WHEELING, W. VA., JANUARY 20, 1887. REPUBLICAN CITY TICKET.

FOR MAYOR—H. B. DENVER. FOR CITY CLERK—FRANK W. HOWES. FOR CITY TREASURER—JOHN D. BENNETT.

Up to the present time the situation in the Legislature has been one of maneuvering for position.

It has been a triangular movement in which one of the parties has hardly known its strength.

Early in the contest the position of the Republican members was clearly defined by the caucus, in which it was resolved to stand firm and united against the Coal Oil Democracy.

Represented by Senator Camden. This in itself was a source of strength and encouragement to anti-Camden Democrats to make good their position.

In the meantime Mr. Camden's friends have been active in trying to reduce or to brow-beat the anti-Camden faction.

To this end he summoned all his lieutenants from different parts of the State to do his personal work.

Load denunciation and soft persuasion have been tried in turn on the kickers.

This has been kept up for over a week with no other results, we are glad to know, than to consolidate the anti-Camden Democrats.

So that now the competition stands, with all the force completely in hand, and in such form as secure, without question, Mr. Camden's defeat.

Whether Mr. Camden's defeat will be secured by each party acting separately on continuous ballots day by day to the end of the session, or by a coalition between anti-Camden Democrats and Republicans has not been decided upon.

If the former tactics be adopted, which seems likely, then there will be no election of U. S. Senator, and Gov. Wilson will appoint, in that event, Senator Camden's successor.

If, however, the latter tactics be adopted, to wit the coalition of anti-Camden Democrats and Republicans, then, in that case, the Republicans would insist upon having a Democrat for whom they could consistently vote.

The Republican party being in the minority, the right of initiative belongs to the anti-Camden Democrats, and we doubt not they will see the propriety of acting upon the suggestion here made.

If they expect to secure the united strength of the Republican members of the Legislature. In either case our Republican members should weigh well their own responsibility in the premises.

In no event can we afford to assist Senator Camden. That would identify the Republican party with the Coal Oil Democracy.

The vote of one Republican member for Mr. Camden, weakens our cause that much, and places us on ground that is not tenable for the future.

It is important that we not only have a clean record to go before the people upon, but that it be wisely adapted to the events which are soon and certainly to come upon us as a party.

The contest in 1888 will be largely fought upon the issue of monopoly and anti-monopoly, the Standard Oil Company being the occasion of the presentation of the issue.

Its methods in business, and especially its methods in politics, have grown to be unbreakable, and the party which has any taint of affiliation with its political methods is doomed to defeat.

This issue will be especially made in West Virginia. Hence the effort to divide the responsibility of Senator Camden's election or defeat with the Republican party.

This done, there is no fighting chance for us in 1888. We should be paralyzed by our own act, to say nothing of the misfortune which would be entailed upon the State by our unwise action.

Nothing is left Republicans, therefore, but to let Mr. Camden severally alone. However much Republicans may like him personally, as a politician he sums up all that is undesirable in his politics.

Mr. Hoxie and the Tramp. Chicago Herald.

During the early days of the Union Pacific, when Webster Snyder was General Superintendent, the late H. M. Hoxie was his assistant.

Snyder and Hoxie were an active team, and one of them was nearly always on the road examining the construction or supervising the details of the conductor.

At the time of which I speak the road was completed a short distance beyond Kearney, and Mr. Hoxie had been out to the end of the road and was returning.

The road-bed was naturally very rough, and the progress of all trains necessarily very slow. Somehow or not, Kearney a tramp boarded Mr. Hoxie's train and attempted to work the conductor for a free ride to Omaha.

The conductor resisted his plea, but his importunities became so pressing and pathetic that he was finally referred to Mr. Hoxie.

"Let you ride to Omaha for nothing," said he, when application was made to him; "no; when we get to the next station the conductor will put you out."

The order was strictly obeyed, and the discomfited tramp forced out of the car and on to the depot platform at Kearney. To say that Mr. Hoxie was surprised when, upon sighting from the train at Omaha, the first person that he encountered was the identical tramp who had just been referred to Mr. Hoxie.

"How did you get to Omaha for nothing?" said he, when application was made to him; "no; when we get to the next station the conductor will put you out."

The order was strictly obeyed, and the discomfited tramp forced out of the car and on to the depot platform at Kearney. To say that Mr. Hoxie was surprised when, upon sighting from the train at Omaha, the first person that he encountered was the identical tramp who had just been referred to Mr. Hoxie.

"I didn't want to give your road away to the mob," said the tramp; "I walked."

Some of Edison's Filings. Chicago Herald.

"Is this the Union depot?" asked a stranger of a man who stood in the entrance of the Chicago Opera House.

The person addressed looked up in surprise, but, thinking the fellow had a gag in store for him, replied that it was.

"How long will it be before the next train'll go out?" inquired the countryman. "About twenty minutes," replied the suspicious man.

"No," said the man, "I'm inside. Bought your ticket yet?" "No," "Well, you had better do so." The countryman purchased a strip of pasteboard and entered the theatre, while the smart man,
