What the Book Makers Have Been Doing While Other Folks Have Been Wrangling. "See here," said the Chief, "there's nothing but politics in the papers, and busy trying to make up the full returns of the October election in West Virginia, but in the meantime he had been filling in an idle moment with some new books—most of them sent in by Stanton & Davenport, and some of them very taking things in their way.

Here is a gem—Hezekiah Butterworth's "The Great Composers," meaning composers of music. The little book is published by D. Lathrop & Co., Doston, in the second series of Little Biographies. It gives us a taste of music from the time the when the wind rustled through the reeds of the Nile and suggested the organ, and when Mercury strobed his toe against a tortoise shell and brought torth the lyre. There are nice touches of the grand Hebrow contions, of the stately, solemn music of the early church, glimpses of the oratories of Handel, the symphonies of Hayden and the touching compositions of Mozart and Beethoven, of the "future music" of Wagner and of the less dignified composers and compositions. There is no more defigintful bit in biographical literature than the little sketch of the history of the "Moonlight Sonata" of B-ethoven, composed before that wonderful genits had become deaf to the delights of his note designful bit in biographical litera-ture than the little sketch of the history of the "Moonlight Sonata" of B-ethoven, composed before that wonderful genius had become deaf to the delights of his own melody. The story is tender, though own melody. The story is tender, though it be nottrue. All "The Great Composers" come in for a foir share of altention. It is a delightful book, plentifuley illus-

From the enterprising Century company come three choice works. First there is our good friend the Century, volumes V and VI, handsomely bound in gold cloth with gilt top. In the past year this superh magazine has more than sustained its reputation. Its articles grow in interest, and its excellent illustrations improve upon themselves. The best of the English magazines are not to be compared with this steadily growing periodical. The bound volumes which lie before us contain some of the best fiction of the year. Mr. Cable's "Dr. Sevier" Mr. Hongy questions and so prevent these seven the indexion of the year. Mr. Cable's "Dr. Sevier" Mr. Boyesen's "A Problematic Character"; Mr. Robert Grant's "An Averago Mam"; and the latter half of "The Bread-Winners" being in the collection. The poetry is particularly rich. There is plenty of travel and adventure, of criticism and discussion of public questions. The series of war papers, so strikingly begun by General Leauregard, will be a leature of the new year. In the December number General Lew Wallace will have an article on Fort Donelson, with an autographic copy of General Grant's work.

In many of the counties negroes were boddly intimidated and kept away from the polls by thousands. Another method successfully employed was to delay the voter by many questions and so prevent successfully employed was to delay the voter by many questions and so prevent many negroes this plan was adopted and many Republicans cheated out of their votes. "Baby World" is still another good thing from the Century press. Compil d from St. Nichotas by the editor of that publication, Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, it is what might be expected from an editor of excellent taste having materials so good to select from. The little ones will ravel in the pictures and find great delight in the stories. "Baby Land" will be one of the best and most popular of the heliday books.

The caricatures of Punch, apart from their art merit and their humor, have a permanent value as contributions to Engisk history. Under the title "Half a Century of English History" Mesers. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London publish a collection of pictures from Pusch which will be well received by those who take some interest in English politics. Of course we have the familiar laces of John Bright, Glastone and Beaconsfield in all sorts of grotesque situations, for three statesmen have made the English political history of our time. Through this pictorial "Half a Century" we are able to trace with reasonable accurrace the rise and fail of parties and the state of public feeling touching great questions. Our own civil war comes in for some attention particularly the "Trent" opisode, which gave the cartoons a chance to tickle Southern Saw Station D, New York.

handed use of Disraeli's familiar face has not been exceeded by any American publication. There is many a good laugh in this little book.

The boys are being well looked after by the publishers. To books of adventure are being added books to give the boys of some practical idea of handicraft. In this line is "A Boy's workshop," published by by by Lathrop & Co., Boston. This little book tells the amateur mechanic what he needs to set up business, what he needs to carry it on and how he is to go about his work. The filustrations will be found very helpful. The boy who takes this book as his instructor will find no trouble to put in his spare time, to assuse himself and to make many articles of use in the household. The directions are very rimple, easily understood and altogether practical.

The household is a familiar face has not beliged to do all the hard work. A consum of the hard work. A woman was seen recently in Naples carrying a coalin on her head, chatting easily with a man who walked empty handed by her side.

"In Upper Austria," writes a correspondent, "I saw a very pretty young girl carrying the morian up to the second story of a building, while a man walled there to but it in place when she arrived. In Denmark it is not unusual to see a woman high up in a cherry tree picking the fruit, while a man lies at the foot waiting to place the ladder when she is ready to come down with her burden.

mothing but politics in the papers, and ours is as had as the rest of 'em. We do have a little police business, and the ordinary run of 'personals,' but isn't there a man on the paper, who has a soul above these things? Isn't there any new music to write about? Isn't there one new book that is worth a line? I thought the Literary Editor was done writing up horse races for the season."

The Literary Editor sald he had been busy trying to make up the full returns of the South for their rough usage of his race.

THE OLD STORY

Of Disfranchisement in the South-Vote Stolen in Virginia. Hon. J. S. Clarkson, member of the Re publican National Committee from Iowa, returned to New York, Saturday, from keon interest at this moment when the fate of that remarkable man is in doubt and his life may have gone out already in a dangerous enterprise which he undertook with all the serious purpose of deep religious conviction. This is Hake's work, brought down about to date by Graig, and from the press of D. Worthington, New York. Through his letters Gordon is allowed to patin a considerable part of his own portrait, which stands fall length as though the artist had painted one of the properts. Surely so strange a compoundas this warrior-priest has not been met before. Tho story of his life will be a grand theme for the noet who has the genius to use it. No tale of the Arabian Nights is more fascinating.

"Professor Conant: A story of "English and American Social and Political Life," by Hon. L. S. Huntington, Q. C., tate Postmoster-General of Canada, published by R. Worthington, New York. A work of this kind has to be very well done to be attractive. Professor Conant runs rather too much in the didactic vein, yet is motive is good, it deals with living themes and is altogether readable. There is enough love in it to keep up the interest and things go preity well at the wind-up. The boys, and some of the girls too, will be interested in "Wild Woods Life" by Capt. Charles A. J. Farrar, who has already entertained them with tales of adventure. Capt. Farrar writes with a healthful vigor of secuces which cannot fail to aprivate the imagination of the young. The illustrations are abandant and fairly done.

ingly begun by General Beauregard, will be a leature of the new year. In the December number General Lew Wallace will have an article on Fort Donelson, with an autographic copy of General Grant. The publishers inform us that the Centary has reached a circulation of 150,000.

St. Nicholas for the year comes beautifully bound in two parts. This standard publication, mainly intended for young folks, has won the favor of adults as well. The sympticity of its style, the reputation of its writers and the great beauty of its illustrations have given it a high place in periodical literature. It engages the hest takent and secures the best work. The naw bound volumes contain 579 illustrations which do credit Do-the art. St. Nicholas makes liberal promises. There is no publication for the young which contains so much entertainment and instruction. The bound volumes are always in great favor at holday times.

"Baby World" is still another good the factor of the point of the po once more to stay.

Woman's Face,

Weman's Face.

"What furniture can give such finish to a room, as a tender woman's face," asks George Elliott. Not any, we are happy to answer, provided the glow of health tempers the tender expression. The pale, anxious, bloodless face of the consumptive, or the evident sufferings of the dyepeptic, induce feelings of sorrow and grief on our part and compel as to tall them of on our part and compel as to tell them of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the sovereign remedy for consumption and other diseases of the respiratory system as well as dyspepsia and other digestive troubles.
