WHEELING, W. VA., AUGUST 26, 1886. CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION FIRST DISTRICT.

At a meeting of the Republican Executive Committee for the First Congressional District of West Virginia, held at Wheeling, August 11, 1886, it was ordered:

That a Convention of the Republicans of the First Congressional District of West Virginia be called to meet at Weston, W. Va., on TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1886, for the purpose of placing in nomination a Republican candidate for Congress in said District, and for the transaction of any other business that may properly come before the Convention.

The Republican papers of the First District are respectfully requested to publish this call.

G. H. CALDWELL, Chairman. O. G. FORTNEY, Secretary.

A Phase of Reform. One of the things the Democratic party was going to do when it got into office was to show the country that it knew how to conduct the public business as successfully as it ever had been conducted.

That party has been in national control for eighteen months. In addition to its own capabilities it has had the assistance of the strong Mugwump contingent, which has not been backward in coming to the front.

Still the public business has not been managed to the satisfaction of the people. The inefficiency of the mail service is a striking illustration.

The complaints are general—and they are particular. They cover the country, and they break out violently in spots. Business men in many cities are driven to avail themselves of express facilities, the express companies get a large revenue diverted from the Government, and the increased cost of carriage is a direct and considerable increase in taxation.

The money orders issued by the Postoffice Department are being sent by express because the people will not trust them to the uncertain handling of the postal service.

Under twenty-four years of Republican Administration the Post Office Department became a highly organized establishment. It was regarded by the world as a model. It moved swiftly and surely. It covered its immense territory so skillfully that there was little risk in fixing the hour of delivery in San Francisco from the hour of mailing in New York.

The department had the confidence of the people, and the express companies complained that it took their business. Under the present regime the express companies are in a fair way to more than recover their lost ground. Reform is doing it.

Senator Kenna's Committee in the Book Trade. Under the civil service act office-holders are forbidden to solicit or to pay money for campaign purposes.

The framers of the act thought they had knocked political assessments into a cocked hat. Senator Kenna's committee was too patriotic to even desire to break the law. But it wanted money, wanted a good deal of it and wanted it soon.

The committee resolved to go into the publishing business. It conceived the idea of an exciting work which shall yield a larger return than the "Memoirs" of Grant or the "Twenty Years" of Blaine.

This triumph in the book trade is not expected to have a wide sale among the common people, but the publishers feel assured that there is not an office-holder of the hundred thousand who will not demand such a supply as he thinks the committee will let him have.

It is in the kind of book of which an office-holder will want to read several copies, besides distributing some more copies among his friends and handing others down to posterity.

The price of the work is one dollar. From this deduct the cost of production, estimated at ten cents, and the enterprising publishers have a neat profit of about ninety cents a copy.

Could anything be more felicitous? The law does not prohibit the sale of books to officeholders nor limit the number they may buy. Neither is it written that they shall not give a dollar for a ten-cent book.

The law-maker who tries to clip the wings of the American Eagle doesn't understand the versatile genius of the proud bird he is dealing with.

CONGRESSIONAL CAMPAIGN. The Work of the two Chairman—Democratic Campaign Handbook.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 24.—Between the sessions of Congress the Washington correspondents find very little to write about which is of a very interesting character, or of a special nature.

Both of the national committees are hard at work preparing for the campaign that is before them. In a week or two, or nearly all, the conventions will have been held, and then the contest will commence in earnest.

There is an activity about the headquarters of both the committees in this city that reminds one forcibly of the busy times witnessed in the summer of '84, when the work exceeded that of all previous campaigns.

Both General Goff and Senator Kenna, both chosen young leaders of their respective parties, and rivals in their own State for popular favor, seem to have commenced in earnest, each with a determination to win. The contest between these two plucky leaders means a great deal to them.

Senator Kenna has everything to lose and General Goff much to gain. If Goff prosecutes a successful campaign, either in his own State or the country at large, it will place him in the front rank of our national leaders and make him "one of the possibilities" in the future of the Republican party.

His availability for a place on the national ticket in 1888 is already the subject of some talk in political circles, and should the management of the present campaign result in the election of a Republican Congress, or even in enting down the Democratic majority, his own strength will be augmented, and the probabilities are that his own name will not be among young leaders of their respective parties, and rivals in their own State for popular favor, seem to have commenced in earnest, each with a determination to win.

enthusiastic Democrat, that the Republicans will hold their own this year. Every member gathered for a full day in a single doubtful State, will reflect to the credit (to some extent) of the gallant young West Virginian, who has been chosen to personally direct the campaign.

Incident to this subject, I notice that Mr. T. C. Crawford, of the New York World, who devotes an entire page to a friendly discussion of Mr. Blaine, quotes the Maine statesman's views as to the possibility of the Republicans carrying the next House of Representatives.

His impression is that it will be hard for the Republicans to elect a majority of their number, so long as the South remains solid and can find in the North enough votes to contribute to help them hold the Government. A solid South, he says, means a great political power, and under the present system it is a power which is led by a few men.

The Democratic campaign handbook, which Senator Kenna and his colleagues on the committee have just issued, in the hope that it would be a powerful electorship document, and a source of campaign revenue, is subjected to severe criticism by party organs.

The New York World sarcastically alludes to it as a "Sophomoric production," and refers to the "schoolboy management" of the National Congressional Committee in a way that is anything but complimentary to Kenna.

THI-STATE REUNION. An Old Soldier Gives Some Leaves from His Diary.

To the Editor of the Intelligencer. Sir:—In view of the Tri-State Reunion to be held on Wheeling Island September 22nd and 23rd, the first movement of which was inaugurated at New Cumberland, W. Va., May 27 last, by some of the survivors of the First Virginia Infantry, by your permission I extract from my diary the following, which may be of interest to the surviving members of the First Regiment, their friends and the public generally.

I quote as follows: Wellsburg, May 18, 1861.—Organized our Company "43" this morning; left for Wheeling on the steamer "Conroy," Capt. Abner O'Neal, arrived at Wheeling Island at 9:30 A. M.; go into quarters on the Fair Grounds in an open shed.

Sunday, May 19.—Prepared for breakfast not flattering. Quite a number breakfasted with Capt. E. E. Parker's company, of Wellsburg, which preceded us some days. Cooking utensils provided, and breakfast soon made ready. Boys in good spirits. "Stood" my first guard duty last night. They call it "quarter guard." Frolicing at 3 P. M.

May 20.—Moved quarters. Getting a little used to camp life. May 21.—Sworn into the United States volunteer army for three months. Revellie 5 A. M. Tattoo, 10 P. M. We call our company the "Bucks" Oakes Guards.

Major Oakes, of the regular army, who mustered us into the service. May 23.—Returned to Wellsburg via Bridgeport, O., on the 11 A. M. train, to attend an election. Leave Wellsburg at 4 P. M. Escorted out of town by Home Guards and a Pittsburgh company, quartered there.

May 24.—Fine weather. Boys all having a good time. The ladies of Bridgeport gave the two Wellsburg companies a first class dinner to-day. May 25.—Our encampment is called "Camp Carlisle," in honor of John S. Carlisle, a prominent Union man.

May 26.—Many friends from Wellsburg called to see us to-day. Midnight. Alarm! Orders to get ready to march. Great excitement. Saw one good boy perusing his testament.

Monday, May 27.—Depart for Paris unknown on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. Got started in the morning. Arrived at place of destination about 3 P. M. Some of us take a nap. Had company drill. Supper, first we had to eat since morning. Made our bed on the ground. (This was something entirely new to us, as the hotel boards to keep us of the ground.) We have no tents. No cartridge or cap boxes, carrying our ammunition in our pockets. Neither have we uniforms. Rather a motley crew.

May 28.—Forgot to state in the proper place who are the officers of our company. They are as follows: James I. Kuhn, Captain; A. W. Kuhn and James White, Lieutenants; Thomas Bell, Orderly Sergeant.

May 29.—Camped alongside of the railroad. Made quarters as comfortable as possible out of rails and brush. Heavy rain. Everybody wet. Three hundred Ohio troops arrive, making the sixteenth Ohio Regiment complete in numbers. Furnished cartridge boxes. B. F. Kelly is Colonel of the regiment, and it is known as the First Regiment Virginia Volunteer Infantry. Our camp is called "Buffalo," a creek by that name runs past the camp.

May 30.—Got up to prepare breakfast. Rations played out. Men get hungry and go out and bring in turkeys, geese, chickens, pigs and beef. First class dinner the result. A sad accident occurred to-day, Frederick Ferrell, of our company, was accidentally shot and killed by a musket ball in the hands of a comrade. The same ball also wounded another soldier named Murdock, in the thigh.

May 31.—Ferrell buried at or near Mannington, Va., with military honors. Left for Washington, arrived 5 P. M. Under marching orders. More grumbling about grub. Marching Sunday, June 2, 5 A. M. pack up. All aboard the cars, bound for Philadelphia. Get off cars at Thornton station and take up line of march. (The boys will remember the march without it being recorded here.) The next morning we enter the town of Philadelphia. The Cleveland battery shelling the enemy. Col. Kelley wounded.

It will be seen from the foregoing that we were all inexperienced and not skilled in warfare or camp life, and that we left Wheeling, you may say, unorganized, not knowing any of us (unless it was the officers who were our commanders) what a colonel or a regiment was. We were there to obey orders and perform the duty which we were sworn to do.

And how soon we learned. And what a comparison with the "three months" and the three years service. But none of the boys are ashamed of their three months' record. They did all that was required of them, and to-day many are more proud of their three months' campaign than of the balance of the service. Why? We will let the reader who is familiar with the struggle and all the early incidents thereof, and producing at intervals, we have been solicited by a number of my comrades to furnish you the foregoing at this time as a reminder to our surviving comrades to arouse and make the first reunion of the First Regiment, Va. Vol. Infantry on the old camp ground on Wheeling Island a thing ever to be remembered, a credit to themselves, to Wheeling and to the Panhandle generally.

GEORGE B. CHAPMAN, Co. G, 1st Reg. Va. Vol. Inf.

The Saloon in Politics. Atlantic City September.

What have the 7,000 soldiers of New York City done for her? They have fastened upon her citizens the most shameful and corrupt government ever conducted by a community indulging in the illusion that it was free; they have almost made it impossible for an honest, educated man to touch local politics, much less take any part in the management of the conduct of public affairs on their own level; they have brutalized every institution they have had to do with; they have perverted and spoiled the democratic system, making a hissing and a reproach of an American citizenship and the suffrage, establishing political shambles, pandering to the worst vices of the worst classes, defiling everything decent and pure with their ritual obscenity, and producing at intervals, as a proof of their quality, sentences and power, such abominable scandals as that of the Tweed ring, or of the more recent sale of votes in the Board of Aldermen.

CHOP REPORTS. Condition of Wheat, Corn and Other Grains in West Virginia. WASHINGTON, D. C., August 24.—The report of the condition of growing crops, just issued by the Agricultural Department, for August, gives some interesting data regarding the crops in West Virginia. The wheat crop throughout the country does not show as good an average as last year, although it is very good and should not cause complaint.

There has been a heavy decline in the condition of corn since the first of July. The average, which was then 95, is reduced to 81.

The following are quotations from voluntary remarks by West Virginia country correspondents, and will enable the INTELLIGENCER'S readers to form an estimate of the average condition of the corn crop in our State:

McDowell: Will not be as good as last year; too wet. Webster: Too much rain to make good corn. Monongalia: Recent rains have improved it 50 percent; promise of an abundant supply. Clay: Greatly injured by dry weather of past few days. Jefferson: Season good; prospects of fine crop. Marshall: Improved by recent rains; crop late owing to replanting once or twice, but looks well and has a good color. Ohio: Present weather is favorable; crop a little late because of low temperature and wet weather in June and July. Ritchie: Crop generally never looked better. Roane: Though not well worked in June, the indications are good for a fair crop. Wayne: Much improved by favorable rains. Mercer: Did not get the usual cultivation, and it has been dry during the past fortnight, hence we shall not raise a full crop. Morgan: All early plantings look well; a great deal of short corn resulting from late planting and poor stand. Cabell: Present season very favorable and crop is coming along rapidly. Fayette: Could not be properly worked by wet weather. Greenbrier: Some little corn above the average. Putnam: Too wet for working and is consequently weedy. Raleigh: Out short by wet weather. Summers: Too wet; weedy. Brooke: Very short and badly damaged by a recent wind and hail storm. Wood: Late; growth has been retarded by cold nights during June; some fields damaged by cut-worm.

The increase of buckwheat is nearly the same as in 1885. It is slightly increased in New York, New Hampshire, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, and Dakota. It is reduced in the most of the Western States, with very little effect on the total product, as very little is usually produced in that region.

The condition of the oats crop in West Virginia is excellent. The average being 101. The condition of barley, cotton, tobacco, and sweet potato crops are reported generally good.

In West Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland and portions of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio, the crop of hay is excellent, but a considerable amount was damaged by an excess of rain. Following is an extract from the report from West Virginia:

"The frequent rains since May have made it difficult to harvest and preserve both wheat and grass. The grain that is being threshed has been very damp and much of it unshailable. As to what quantity is going to be merchantable will depend greatly upon the future condition of the weather. Many farmers have not yet finished gathering in the grain and grass crop."

A Tried Remedy for Biliousness. Those who suffer from disorder or irritation of the liver will never get the upper hand of the unruly organ so long as they use such irrational remedies as bitter, colonic and cathartic pills. But from the tried and popular medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they may expect relief with a certainty of obtaining it. The influence of the Bitters upon the great biliary gland is direct, powerful and specially felt. The relief afforded is not temporary, but complete and permanent. The looseness of the skin, furrowed appearance of the tongue, indigestion, constiveness, headache, nausea, pain through the right side of the chest, and every other unpleasant symptom of the obstructed complaint are entirely and permanently removed by a course of this medicinal medicine. Water and wine, when taken in conjunction with the Bitters, are constantly emanating from every quarter, and from all classes of society.
