WHEELING, SEPTEMBER 13, 1889.

"Can the politicians of New York protect criminals?" asks the New York Herald. Can a duck swim?

Another busy factory has shut up shop. Still a few American women find use for newspapers with big supplements.

The last day of the State Fair is as good as any other. Exhibits cannot be removed before to-morrow. Go today and be happy.

It will be a long while before the House of Representatives sees another man who will put so much brains in his smiles as "Sunset" Cox did.

Perhaps New York would put up the money for the big show if Chicago would guarantee her tea per cent on the investment. Business is business.

The storm on the Atlantic coast is far beyond the first advice. The destruction is great enough, but it will not seriously injure any one community.

If Wm. L. Scott took as good care of his coal miners as he does of his race horses, what luck his miners would be in. Race horses come higher than miners.

Pennsylvania coke territory is in low hands. West Virginia is the coke land of promise. There is plenty of coking coal here, at prices so low as to surprise a Pennsylvanian.

As a Republican paper the Charleston Daily Star has a field which may be worked to the benefit of the Republican party in that region. The Intelligencer wishes the venture abundant success.

It looks as though Wheeling may have to come to the rescue after all, and accommodate the World's Fair in 1892. We have better streets than New York and are nearer the center of the world's activities than Chicago.

The Intelligencer hopes it is true that ex-Senator Riddleberger has gone back body and brooches to the Democratic party. There is where he belongs and there is where he ought to stay. His habits were never Republican.

An interesting pension case has developed in New York. A wounded soldier, receiving a pension of six dollars a month, went insane. The case was not properly attended to, and the pensioner was dropped. The matter was taken up in interest of the man's mother, when it was discovered that since 1873, when he went insane from sunstroke during the war, he has been entitled to seventy-two dollars a month. On this basis the arrearage amounts to $14,000. Tanner cannot be blamed for this.

The gilded places of the cultured West are in mourning. They throw open their pearly gates to the Earl of Durham, believing him to be a shorter of very fine strain. Now it is discovered that the fellow's real name is Mills, and he is on his way back to London for forgery. Mills says America is a paradise for bogus English noblemen, and when he shall have served out his sentence he is coming back to delight more elegant people with another bogus title.

Missing a Good Chance. The State Fair should have for a chief attraction a well arranged exhibit of the natural resources of West Virginia. No other State is so rich in the raw material for such a display. The Association will gladly do its part.

The first step is for the counties to take hold, appropriate a reasonable sum each for collecting, transporting and displaying the exhibits. The opportunity is too good to be wasted.

The Intelligencer hopes that at the next State Fair the resources of West Virginia may be represented in such variety as to be the most noteworthy part of the show.

The Colored Man in shoulder straps. Second Lieutenant Charles Young, recently graduated from the Military Academy, has been assigned to the Tenth Cavalry. It is to be hoped that this young colored man may be treated better than Flipper was and that he may behave better than Flipper did.

The trouble will begin for Lieutenant Young when he takes unto himself a wife who will not desire to do the washing for the garrison, and may take it into her head that her husband is as good as a brother officer of equal rank.

Before the country becomes as a tale that is told it will develop some black officers of high rank—men who will fight their way to the front. In the late civil war the black soldier who carried a musket bore himself handsomely. That was only a beginning for him.

Exit Commissioner Tanner. Corporal Tanner seems to have been afflicted with the big head, a long and loose tongue and bad eyesight. He exaggerated the importance of the Commissioner of Penitents, talked too much about what he was doing and going to do, and could not see all that was going on in his office. He meant well, was honest, eager to advance business, but was not the best man for the place.

DEMOCRATIC FUN IN GEORGIA.

The Canoeing Whipping of Fourteen Negroes by the "Sagester Race."

"Then negroes is never coming here, and we won't have any fun. If you want to see some fun, however, just come with me."

Then the fellow went on to say that he and a party of his friends who came over from Clayton county to join in the defeat of the Point were going to Conley's home and give him a good thrashing. In a short time he and a half dozen friends were in their saddles riding out of town.

The headquarters of a mile away from the Point they came upon a house in the midst of a grove. Dismounting, they quickly surrounded the building. Then one of the number went to the door and began making a speech.

"Who's there?" came from inside. "Open the door, d-n you, and see," said the man holding a gun in one hand and a pistol in the other. But the door would not open.

"Open it or I'll kick it in," exclaimed the man as he began kicking upon it. The kicks accomplished what talk could not secure. Bolts began to move and the door opened.

The man shoved the muzzle of his gun inside and in the darkness stepped in. It was a long, narrow room, but he hid it boldly and fearlessly. Once inside he called out:

"Make a light!" In a second a match lit up. The light shined and then went out. "Oh, d-n you, none of that. Make a light here and make it quick!"

"That was enough and in a short time a chincypiece and lamp was set on a table. The man, who had been talking to the boys, don't let him get away," he called to his friends on the outside.

Tien, turning to the negroes inside, he said: "Where's Conley?" "Everyone says that Conley had never been there."

There were two men and several women in the room. Calling a friend in the leader instructed him to take the two men in the yard and guard them. Then, with another friend, he searched the house carefully, but Conley could not be found.

Stepping into the yard, he yelled out: "Sam, bring that buggy whip here, and bring it quick!" A long, limber whip was soon produced.

"Now," said the leader, turning to one of the negroes, "off with that shirt." "Off butting. Off with that shirt!"

"Off come the shirt and the negro's naked back was exposed to the rain and the harsh stinging whip. "Now," said the man, raising the whip, "where's Conley?" "I don't know, boss, 'fore God I don't know."

Down came the whip with a loud whizzing noise. It hit the negro's back with terrific force, and the negro leaped from the earth with a yell of agony.

"Make that noise again and I'll kill you," replied the leader, showing a pistol into the negro's face.

Then he began to play the licks thick and fast, and the negro, fearing to make an outcry, closed his eyes and hid his face. As the leader's arm was tired, he turned the whip over to a friend, saying: "Give that one the same dose."

"Well," said the man eagerly, "what did the Governor say?" "Great heavens, man! This sunburn is terrible!" exclaimed the criminal, dramatically.

"Don't mention it," responded the Sheriff in a cheerful tone; "his n't anything to what it will be if the Governor don't interjere."

THE BATTLES OF THE WAR.

Their Numbers and the States in Which They Were Fought.

The manager of one of the railroads that lies chiefly in Tennessee has issued a map of the Southern States on which is dotted what is represented to be the locality of every great battle of the civil war.

Of course the lesser actions are not given, and only considerable battles are mentioned; the whole number put down at 892. They are distributed by States as follows:

Table listing battles by state: Pennsylvania 2, Alabama 21, Florida 1, Georgia 1, Louisiana 1, Mississippi 1, Missouri 1, North Carolina 1, South Carolina 1, Tennessee 1, Virginia 1, West Virginia 1, Kentucky 1, Maryland 1, Delaware 1, New Jersey 1, New York 1, Connecticut 1, Massachusetts 1, Rhode Island 1, Vermont 1, New Hampshire 1, Maine 1, New Brunswick 1, Nova Scotia 1, Prince Edward Island 1, Ontario 1, Quebec 1, New South Wales 1, Victoria 1, South Australia 1, Western Australia 1, New Zealand 1, Fiji 1, Tonga 1, Samoa 1, Tahiti 1, Hawaii 1, Philippines 1, Java 1, Sumatra 1, Borneo 1, Celebes 1, Moluccas 1, East Indies 1, West Indies 1, Central America 1, South America 1, Africa 1, Asia 1, Oceania 1.

Of course 1864 was the bloody year, not only because of its greatest number of battles, but also because of the desperate campaigns of Grant in Virginia, and the bloody campaign in Tennessee and Georgia, counted up so terribly in losses. Captain Phister figures up the engagements by States as follows:

Table listing engagements by state: Virginia 14, Tennessee 14, Georgia 14, Florida 14, Alabama 14, Mississippi 14, Missouri 14, North Carolina 14, South Carolina 14, Louisiana 14, Kentucky 14, Maryland 14, Delaware 14, New Jersey 14, New York 14, Connecticut 14, Massachusetts 14, Rhode Island 14, Vermont 14, New Hampshire 14, Maine 14, New Brunswick 14, Nova Scotia 14, Prince Edward Island 14, Ontario 14, Quebec 14, New South Wales 14, Victoria 14, South Australia 14, Western Australia 14, New Zealand 14, Fiji 14, Tonga 14, Samoa 14, Tahiti 14, Hawaii 14, Philippines 14, Java 14, Sumatra 14, Borneo 14, Celebes 14, Moluccas 14, East Indies 14, West Indies 14, Central America 14, South America 14, Africa 14, Asia 14, Oceania 14.

The fights with the Indians in the Western and Northwestern States and Territories are not enumerated above, for, although they exerted some local influence in the civil war, they had no connection with the Confederates and were not fought by them. These are rather curious statistics, and they show how the terrible conflict pervaded the entire Union.

Two kinds of suspense. A murderer under sentence of death had a number of individual friends who were exerting themselves to secure a respite from the Governor. The Sheriff believed in capital punishment, but he was a clearly disposed man and had an outcry, closing his eyes and hid his face.

As the leader's arm was tired, he turned the whip over to a friend, saying: "Give that one the same dose."

"Well," said the man eagerly, "what did the Governor say?" "Great heavens, man! This sunburn is terrible!" exclaimed the criminal, dramatically.

THE UP GRADE

Hear the engine blow and puff; it's up grade. It's worth a little struggle and some puffing and blowing to get up to the top. Pile on the coal, fireman; shake her up, engineer; you're bound to get there. We are going to puff and blow a little—pile on the coal and get up steam—all because of our

It costs you nothing, remember, to see the best and biggest stock in town, and to buy out of this stock than out of any other; cost you less in the start, in the actual cash, and very much less in the long run when wear and tear get into the account. Our advice to everybody is: "Buy the best" and at the same time we intimate that you will find the best at
