BENEDICT NEUMAN HORRIBLY KILLED.

Run Down Before Daylight by a H. & O. Engine—Two Other Casualties. Benedict Neuman, an old German who has been employed at the Belmont mill and blast furnace for twenty-five years, was ground to a shapeless mass by a B. & O. yard engine before daylight yesterday morning.

Neuman lived on Chapline street below Thirty-third, and it has been his custom for years to come to his work by way of Chapline street to Ford's crossing, and thence to the mill over the B. & O. tracks. Yesterday morning between five and six o'clock he was coming to work as usual, but he did not get past the B. & O. house about two hundred yards below the mill.

No one was with him and no one saw the accident, and even yet it is not known how it occurred, and probably it never will be. At daylight some workmen in the B. & O. yards found the mangled remains strewn along the track for a distance of a hundred yards. He was struck by a South bound train immediately opposite the lower end of the oil case, and flesh and bones were scattered along the track almost down to the Caldwell's run bridge. There was nothing left to tell who the victim was except some pieces of clothing which were identified by relatives.

The old man's name was Benedict Neuman, and his flesh was sticking to the rail in several places, and his brains found on the skull were smeared over the ground, while small broken bones were thrown several feet from the track. Corner of Chapline and Belmont streets, a certificate, and the remains were gathered into a box, there being no possibility of placing the parts into their relative positions.

As to how the accident occurred, the theory is that Neuman stepped from the west track to get out of the way of the "cannon ball" train, which was a few minutes late, and came directly in front of shifting engine No. 61 on the east track, which is known to have gone down with a train of freight cars on the Belmont track, and had passed the cannon ball at the place where Neuman met his horrible fate.

Samuel Manning, who had charge of No. 61, said that he did not see anyone, and does not think his engine killed Neuman, but that it was the engine mentioned in correct because one of Neuman's shoes was found in the upper part of the yards almost at the depot, and it is supposed that it caught on some part of the engine and was carried back. Neuman was about 70 years of age, and had worked for the Belmont Company twenty-five years. He was for a long time night watchman, but recently worked in the stock house at the furnace.

A Bridge Builder Badly Hurt. Henry Decker, an employe of Baird Bros., working on the bridge superstructure on Jefferson street, in Martin's Ferry, met with a serious accident yesterday morning. The trestle work to support the superstructure there is being erected, and Decker was working underneath. While in a stooping position, a three-quarter inch iron rod, which was being hoisted by a crane, struck him on the head, and he was knocked senseless and the blood poured from an ugly gash. He was picked up by workmen on Washington street, where Dr. W. Schmitt made an examination of the wound, which showed that the skull had been badly broken. The doctor dressed the wound temporarily, and Decker was removed to the Belmont hospital.

James Boyce, an employe at the Top mill, stepped into a vat of pickling acid, and he was badly hurt. The acid, which is used for pickling iron, is a very strong and dangerous substance, and it is supposed that he was hurt by stepping into it. He was taken to the Belmont hospital, where he is now recovering.

YESTERDAY was a regular March day. About 11 o'clock in the morning what promised to be a good old-fashioned snow set in, but it soon let up, slight flurries continuing at intervals during the day. The air was raw and disagreeable.

JOHN QUINN, the young man arrested a few days ago charged with stealing a trunk from a boarder at his mother's boarding house, was tried before Justice Arkle last night, and was honorably acquitted, there being no evidence to establish his guilt.

THE recent revival at West Alexander resulted in seventeen additional members of the Presbyterian church, of which Rev. Dr. W. H. Lester is the pastor. This revival was started by Mr. Charles Sawyer, of New York, the business man evangelist, who came to this section with Evangelist Ben Hogan.

ISAAC WILLET, the heavy operator in the Washington field, leased the Campney farm southwest of Taylors-town, for $8,000. The farm contains 180 acres, and is located south of the S. D. Campney farm, which was leased some time ago. The lease is for one year, and will be renewed at the expiration of the year, and with no stipulation time to commence operations in.

LESTER VERMILION, a boy aged about fourteen, met with quite a severe accident near Valley Grove, this county, last Saturday. He was riding on a wagon heavily loaded with hay, which was overturned while being pulled over a bad piece of road. The boy tried to save himself by jumping and fell on his left knee, spraining it so badly he has not been able to be about since.

THIS popular social organization known as the Kirkwood Athletic Association gave a light entertainment at "Home's" last evening at its pleasant club quarters over the river. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening's entertainment, the music being furnished by Killmyer. The affair was ably conducted by an efficient committee, consisting of the following named gentlemen: Messrs. W. Fowler, J. O. Heinlein, J. O. Howells, T. W. Simpers and J. A. Topping.

THE ice supply in Pittsburgh is reported to be about exhausted and some of the companies are entirely out. Those that have no supply have for the past three or four weeks been getting their ice from the artificial ice plant in this city. This ice is of an excellent quality and the factory is going to have all it can do this spring and summer. Ice plants are being built in Pittsburgh that will have a daily capacity of 200 tons which is 500 tons less than the daily demand of Pittsburgh in the summer time is estimated to be.

THE NEXT STATE FAIR.

Many Important Items of That Event Some of the Attractions. An interesting meeting of the Board of Directors of the West Virginia Exposition and State Fair Association was held at the Public Building yesterday, at which there were present President Royman and Messrs. M. Kelly, Aug. Rolf, A. M. Hamilton, Henry Blieberson, N. B. Seay and J. H. Hoo.

Among the business transacted it was ordered by the Board that the Committee on Grounds proceed to have the main exhibition hall, machinery hall, floral hall, the grand stand and the office building, all of which are now under construction, enlarged and provision made for additional power, so as to give more space to exhibitors of agricultural implements.

One of the most important improvements ordered at this meeting was the enlargement of the grand stand. It was ordered that it be extended 100 feet to the north, which will make it 325 feet long and capable of seating 5,000 people. The extension of this stand will throw it over the roadway leading to the stables and passing in front of the grand stand, and to accommodate this roadway an arch will be cut in the stand. The extension of the stand will necessitate moving the judges' stand to a point further up the track and it is probable that when this is done a new grand stand will be erected and will take the place of the present rickety and inconvenient apology for a stand for the judges and reporters.

Moving the judges' stand further up the track is an improvement the horsemen will be grateful for, as it will put them further away from the turn at the start and render accidents from hunching less liable to occur.

The Board ordered the Secretary to make arrangements for a grand balloon race and parachute jump on Wednesday, September 10, the third day of the next Fair.

A new design for a handsome poster, the finest hanger the Association has ever had was approved and adopted. The poster, which is now being prepared, is estimated to cost $10,000 and is ordered to be offered at a different department for this year's Fair.

Taken together the prospects are for one of the largest and best Fairs ever held by the Association being held next September. The ball has been formally thrown and the committee on Grounds and the Board will be directed towards having everything in perfect shape.

Fire at the Belmont Furnace. The Belmont Iron Company had a narrow escape from a serious fire yesterday morning. For some time past it has been known that the lining of the furnace was becoming very thin, and it was feared that some accident would occur. At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the iron broke out at a point near the iron top, and ran helter skelter over the casting house and out into the stock house.

In the stock house, the little river of molten iron, which was running down the side of the building and was being led to the furnace, was stopped by a dam. The dam was a little higher than the roof of the building, and the whole upper part of the building was roofed full of flame. A still alarm was given at 7:15, and the hose wagon and men were at the fire. An attachment was made and the fire was put out in a very little while.

The Standard. "I regard Hood's Sarsaparilla as having passed above the grade of what are commonly called patent or proprietary remedies," said a well known physician recently. "It is fully entitled to be considered a standard medicine, and has won this position by its use and success by the many remarkable cures it has effected. For an alternative and tonic it has never been equalled."

Interested People. Advertising a patent medicine in the peculiar way in which the proprietor of Kemp's Balsam for Coughs and Colds does, it is indeed wonderful. He authorizes all who give their name to call for it a sample bottle free, but they may try before purchasing. The large bottles are 50c and $1. We certainly would advise a trial. It may save you from consumption.
