A LOSS TO WHEELING

THE DEATH OF JAMES MAXWELL.

Shockingly sudden demise last evening of a leading citizen and highly respected business man - James Maxwell, Esq., falls dead without warning.

James Maxwell, Esq., one of Wheeling's oldest and best known citizens, died very suddenly shortly after 8 o'clock last evening, while sitting in the grocery store of George Schellhase, corner of Market and Eleventh streets.

For several days past Mr. Maxwell had complained of feeling unwell, but was not at all alarmed by it. He was in session to the board of directors of the Wheeling & Belmont Bridge Company at 8 o'clock last evening, when he attended the meeting of the Board of Education, of which he was a member.

Before the body was called to order he complained of the heat, and soon after he was in session to the board of directors of the Wheeling & Belmont Bridge Company at 8 o'clock last evening, when he attended the meeting of the Board of Education, of which he was a member.

Mr. Schellhase had down beside him, and he was sitting in a chair, when he suddenly fell forward on his face, and expired. He was taken to the hospital, but he died there at 10 o'clock.

TO SAVE HIS LIFE.

Kills Himself at Canton, Ohio - An Ex-Policeman at Bridgeport - The Alleged Would-be Assassin Whom He Feared. He is Driven to Despair by Threats.

John Casper Salt, a former resident of Bridgeport, committed suicide at Canton, Ohio, on Wednesday. A special telegram from Canton to a Cincinnati paper, tells the following sensational story of the cause which induced Salt to take his life.

From developments made concerning John Casper Salt, it appears he was driven to suicide by fears of being assassinated, and not from poverty. When Marshal Single learned certain facts in the case he remembered that on Wednesday of last week Salt came to him at the Mayor's office and wanted two men arrested for following him. He said that while residing in Bridgeport, Ohio, he had some trouble with a man, that he had reason to believe that he would kill him. On that account he moved away from Bridgeport. This man he said was in Canton and he had met him the day previous. He said that the man was a former policeman, and he was wanted by the men arrested. The Marshal accompanied him home and a search was made for the men, but they could not be found. Concerning the trouble with a man in Bridgeport, Mrs. Salt says an ex-policeman in Bridgeport was an enemy of hers, and that another man of that place and her husband had some trouble concerning a woman; that the man abused the woman and that her husband abused her in their home one night, they lived in a double building.

A letter from Salt's person substantiated this story. It was written to Salt by a friend, Felix Fagin, of Bridgeport, September 8, 1881, and warned him of certain people that they would harm him if he could get hold of him.

The note written in German found near Salt was, until this morning, only partly deciphered, it being difficult to make out the latter part of it on account of the poor handwriting of another man, and he was a letter from Salt's person substantiated this story.
