THE VICTIA'S CAREER.

The face, from the dreadful mutilations, could not be recognized, but is believed by the majority of people who saw the body, to have been a resident of the city for many years and moved among the best society. His presence in every household was quickly acquiesed in, though it was well known by these people that he was a fugitive from justice. He took part in all social affairs of note and was greatly admired by the fair sex. His company was courted by well known professional gentlemen. Merchants, and even clergy, were known to be his boon companions. That he has made many victims among these people goes without saying. That he has actually robbed many of them they now realize and they all unanimously pronounce him a secondrel of the lowest type. In order to escape a dreadful expose which a prominent furn threatened to make, the victim left the city last

The Guas Fronts.

The contracting firm of Beltz & Flading, which has the contract for remodeling the fronts of the two store rooms in the building on Main street hill owned by Mrs. George Mendel and occupied by the furniture firm of G. Mendel & Co., and the 5 and 10 cent store, is pushing that work along as rapidly as possible and will soon have it completed. Yesterday a part of the plate glass fronts were put in. Some of the glass measures 0x14 feet and is the largest single sheet glass in this city. The fronts when completed will present a very handsome appearance.
