"I was rapially becoming gray and hald; but after using two or three bottles of Ayer's Hair Vigor my hair grew thick and glossy and the original color was restored."—M. Aldrich, Canaan Centre, N. II.

"A trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor has convinced me of its merits. Its use has not only caused the hair of my wife and daughter to be abundant and glossy, but it has given my rather standed mustache a respectable length and appearance."—R. Britton, Oakhund, Ohio.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past four or five years and find it a most satisfactory dressing for the hair. Bellamy's Proposed Utopian Scheme, rancis A. Walker in the February Atlantic. Were the fantasy of a state in which every one should have enough and to spare, in which the conditions of life hould cease to be arduous and stern, rom which care and solicitude for the Inture should be banished, and the necessaries, comforts, and wholesome luxaries of life should come easily to all—were this wild, weak dream shown to be capable of realization well might the becapable of realization well might the plainanthropist exclain. Alsa for mankind! There have been races that have lived without care, without struggles without pains; but these have never become noble races. Except for care and struggle and pains men would never have risen above the intellectual and physical stature of Polynesian savages. There are acres that cark and cares that kill; there are struggles that are unality, there are pains that depress, and blight, and dwarf. Well may we look forward to a better state, it which much of the harshness of the human condition shall, by man's own efforts, have been removed. But it was no Bellamy who said that in the sweat of their brows should men eat bread; that with agony should they be born into the world; that in labor always, in disappointment and in labor always, in disappointment and defent often, with anxious thought and the properties of the properties of the same and the same and the and the anxious thought and always the anxious thought and the proposition of the large of the same and the case of the same and the case of the same and the case of the case of the same and askes in 1034. fundamental law of Mr. Bellamy's military republic, that there should be no distinction of material condition among its members. Mr. Bellamy tries to place this prescription on high ethical grounds but all his fine phrases do not disguise the fact that the proposed distribution involves the grossest violation of common honesty, as every plain man understands it. To say that one who produces twice as much as another shall yet shave no more is palpable robbery. It is unces twice as much as another shall yet have no more is palpable robbery. It is to make that man for half his time a slave, working for others without reward. It is one of the dangers of transpendental reasoning about rights and morals that the linest of sentiments are often found in close proximity to the boldest of rascality.

But the flagrant dishonesty of the proposition to destroy all distinction in the material condition of members of the community is, I make bold to say, the least objection to it. Such a leveling downwards would bring a speedy end of all intellectual and social progress, to be followed at no late day by retrogression and relapse. It is only by the distinction of some that the general character of the mass is to be raised. There are plenty of tribes and races among which Mr. Bellamy's creative principle of absolute equality of condition is and has immemoriably been in full operation. Unfortunately for his case, they are all miserable imbruted savages. Even the fact that among some of them the additional principle of the selection of chiefs by the elders of the tribe is of unknown antiquity has not served to life them in the scale of said the rejected lover brokenty." he tribe is of unknown antiquity has ot served to lift them in the scale of numanity. In 1348 there were many great tempests. Several towns and thousands of people were a wallowed up and the courses of rivers we changed or stopped. Some chasma in the carth sent forth poisonous fluids, as red can carmine ink, as at Vallah, in Austria. Ponderous ballstones fell in many parts of Germany the same year, some of them weighing from 20 to 70 pounds. At Lawech it rained flesh, dust, comets and meteors; fire-brands and corruscations were in the air; mock suns, with fiery talls, sailed through the skies. Soon after these terrible scenes at Lamech it began at Catayan, near the sea, and went sweeping throughout Southern Europe. began at Cataya, near the sea, and went sweeping throughout Southern Europe. on lides has been forced through the desapression which has existed of late seems to have tempted sellers to try to find a new market for their merchandise. During the past few weeks about $8,000 to 100,600 dry western hides have been the shipped to Europe, in order to try that a market. How this new departure will turn out is at present entirely problematical, but if European tanners can use our hides to to advantage it will open tup a new field and tend to give a tone of a steadiness to this market that has not been left for a long time. The recent shipment of African hides to Europe from this market, while a new feature in itself, was not of that importance to the trade here that this later shipment will be left it proves successfal in opening up a new market. African hides are well known in Europe, where they have a greated merket, african hides are well known in Europe, where they have a greated merket, of for bronchial known in Europe, where they have a general market price, and the fact that shipments were made from this side simply showed that our market was low-er than the ruling prices there.
