The Republican Congressional Convention of the First District of West Virginia will be held in the City of Grafton, on the 20th day of June next, immediately after the adjournment of the State Convention, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress, and for attending to such other business as may come before the Convention.

The Republics of the counties comprising the District are requested to appoint delegates to said Convention at such time and place as to them shall seem most convenient.

By order of the Congressional Executive Committee. W. J. W. COWDEN, Chairman.

Garfield and the Credit Mobiler.

The Chicago Tribune has taken some pains to go through the official testimony in the Credit Mobiler examination by the House committee of Congress raised for the purpose. From the testimony it appears that in 1872 Henry McComb, of Delaware, who had been a partner in all the Pacific Railroad transactions with Oakes Ames, brought suit in a Pennsylvania court against various parties for a settlement of accounts. Among the papers filed was a letter from Oakes Ames, stating that he had disposed of certain shares of the Credit Mobiler stock to certain persons indicated by initials on a list, and McComb explained that these initials indicated certain persons, as follows:

J. G. Blaine, $3,000; Senator Patterson, $3,000; Senator Wilson, $3,000; S. Colfax, $2,000; Elliott, of Massachusetts, $3,000; Dawes, of Massachusetts, $2,000; Bingham, of Ohio; Scofield, and Kelley, of Pennsylvania; Fowler, of Tennessee.

At the meeting of Congress in December, 1872, on motion of Mr. Blaine a committee was appointed to examine and report the facts of the case. Of this committee Judge Poland, of Vermont, was the chairman. The committee took full evidence of all the parties implicated, and of other persons. As the result of their investigation they reported two resolutions, one for the expulsion of Oakes Ames and the other for the expulsion of Jas. Brooks. The whole testimony in the case, so far as it related to Mr. Garfield, was given by Oakes Ames. The statement of Oakes Ames concerning Garfield was brief. It is as follows:

Q.—In regard to Mr. Garfield state to the committee the details of the transactions between you and him in reference to Credit Mobiler stock? A.—I got for Mr. Garfield ten shares of the Credit Mobiler stock, for which he paid par and interest.

Q.—When did you agree with him for that? A.—That agreement was in December, 1867, or January, 1868. About that time. About the time I had these conversations with all of them. It was after about the same time.

Q.—State what grew out of it. A.—Mr. Garfield did not pay me in money. I sold the bonds belonging to his $1,000 of stock at 97, making $776. In June I received a dividend in cash on his stock for $600, which left a balance in my interest which I paid him. That is all the transaction between us. I did not deliver to him any stock before or since. That is the transaction and the only one.

Q.—By Mr. Merrick—the $329 which you paid him was the surplus of earnings on the stock above the amount to be paid for it—par value? A.—Yes, sir. He never had either the Credit Mobiler or Union Pacific Railroad stock. The only thing he realized from the transaction was the $329, which I paid him.

Q.—You say so in your statement in the account with Gen. Garfield there is a charge of $47. It is interest from the July previous, is it? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And the $776 on the credit side is the 80 per cent bond dividend sold at 97 per cent? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And the $600 on the credit side is the money dividend? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And after you had received these two sums they in the aggregate overpaid the price of the stock and interest $239, which you paid him? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—You did not receive a certificate of stock to him? A.—No, sir; he said nothing about it.

Q.—Why did he not receive a certificate? A.—I do not know.

Q.—Do you remember any conversation between you and him in the adjustment of these accounts? A.—I do not.

Q.—You understand that you were the holder of his ten shares? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did he understand that? A.—I presume so; it seems to have gone from his mind, however.

Q.—Was this the only dealing you had with him in reference to any stock? A.—I think so.

Q.—There were dividends of Union Pacific Railroad stock on these ten shares? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Did Garfield ever receive those? A.—No, sir; never received but $329.

Q.—Has there been any conversation between you and him in reference to the Pacific stock he was entitled to? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Has he ever called for it? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Have you ever offered it to him? A.—No.

Q.—Has there been any conversation in relation to it? A.—No.

Summed up, the statement is that Ames made a memorandum that $1,000 of this stock in his hands was held for Garfield; that the stock earned $1,329; that he paid Garfield $329,—the surplus after paying for the stock; that during the five years following, though the stock continued to earn dividends, he never delivered the stock itself, nor any dividends, to Garfield, and had never any conversation whatever with him on the subject. According to Ames, the stock was Garfield's, but was never asked for nor delivered, though for years after it was paying dividends, all of which Ames received and kept to himself.

Mr. Garfield's explanation was, that George Francis Train had advised him to invest in the stock, but he had declined that, in want of money, he obtained a loan of $300 from Ames, which loan he subsequently paid. Ames said he paid Garfield $329, Garfield said he borrowed $300. As Ames kept the stock which he said belonged to Garfield and all the dividends thereon, and never thereafter had any conversation with Garfield on the subject, there is unquestionably room for the belief that the transactions were conducted in Ames' mind.

The committee of the House made a full report of all the testimony, commenting upon the case of each member named in the McComb-Ames list. After commenting upon the cases of Mr. Blaine, Mr. Dawes, Mr. Scofield, Mr. Bingham, and Mr. Kelley, it thus commented upon the case of Garfield:

The facts in regard to Mr. Garfield, as found by the Committee are identical with the case of Mr. Kelley to the point of receipt of the check of $329. He agreed with Mr. Ames to take ten shares of Credit Mobiler stock, but did not pay for the same. Mr. Ames received the 80 per cent dividends in bonds, and sold them for 97 per cent, and also received the 60 per cent cash dividends, which together paid the price of the stock and interest, and the balance of $329 was paid over to Mr. Garfield by a check on the Sergeant-at-Arms, and Mr. Garfield then understood this sum was the balance of dividends after paying for the stock. Mr. Ames received all the subsequent dividends, and the Committee do not find that since the payment of the $329, there has been any communication between Mr. Ames and Mr. Garfield on the subject until this investigation began.

The Committee, speaking of the members named, report:

The Committee, therefore, do not find, as to the members of the present House above named, that they were aware of the object of Mr. Ames, or that they had any other purpose in taking this stock than to make a profitable investment. It is apparent that those who advance their money to pay for the stock present, more the appearance of ordinary investors than those who do not; but the Committee do not feel at liberty to find any corrupt purpose or knowledge founded upon the face of non-payment alone.

The Committee have not been able to find that any of these members of Congress have been affected in their official conduct in consequence of their interest in Credit Mobiler stock.

The Committee do not find that either of the above named gentlemen, in contracting with Mr. Ames, had any corrupt motive or purpose, or were aware that Mr. Ames had any, nor did either of them suppose he was guilty of any impropriety, or even imbecility, in becoming a purchaser of this stock. Had it appeared that these gentlemen were aware of the enormous dividends upon this stock, and how they were to be earned, we could not thus acquit them.

And this is the whole story told by the investigating Committee. The whole variance between Ames and Garfield was as to whether Ames paid him $300. In either case Ames declares that Garfield never received any stock or certificates, nor any dividends which the stock earned from 1867 to 1873.

The report expressly acquits all the persons named—Blaine, Dawes, Scofield, Bingham, Kelly, and Garfield—of all corrupt or improper action or complicity in the matter. In that acquittal the Democratic members of the Committee concurred with the others.

CAMPAIGN DRIFT.

I didn't know the d—d fools had so much sense as to nominate a man like Garfield.—Bob Toombs.

SENATOR HOAR'S admiring townsmen are going to give him a reception at Worcester Saturday evening.

GARFIELD'S election will give the country what it has all along desired, a second term of Hayes.—S. Paul (Min.) Pioneer-Press.

The Cincinnati Convention has but two contested delegations on its hands, one from New York and the other from Massachusetts.

There is some talk of the chance of putting Grant forward on the Democratic platform, but there is not the slightest possibility of any such nonsense at Cincinnati.

The Grant leaders have notified Gov. Foster of Ohio, "Calico Charley," as the Buckeyes dub him, that his speeches will accompany Garfield to his native hearth along together too hard on the mourners.

HORATIO SYMONS, Democrat may remember, four years ago declined an appointment as Governor when his acceptance appeared to be absolutely necessary to the success of the party in the Presidential struggle of 1876.

If Judge Field is nominated at Cincinnati, the cry will be instantly raised that the purpose of the Democracy is to undo the work of the federal armies, as embodied in the constitutional amendments and the laws made in pursuance of those amendments.—Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

The Cincinnati Enquirer (Dem.), after a careful review of the Democratic outlook, says: "Without drawing any analogy between the approaching Democratic Convention and the Convention at Chicago, the nomination of Mr. Tilden seems at this writing improbable."

SECRETARY SHERMAN'S indictment of Arthur for waste, negligence and favoritism in his management of the New York custom-house, which a number of Democratic newspapers are quoting at length, was not considered a good cause for his removal by a number of Democratic Senators.

Of the attacks on General Garfield's character the Boston Transcript, an independent Republican newspaper, says:

"Make the most they can of the Credit Mobiler and De Golyer incidents and they are but trifles in comparison with the large and beneficent activities of Garfield's public life. It will be more idle to attempt to make a serious, continued campaign against such a career with only these petty scandals than it would have been to pitch into the private morals of Daniel Webster or Henry Clay had they become candidates. The country appreciates too much of the rarity of the opportunity afforded to vote for one of the real leaders in politics rather than for the available nobody which it has seemed to be the law of our system of party government to turn out the Presidential candidate."

More of the Southern newspapers confess that General Garfield will poll the full vote of his party and will be a strong candidate, and all of them think that the defeat of Grant is a good thing for the South. The Richmond (Va.) State Express has this last sentiment rationally when it says: "The good effects in a moral way upon the South of the nomination of Garfield, instead of Grant, will be so beneficial, that we will afford to lose the Presidency for the sake of the material and moral gains we shall obtain in compensation. Had Grant been nominated we would have had to pass through one of the most exciting contests that we have ever had in the South. The colored people would have thought of nothing during the next six months but politics, and everything else would have been neglected to the great injury of their and our interests."

ANNA DICKINSON has been talking politics with a reporter of the Cincinnati Commercial. She was bitterly opposed to Grant's nomination at Chicago, and says that had she succeeded she would have worked "willingly and eagerly" for the Democratic candidate. She thinks that Garfield's nomination is a good one. Of her part in the canvass of 1872 she says: "I not only had general offers of liberal terms to speak for Grant, but even Mr. Grant and his friend Henry Wilson, came to me myself, at my home in Philadelphia, with the offer and guarantee of $20,000 for twenty speeches in the campaign. Multiply twenty by one hundred, and I would not have refused for him. I did not make an speech for Greeley. I made it when he was a dying man, and when it seemed that, for very shame's sake, the truth ought to be told of all that his long life of devotion to freedom had wrought in our behalf, and when he was being brutally done to death in the house of his professed friends. I made this speech for Greeley without money and without price, and within forty-eight hours I was rewarded with $14,000 worth of canceled lecture engagements, the word being, 'We don't care if anybody talking for us who talks for that old blunder, Greeley!'"
