The Intelligence. WHEELING, W. VA., APRIL 11, 1888. STATE CONVENTION.

A Convention of the State is called to meet in Fairmont on Wednesday, the 11th day of May, 1888, at 10 o'clock A. M., to select four delegates and four alternates to the National Republican Convention to be held in Chicago June 19, 1888.

All voters without regard to political affiliations, who are in favor of elevating and dignifying American labor, protecting and extending home industries, giving free popular education to the masses of the people, effecting reform in human rights in every section of our common country, and who desire to promote friendly feeling and permanent harmony throughout the State by maintaining a State and National Government pledged to these objects and principles, are cordially invited to attend this Convention and participate in its deliberations.

The Congressional Committee of the several Districts are called to convene Conventions in their Districts, to select in each two delegates and two alternates to said Chicago Convention.

We urge on County Committees the necessity of early action in the matter of holding county meetings for the purpose of appointing delegates to the State and District Conventions.

We recommend that one delegate be appointed for every one hundred votes cast for Blaine and Logan, or fractional part thereof equal to one-half, as a basis of representation to said Conventions.

By order of the Republican State Central Committee. W. J. W. COWDEN, Chairman. G. W. ATKINSON, Secretary.

The new Chief Justice will be a man who can do most to help along the second term. We must have reform.

Mr. Blaine kindly but sternly refuses to be in the state of health mapped out for him by the sleuth-hounds of the opposition.

In the earlier days when the Cleveland Civil Service reform policy was mentioned the Cleveland partisans winked one eye. Now they wink both. The world moves.

The Mugwumps are able to draw consolation from the recent Rhode Island election. It should be no trick at all for those artists to draw sunshine from the colicky cumbrer.

The Democratic House is doing what it can to reduce the surplus by doing nothing at the public cost. Between the promise and the performance you can drive a coach-and-four. Three cheers for retrenchment and reform!

When is the West Virginia Democrat with the foresight and the nerve to embrace ex-Senator Camden's rejected opportunity? There is a fine opening for a man of sand. The other fellows are holding on to a rope of the same.

The vital point in Mr. Matthew Arnold's "Civilization in the United States," is that he was unable to find any. This is a little rough on the cultivated men and women who paid court to Mr. Arnold when he came dollar-hunting to this barbarous land.

A forecast of the New York delegation to the National Republican Convention puts down as delegates-at-large Senators Hisscock and Evarts, Ex-Senator Platt and Channey M. Depew. As a four-horse team that will be hard to beat. The best is none too good to send to a National convention.

Pa, what are filibusters? They are Democrats, my son.

Pa, what good are filibusters? They set the country to thinking, my son.

Pa, when the country gets to thinking real hard, won't it bust 'em wide open? My son, prophecy is not for children.

This Mayor and all the Councilmen of Oskaloosa, Kansas, are women, and all of them except one are mothers and good housewives. The published names of these good women suggest the thought that woman in politics must not go by such names as Mattie, Sadie, Flossie and more of the same kind. The woman in politics must be plain Martha, Sarah, Florence, Caroline. The Hon. Flossie Jones would not sound well.

There is one Camden at least who will not have occasion to write a card and go back on himself on account of having ventured to say something. We refer to the one who officiated as Mayor of Parkersburg. He was interviewed lately by a representative of the New York Press and actually ventured to write out his views after the following darning fashion:

In our city and State the tariff seems to be the chief issue between the two political parties and will, I think, form the main question during the coming campaign. The Republicans are almost universally in favor of tariff for protection, while the Democrats generally approve of President Cleveland's views as expressed in his message upon that subject to Congress.

"Truthful Jeems" Away from Home. Our esteemed contemporary of the West Virginia Democrat has been revealing himself to the Metropolis, and this is the way he appears in the sparkling Press of that city:

James M. Mason, of West Virginia, son of Confederate Commissioner Mason of Trent seizure fame and grandson of that Mason who signed the Declaration of Independence, can say as many clever things in half a hour as any man who comes to New York. One of his hobbies is the study of public debts, and he has at his tongue's end an astonishing array of facts and figures on the subject. "My grandfather stands with other Virginians on a pedestal in a public square at Richmond," he said, "and my children have had their ancestor's statue pointed out to them with pride, but I carry in my pocket the bond that was issued to pay for that monument, and I can't collect this evidence of indebtedness."

The "Jeems" Mason above referred to has, of course, a great deal of Masonic blood in his veins, but it is due to the truth of history to say that he is not a son of the Confederate Commissioner. We let that much of his bombastic pretences in New York pass, however, and content ourselves with simply calling attention to the Peckinham stuff in which he indulges in regard to his Wall street scheme to get a bond grab out of West Virginia.

"Jeems" may play that sort of thing in New York, but he can't do before the West Virginia Legislature.

Wool Tariff From 1833 to 1848. A reader of the INTELLIGENCER, whose request was mislaid and now comes to life opportunely, desires to know what was the wool tariff from 1833 to 1842.

Under the operation of the act of March 2, 1833, providing for a systematic reduction of duties, raw wool under eight cents per pound in value was admitted free; wool of higher value was dutiable in 1836, at four cents per pound and 38 per cent ad valorem; in 1841 and 1842 at the same rate per pound, but at a decreased ad valorem duty of 32 per cent in the former and 26 per cent in the latter year. The act of August 30, 1842, placed a duty of five per cent on wool valued under seven cents a pound, and wool above this valuation was made dutiable at three cents a pound and 30 per cent ad valorem.

A Post-Easter Thought. From one end of the country to the other the newspapers commented on the large attendance at the churches on Easter Monday. At the same time they told of the flowers and music. In Wheeling the turnout of people was enormous. It may be doubted whether the like was ever seen before.

The Sunday just past was as beautiful a day as Easter Sunday. The preached Word was as well worth hearing. The same pains duty rested upon every man and woman in the community. But so far as we have learned there were plenty of vacant seats in the churches. There is something in the Easter idea, but does this alone account for the marked difference in the attendance?

Is it not possible that the flowers and the music have something to do with it? There are some who attend church from a stern sense of a stern duty; some because they find a real comfort in the house of God. The thousands who go when they are specially attracted. Directors of amusements understand this, and they provide plentiful music and no end of pleasing things for the eye to rest on.

Maybe the church that would provide plenty of pleasing music and beautiful flowers every Sunday in the year would always have its seats filled. In any congregation a flower fund could be raised without much trouble; and if the music be not already attractive, it can be made so with little additional cost. The great thing is to draw the people, get them to hear and set them to thinking.

A Too Previous Counting of Chickens. When you go away from home you run the risk of getting more or less news. This is from a Washington dispatch to the Louisville Courier-Journal:

"West Virginia may be counted for Cleveland," said an ex-Representative from that State. Our people have been fairly pleased with the Federal appointment, and although there is a difference of opinion in the mining districts on the tariff question, yet it is not serious enough to affect the administration or the party. West Virginia is Democratic always on a full vote, notwithstanding the scare that takes place every two years when Congressional elections are pending. The recent troubles there were purely local, or rather personal, and will not affect national politics. The only Republican who had a ghost of a show with us was Blaine. I say was, because we think the ghost has been laid by his own hand."

It is modest of the "ex-Representative" to say that there is a "difference of opinion in the mining districts on the tariff question." We should say so, if we could know for certain just what the intelligent ex-Representative means by the mining districts.

We have mining districts all over this State, coal and ore mines, and we have also lumber and salt districts, concerning which the ex-Representative did not express himself, saying nothing of several thousand wool growers, who are to be heard from on their specialties. With each and all of these the Democracy will have an account to settle this time, and when it is settled in November it is our opinion that West Virginia will not be "counted for Cleveland," even after the fullest possible vote.

Settlements Prior to That of Marietta. At the close of the regular exercises at the high school yesterday, an opportunity was given to students to make remarks upon the occasion, and Captain John F. Oliver called attention to the fact that while the whole State would in a manner observe April 7th as the day upon which General Putnam and his company landed at Marietta, he ought not to be lost sight of that upon ground now embraced in Jefferson county there was a settlement made two, or perhaps three years before. This was combated by Cashier Charles Gallagher, of the Stoneville National, who is probably the best posted man in the city on the early pioneer history of this part of the country. He held that the settlement in Warren township was not regular or legalized, and consequently should have no historical standing. There appears to be no doubt that John Carpenter, who owned land on Buffalo Creek in Brooke county, W. Va., did establish a block house and make a clearing near the mouth of Short Creek, this side of Portland, as early as 1781. His brother, George, who had considerable celebrity as an Indian fighter, as in fact did all of the old hardy pioneers, also erected a cabin near the mouth of Rush Run in 1785. The report made by Ensign Armstrong, who was sent out from Fort McIntosh to dispossess the settlers on the land along the west side of the Ohio river, makes it certain that prior to April 1, 1785, there was a settlement at the mouth of Short Creek, having a local government with two Justices of the Peace. This settlement was made by Enos Kimbrey, who subsequently laid out the town of Warren. Robert McClary, father of the venerable Joseph C. McClary; John McElroy, John Humphrey and others. About the same time John Tilton, after whom Tiltonville was named, Charles Kimball and others occupied land farther up the river where the village of Tilton now stands. These settlements were certainly irregular and unauthorized, but so were the settlements made in West Virginia and Kentucky, and that made in Warren township should be on the same level. It was the courage, bravery and strength of such men as the Carpenters, McCullochs, Bradys and others that made the settlement of Marietta possible. It was these old Indian fighting pioneers, who are to Eastern Ohio what Boone and his party were to Kentucky, that paved the way for the Connecticut emigrants and brought about the passage of the ordinance of 1787, setting off the Northwest Territory from Virginia and making it a part of the public domain. Land was won from the red man, and the soil of Jefferson county has been crimsoned with blood from the veins of as brave men as have lived since the world began. It is not detracting from the importance of the Marietta settlement, which gives to Ohio the most definite beginning of any State in the Union, for this county to claim priority in the way of settlement, nor can the importance of the services rendered by the men who traversed this territory when it was still a wilderness, and wild animals still fiercer and more ferocious, be over-estimated.

Chills and Fever. Malaria. "Many cases of fever and ague, dumb ague and congestive chills, were promptly arrested and cured by the use of Simmons' Liver Regulator. You don't say half enough in regard to the efficacy of this valuable medicine in cases of ague, intermittent fevers, etc. Every case has been arrested immediately. I was a sufferer with only slight malaria, and only found relief by using the Regulator."—ROBERT J. WEEKS, Kane county, Ill.
