

EXTRA AT REST

The Heavy Booming of the Brazen Cannon, The Death-like Dirge of Solemn Martial Music, And the Low Chanting of the Sad Requiem, The Departed Chieftain of our Victorious Hosts, Is Tenderly Entombed with a Nation's Honors, Miles of Marching Men Follow Their Leader As in the Dreadful Days of Civil Strife, Millions of Men and Women Bow Their Heads, In Mournful Grief and Weep for the Patient Hero, His Prayer for Peace is Answered at Last, He Sleeps Beside the Placid Hudson, But His Great Soul Goes Marching On, Unequaled Pomp and Panoply in Parade, For the Simple, Silent Man who Fought a Good Fight, And is Silent Forevermore, and Deaf to his Country's Praise.

Meade Post of Philadelphia, five hundred strong, came tramping to the dirge music of the trumpets. The east was suffused with tints of orange and dawn was near, the dawn of the funeral day. The veterans of the plaza and marched past with the muffled drums to stifle their footsteps. A heavy gun boomed out toward the sea, the chimes of old Trinity pealed mournful notes and the sound of muffled drums grew fainter and dimmer. It was sunrise. The day was born, the last day for the dead upon earth before the tomb should have opened to shelter him.

Death Bed Scene.

charge of the regulars commanded his companies as indicated above to positions. Company A on the right and Company E on the left of the hearse. Colored men were at the head of the line, the twenty-four veterans of the Meade Post, of Philadelphia, of which General Grant was a member, was almost directly in front of the team of black leaders, and David's Island band preceded them. The signal was given and the line of coaches with their men moved off the plaza on to Broadway.

The band stood waiting at the head of the funeral cortege. Colonel Beck advanced to the head of the line of black horses before the coach. "Move on!" he said, and the line of coaches with their men moved off the plaza on to Broadway. The band stood waiting at the head of the funeral cortege. THE FACE COLD IN DEATH.

"The Peace that Passeth Understanding." "How sleep the brave who sink to rest By all their country's wishes blest."

High East. Ahead of them had gone a number of carriages following the Grant family in the following order: Mrs. Hannah Holman, daughter of General Grant's friend and first Secretary of War; the General's old staff in four carriages; his executive officers in four carriages; detachments from Wheeler and U. S. Grant Posts; A. K., in four carriages; Mr. J. W. Drexel and members of the Aztec Club; survivors of the Mexican war. Next came the President's carriage, the Vice President and the cabinet in five carriages, the members of the Supreme Court, the United States Senators and the House Congressional Committee in a score of carriages, the committee of the State Legislature in thirty, ex-Presidents Arthur and Hayes and members of their cabinets, then the Foreign Ministers and Diplomatic and Consular officers under General Grant's administration. These filled ten carriages.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION. The Composition of the Great Body and Order of Position. The funeral procession left the City Hall at 9:50 amid the hush of the immense throng of people who witnessed its starting. The moving column was the most imposing ever seen in this city. The men presented a fine appearance, and as the pageant moved along to the mournful music of the bands the spectators on the sidewalks reverently bowed their heads. Following was the order of the procession:

THE FUNERAL SERVICES.

Very Impressive Ceremonies-The Salutes Fired Over the Grave. At 1:24 p. m. the head of the procession reached the tomb in Riverside Park.

On arriving at the tomb comrades of George Meade Post No. 1 G. A. R., of Philadelphia, of which General Grant was at the time of his death a member, went through the ritual of the Grand Army. This did not take more than fifteen minutes, but it was very impressive.

The Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman then conducted the Methodist Episcopal burial service. He was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Talbot W. Chambers, of the Collegiate Reformed Church. Immediately after Dr. Newman had pronounced the benediction, Bugler Krouse, of Battery H, Fifth United States Artillery sounded the bugle call to "Attention, Lights," generally called "taps." Colonel Grant heard that this might be done. He requested that this might be done. He requested that this might be done. He requested that this might be done.

THE LAST LOOK

At the Face of the Dead-The Gates Locked and the Coffin Sealed. New York, August 8.—Chief of Police Murray at 1 o'clock this morning was in command of men and affairs at the City Hall. At that hour the gates were about to be closed, when he observed that there were 500 or 1,000 people yet waiting at the foot of the steps and across the plaza.

the steps of the city hall and led by four instruments sang with impressive effect the "Chorus of the Spirits," from over the water, and the "Chorus of the Pilgrims" from Tannhauser. The honor guard of regulars filed into the open space at 8 o'clock, Company A of the Fifth Artillery, under Colonel W. B. Brock, and Company E, Twelfth Infantry, under Major Brown. The companies and the guard of regulars are under command of Col. Beck. The regulars took position beneath the trees opposite the City Hall and stood at rest. Then came the original and McGreggor, and which alone should fill the remains to-day. Filing into the corridors of the City Hall they took their places beside the remains.

At FIFTH AVENUE HOTEL. Madison Square was long astray, and troops of eighteens were traveling up Twenty-third street as early as half-past seven o'clock, when an officer on horseback dashed up to the ladies' entrance of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and dismounting, took his stand at the door. The pearl gray sash denoted an aide of Gen. Hancock. The officer was Colonel Hodges, of General Hancock's staff. He was followed shortly by a mild looking gentleman in military uniform, who proved to be the Marshal of the funeral, General G. A. R. The President's party, Lieut. Col. Gillespie. The appearance attracted an enormous crowd to the draped entrance to the hotel on Twenty-third street, and the police were soon called to clear the sidewalk.

Colonel and Mrs. Fred. D. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Grant, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Grant, Mrs. Cramer, Mrs. Dent, Miss Cramer, General Cromwell, Mr. Stephen L. Moriarty, Senator

First Division of the National Guard were drawn up, guns were shouldered as the General passed. The men of the First Division stretched southward from near Twenty-eighth street in a continuous line, on the east side of Fifth Avenue and in the side streets, the Second Battery, Captain Earle, mounted, but without guns, occupying the extreme right. On the west side of the avenue a continuous line of Grand Army organizations extended down as far as the eye reached.

At Parkersburg. Special Dispatch to the Intelligencer. PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 8.—The Academy of Music was filled to its utmost capacity at one o'clock this afternoon, the occasion being the holding of memorial services in respect to the late General Grant. The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. E. M. Merrill. An appropriate selection was sung by the choir, led by a choir conductor. The occasion, which was followed by the opening address delivered by ex-Governor A. B. Boreman, the chairman of the meeting. The balance of the programme was as follows: Music; address by Judge George Loomis; address by Rev. J. W. Carter, D. D.; music; address by Rev. T. B. Hughes; music; address by Hon. J. A. Hutchinson; music; doxology; benedictions by Rev. R. A. Hill. The addresses were all eloquent and interesting and made lasting impressions on all who heard them.

Embalm the Body. Commander Johnson stepped aside. The silver mountings glistened as the burial case and its honored burden were carried up and placed upon the disolvent on the mounted catafalque. The veterans returned down the steps. The body was above for all to view, but deeply guarded soon. The honor guard, next to the hearse on either side, took the same relative positions they had maintained to the remains while borne to the car. The steps were drawn away from the hearse.

TO THE TOMB. The Remains on the Funeral Car-The Procession Starts. Commander Johnson took a place in the center and immediately behind the funeral car. At his left and right in the rear corner of the car were comrades Downing and Ormsby, of Wheeler Post, Saratoga, respectively. Next and directly behind these were representatives of the Royal Legion, as follows: General John J. Milkan, General C. A. Carleton, Paymaster George D. Barton, Lieutenant Colonel Floyd Clark, Lieutenant Colonel A. M. Clark and Captain E. Blunt. The clergy and physicians had paid respect to the remains by alighting from their carriages and accompanying them to the steps of the car. They then entered carriages on either side of the plaza near Broadway as follows: Rev. Dr. Newman, Bishop Harris, Bishop Potter, Rev. Dr. Chambers, Rev. Dr. Field, Rev. Dr. Bridgeman, Rev. Dr. West, Rev. Father DeShon, Rev. Robert Collier, Rabbi Brown and Doctors Douglas, Shady, and Sands. Colonel Beck in
