithfully as the men. Mr. Miller desires us to convey the thanks of the company to those who aided in subduing the fire, and further says, that he will be glad to reimburse any who suffered any loss.

The fire brings a warning to the Martin's Ferry authorities, which they will be wise in profiting by. The facilities for putting out fire are limited; in fact, the only fire engine in the town is a small one, and whatever the purchase of an engine would at least insure a higher degree of safety than the town now enjoys.

TELEPHONE TALK. The City will be full of them by June 15th—A Talk with Superintendent Wolf.

A reporter of this paper last night met Mr. M. C. Wolf, Western Union Manager at this city, and proceeded to interrogate him about his telephone project. Mr. Wolf has secured the names of about one hundred subscribers toward the establishment of this convenience in this city and vicinity. There should be many more subscribers to it, and doubtless will when those who are at present ignorant of its usefulness become acquainted with it. Our conversation was as follows, and was brief and to the point.

"Mr. Wolf, what is the present status of your telephone project?" "We are booming the thing along as rapidly as possible. We have now on hands an Indianapolis telephone switch board for fifty wires, and will receive another in a few days. We have also received forty telephones and will have forty more next week. We have twenty-five wire-boards on poles ready to be connected with telephones in streets."
